Poor, Old Dollar.
How They Get It.
Permanent Waves. Free.
He Raised Cats and Rats.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

OUR POOR old dollar, not knowing whether it is only paper or hope and paper mixed, does know that it is not gold and drifted yesterday to its lowest international price in sixty years.

After the British pound went off the gold basis you could buy a pound for about three dollars and a half. Yesterday it cost five dollars and three cents to buy a British pound, and that pound is still off the gold basis.

What makes paper money of the British nation that couldn't support itself for six weeks, more valuable than the paper money of this nation which could get along forever without bothering about the outside world?

The probably correct answer is that British statesmanship is infinitely more intelligent than that of the United States, and that nobody in this country really knows anything about money, except how to experiment with it, gamble with it, and moan when it suddenly disappears.

IN THE past good dollars were accumulated easily and rapidly. You will want to bear it in mind when old-fashioned times and methods come back. They always do come back.

In an oil pool certain gentlemen made twelve million dollars. A pool, you know, is an arrangement by which men agree to put up the price of the stock, artificially or otherwise, sell out and take the cash.

One gentleman who went into it took out three millions for himself, and told the Senate Banking Committee that he put in only his intelligence, not a dollar in cash. He knew how to do that.

A NEW YORK banking house informs you that it bought up an automobile company, paid $146,000,000 in one check, did not put in a dollar of its own money, getting the $146,000,000 from the public in exchange for stock and keeping the "voting stock," controlling the company, as part of its bonus.

Later it sold the company to another concern for $180,000,000. Your keen intelligence may tell you who got the difference between $146,000,000 and $180,000,000.

MONSIEUR PAUL BONHCOURE, hair dresser of the French city of Tarascon, made famous by the novel "Tartarin of Tarascon," has won five million francs, about $307,000 of our money, in the French lottery.

What will he do? Will he buy a yacht and sail the oceans of the world? Will he buy the top of a mountain, erect a telescope and study the universe so much wider than a hair dresser's shop?

Will he lead a life of pleasure in Paris, where pleasure is for sale at reasonable rates, for Frenchmen?

No, nothing of that sort. He will continue in his hair-dressing shop, and to show that he has the right French spirit, he will give a free "permanent wave" to every one of his lady customers.

Not everybody has imagination.

WHATEVER OUR dollars may be, the government will have more of them, thanks to the liquor tax. And if it hasn't enough, it will go out and get them. Gen. Johnson informs the farmers that, if necessary, the whole country can be taxed as much as need be, that farmers may sell their products at a fair price.

After that, if necessary, the government will tax farmers sufficiently to see that factories sell their product at a fair price.

That will be splendid while it works, and reminds you of the man who decided to raise cats and rats.

He would sell the fur of the rats, and feed their bodies to the cats. He would sell the fur of the cats, and feed their bodies to the rats.

Food for cats and rats would cost nothing, everything he took in would be profit.

IT WAS announced, hastily, without final decision, that the civil service would not hire any stenographer or typewriter more than forty years old. It would be a pity if the government felt obliged to say to all past forty:

"Consider yourselves dead."

Now, with relief, you learn that the lady stenographers can be employed by the government up to "an age limit of fifty-three years."

That shows intelligence, for at fifty-three a woman knows more than she ever knew before. The female brain is better at fifty and later than it ever was in earlier years, as Professor Shaler tells you.

Incidentally, a woman of fifty-three, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, is more reliable than any man ever is.

BEFORE THE federal government took an interest in the kidnaping industry, bringing about one or two death sentences and many life sentences, that industry was proceeding along ambitious lines. It is shown that kidnapers had definite, careful plans to kidnap Cov. McNutt, of Indiana.

On a map that the kidnapers meant to follow was written:

"Force Governor to sign pardon, release him uninjured, junction 43."

There was also sketched the town square of Danville, Ind., with arrows pointing to the First National and the Danville State Bank, and a memorandum:

"Get money, kill anyone making resistance. Act quick."

The idea of robbing a bank and "killing anybody" is old. But kidnaping a governor to

WIDOW TRIAL IN HANDS OF JURY

Story of Brutality Related by Woman Who Killed Mate

A jury of seven women and five men retired behind locked doors this afternoon to decide whether work-weary Meta Miller was telling the truth when she testified that she shot her husband dead in self-defense.

If they believe her story that Fred Miller, postal clerk, beat her, forced her to work, transferred his affections to his step-daughter and, finally, threatened her life, they were instructed to acquit her by Visiting Judge J. A. Chambers.

If they disbelieve her, they are privileged to convict her of murder, committed a few months ago in their Greenfield home.

Before retiring the jury heard from the witness chair that Miller had made a mockery of his marriage vows under the very roof where he was eventually shot to death.

Mrs. Miller's neighbors and children testified that Miller transferred his attentions to her daughter by a first marriage—19-year-old Gertrude Wright.

While his wife was doing washing in Squirrel Hill homes to supply food for their children, Miller gave his stepdaughter, Gertrude, a fur coat and other clothes and wrote her amorous notes which he slipped under her bedroom door, his own children testified.

BOY, GIRL TESTIFY

With the testimony of the children, Dorothy Miller, 14, and William Miller, 12, the defense rested.

The two children corroborated each other. Dorothy added that she saw one note written by her father in their Greenfield home in which he saluted Gertrude Wright as:

"My Dear Wife."

Mrs. Alice Bitler, who operates a grocery store in the district, testified that she had been giving Mrs. Miller food for 13 years, that once she saw Miller knock his wife down in their kitchen.

Mrs. Hazel Dillner, of Squirrel Hill, told of Mrs. Miller doing "the cleaning" in the Dillner home for years. Mrs. Dillner testified that she would give Mrs. Miller her meals, but that the mother would want to take the food home to her children.

FAINTS ON STAND

Mrs. Miller fainted as she finished a story that moved spectators to applause. She was saved from falling to the floor by a spectator who rushed forward.

Attorney Harry A. Estep, defending Mrs. Miller, called her as

Eggs Fly at Gandhi, Bombay Reports

BOMBAY, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Evening News of India said today that eggs were hurled at a platform on which the Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader, was seated during a public meeting at Nagpur.

The incident was regarded as the first of its kind in Gandhi's public life.

Ice Causes Crash, Ohio Woman Hurt

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 10.—When an auto driven by her husband skidded on the icy highway near here today, striking another car, Mrs. Abbie Lisle, 33, of Bellefontaine, O., was injured. She was brought to a hospital here.

U. S. JURY HOLDS NAZI AGENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A federal grand jury today returned an indictment charging Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed Nazi agent, with acting as an agent of the Presse Abtheil, a press division of the Ministry of Propaganda of the German government, without registration with the State Department.

The specific offense charged is violation of Section 233, Title 22, United States Code, which was adopted in 1917 as a means of preventing espionage. The maximum penalty possible under the statute is five years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

The investigation of Spanknoebel's activities by the grand jury has been under way for three weeks and resulted from charges made against Spanknoebel in protests made to Mayor John P. O'Brien against a proposed German Day celebration in a local armory.

Meanwhile, a warrant was issued for Spanknoebel's arrest by United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill on a complaint sworn to by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie. Federal agents have sought him in vain and he has been reported as having fled to Germany, and also as being in hiding in the United States.

SKID ON SNOW, AUTOISTS HURT

Snow-covered streets early today were blamed for causing injury to two women when the auto in which they were passengers skidded and hit a pole at Forbes street and Sixth avenue.

Mrs. Loretta Eckert, 33, of 1148 Church avenue, McKees Rocks, and Ethel Davis, 22, of 507 Arch street, suffering lacerations, were treated at Mercy Hospital. They were passengers in a car driven by Martin H. Nee, of New Kensington.

Two lines of automobiles crept into the Liberty Tubes from West Liberty avenue this morning, long past the rush hour, as South Hills residents were delayed by the treacherous condition of the highways.

The Pittsburgh Automobile Club reported five to eight inches of snow on the Lincoln highway between Greensburg and Bedford. Snow and ice covered the William Penn highway as far east as Lewistown, Pa. Most roads in Western Pennsylvania were dangerous for motorists without chains. A 10-inch snowfall almost paralyzed traffic in Venango County.

Aviation and railroad schedules were being maintained.

Snowstorm Hits Cambria, Somerset

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 10.—Cambria and Somerset counties today were in the throes of an almost unprecedented late fall snowstorm and genuine winter temperatures. The mercury fell to 18 at Cresson.

Highway crews cindered icy slopes while Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trackmen were called out to clear tracks of the Somerset and Cambria branch. An official snowfall of six inches was noted in Cambria and nine inches in Somerset County.

Bather Periled as Wire Falls Across Tub

Patrick O'Connor, 26, narrowly escaped death by electrical shock while taking a bath in his home at 39 East General Robinson street early today.

Police said an electric light wire fell from the ceiling, landed across the tub and became welded to its O'Connor screamed when electrical currents passed through his body. His cries attracted other roomers who turned off the electric current.

Police took him to Allegheny General Hospital suffering from burns on the shoulder and back sides.

SON OF RICH MERCHANT KIDNAPED

$40,000 Ransom Asked In Death Threat; Floyd Linked

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 10—(AP.)—An anonymous telephone caller who demanded payment of $40,000 "if you want to see your boy alive again" started federal, state and local officers today on an intensive hunt for kidnapers a few hours after the disappearance here of Brooke Hart, 22, son of Alexander J. Hart, one of San Jose's wealthiest merchants.

Young Hart, a recent graduate of the University of Santa Clara, who had just been made a partner of his father, left his department store shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday to go to a nearby parking lot and drive to his parents' home.

His failure to arrive at home on schedule aroused the uneasiness of his family, who said he had been the intended victim of what appeared to have been a kidnaping attempt about three weeks previously. At that time, the family said, three men in a large automobile, tried to crowd young Hart's car from a highway, but he eluded them.

MYSTERY PHONE CALL

About 10 o'clock last night the Hart home was called by telephone, police said, and a man demanded payment of $40,000 "if you want to see your son alive again." Officers said the caller hung up without giving directions as to how he would collect the money, if offered. The call was traced to a public telephone booth in a large San Francisco hotel.

Early today young Hart's abandoned car was found 10 miles north of here, the lights burning. It was at the side of the highway leading to the Calaveras Dam region, 25 miles northeast of San Jose, where many deserted cottages are located. On the strength of this, officers began a search of the Calaveras area.

'PRETTY BOY' SUSPECTED

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—The name of "Pretty Boy" Floyd, notorious Mid-Western bandit and killer, today entered the investigation of the kidnaping for a $40,000 ransom of Brooke Hart, 22-year-old scion of a wealthy and prominent San Jose family.

Sheriff William J. Emig said he had received information that the abduction for ransom was the work of a gang headed by Floyd.

Kidnapers Threaten Pastor's Daughter

PITMAN, N. J., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Martha Neighbour, 15-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Neighbour, has been threatened unless her father pays $1,000, according to word received here today from Baltimore, where the Rev. Mr. Neighbour is conducting an evangelistic campaign.

2 Women on Jury To Try Touhy Gang

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—A jury of 10 men and two women, most of them small town residents, was drawn here today to try Roger Touhy and three members of his Chicago gang for the kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., St. Paul brewer, last June.

VOTE BATTLE MAY GO TO COURT

Gollmar's Lead in Sheriff Fight Only 163

Who is to be the next Sheriff of Allegheny County probably will not be determined for 10 days—until the returning board completes its official count.

And perhaps not then.

If the count—and possible recount—of ballot boxes still leaves doubt as to whether Frank I. Gollmar, Republican incumbent, or John Heinz, Democrat, is the winner, both party leaders plan court action.

GOLLMAR LEADS

Today, the best unofficial tabulation places Gollmar in the lead with 163 votes—a slim margin in a total vote of 330,749.

And this margin stands, for the moment, with one missing district, the Eighth of the Seventeenth Ward.

Thugs held up the election board of that district early Wednesday morning and took what ballots they could see. The remainder, now in the hands of the Election Bureau, awaits a decision of Judges Ambrose B. Reid and W. Heber Dithrich, sitting on the Returning Board, as to whether the votes the hooligans left behind are to be counted.

FINAL TABULATION

Without this district, the final unofficial tabulation for 941 out of 942 districts gives:

	Gollmar.	Heinz.
City of Pittsburgh	79,524	88,575
McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne	11,080	7,717
Boroughs	51,449	45,553
Townships	23,403	23,448
Total vote	165,456	165,293

Noted Girl Driver Granted Divorce

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Frances Meany Scofield, 21, of Greenwich, noted diver, today was granted a divorce on grounds of intolerable cruelty from Edward H. Scofield, salesman.

Mrs. Scofield testified that when she was about to compete in acquatic contests her husband would beat her and prevent her taking part, she said. She is the sister of Helen Meany, noted Olympic acquatic star, who two years ago was granted a divorce on similar grounds.

Market Deadlocked In Hog Price War

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Twenty-seven thousand hogs went on sale today in Chicago, the world's largest hog market, without a single buyer.

A conflict between buyers and sellers brought the unprecedented deadlock after buyers refused to meet the prices asked by the commission men.

MERRY F. PARKER-PICKERING

ELOPERS' AUTO CRASHES, 1 DIES

AURORA, Ill., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering, Oak Park heiress, eloped early today with Frank Eiszner, of River Forest, and a short time afterward their speeding automobile overshot a sharp turn near Plainfield and was wrecked, killing Eiszner's brother, Donald, 25.

The bride and bridegroom were only slightly hurt. Two others in the car were more seriously injured.

The couple had called at the home of Miss Ruth Chamberlain, deputy clerk of Kane County, at 1:30 a. m. and obtained a marriage license. The bride gave her name as "Miss Merry Pickering."

It was she who a few days ago bade farewell to Count George di Georgio, of Chile, at a New York dock and then came home to ask her parents if she might follow him to South America and be married. Mrs. Parker-Pickering, 23-year-old divorcee, is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Peter Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer.

Details of the marriage were concealed. A Plainfield policeman who searched the wrecked automobile, said he found a marriage certificate signed by Justice of the Peace E. M. Enderson, of Aurora.

Five persons were in the car, which apparently was driven by Norman Peterson, an automobile salesman, of Chicago, who was injured. Noel Seeburg, of Chicago, suffered a possible skull fracture.

BONUS BILL ALSO ON PROGRAM

Pinchot Schedules 13 Items for Action By Assembly

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Tossing a mass of controverial legislation to the lawmakers, Gov. Pinchot today asked the General Assembly to regulate liquor through state stores, and listed the methods by which he wants the revenue spent.

The Governor devoted two of the 13 items of his call to this problem which the Assembly will attack at the outset of the special session starting at noon Monday.

He included also provision for laws which will make available the $50,000,000 soldiers' bonus approved by the voters at Tuesday's election.

LIQUOR CONTROL

On the liquor control enigma, the Governor asked the Legislature to consider:

"Regulation of and taxation on the ownership, manufacture, sale, distribution, storage, transportation, and use of alcohol and alcoholic beverages, including establishment of state stores for the sale, not for consumption on the premises."

The call restricts the Legislature to using the profits from state liquor stores for unemployment relief, old age assistance and unemployment insurance.

It specifies that revenue from liquor taxes be used for any or all of these purposes:

Emergency aid to financially distressed school districts.

Erection or improvement of state buildings, other public works or repayment of federal

Papal Consistory Canonizes 2 Nuns

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Pope Pius held a semi-public consistory today in the presence of 22 cardinals and 50 archbishops and bishops to give his final approval to the canonization of the Blessed Bernadette Soubirous and the Blessed Joan Thouret.

The Blessed Soubirous, who was a nun of the Sisters of Christian Instruction of Nevere, France, will be canonized December 8. The Blessed Thouret was the founder of a branch of the Sisters of Charity.

Weds Reading Girl? Middy Held in Brig

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Midshipman Harold Leonard Emmons, of Saco, Mich., second year student at the Naval Academy, has been placed on a restricted status pending investigation of his reported marriage to Miss Helen Rhodes, of Reading, Pa., by the naval authorities.

He is quartered on the U. S. S. Reina Mercedes, station ship at the academy, but attends all classes and drills.

Child Dead, Another Dying From Burns

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 10.—Irene Ruth Rager, 2, died in a hospital today from burns suffered in the kitchen of her rural home near Cramer, Indiana County, when her dress caught fire.

In another hospital lay Evelyn Malek, 3, of Twin Rocks, near death from burns suffered when her clothing caught fire in her home.

18 Die Aboard Ship, Four Finish Voyage

LISBON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A ship of death rode into the harbor today manned by only four men.

Eighteen members of the crew of the Swedish steamer Elsie had died off the coast of West Africa. They were stricken with malaria.

McNair and Roosevelt Chat at White House

By JOHN COWAN

Sun-Telegraph Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Pittsburgh's most prominent Democrat was congratulated by the nation's most prominent Democrat at the White House today.

Smiling, President Roosevelt put forth a right hand and gave a hearty handshake to William N. McNair, who on Tuesday was elected Mayor of Pittsburgh.

The President recalled McNair's efforts at the Chicago convention in 1932 and the race the Pittsburgher put up against Senator David Reed in the senatorial campaign. They were together 15 minutes, during which the President told of receiving the good news with his breakfast Wednesday.

McNair was accompanied by Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence, who hope to have something to say about the new patronage deal in Pittsburgh, and M. L. Benedum, the party's financial "angel" in Pittsburgh.

Lawrence had to be quick on the trigger when, after the White House session, McNair, who insists that he has promised no jobs, was asked whether he had given any thought to his cabinet. Before the Mayor-elect could get his breath, Lawrence put in hastily:

"No, no. There will be six weeks for that work. Right now everybody is thinking of getting a little rest."

From the White House McNair was led to the office of Postmaster General Farley, where he was congratulated by numerous office-holders.

McNair planned to leave Washington tonight for Harrisburg, where he hopes to interest Gov. Pinchot in his graded tax system.

ROOSEVELT, LITVINOFF CONFER ON RUSS RECOGNITION

NEW MEETINGS WILL BE HELD AT CAPITAL

Many Problems Hint Final Action May Be Delayed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff announced jointly today they had reviewed questions between this country and the Soviet and that conversations "will continue in normal course."

The statement said:

"The President and Mr. Litvinoff reviewed the questions between the two countries which had previously been discussed between the Secretary of State and Mr. Litvinoff.

"These conversations with the President and with the State Department will continue in normal course."

It had been asserted in official quarters earlier that there were many problems that needed to be gone over, and so no necessarily quick and final action on recognition was to be expected.

No arrangements have yet been made for another State Department meeting.

Secretary of State Hull, who has been conducting negotiations, leaves tomorrow morning for the Pan American economic conference at Montevideo.

Litvinoff had nothing to say when he left the White House. He was attended only by the personal bodyguard assigned him by the government.

GOLD BOOSTED TO NEW HIGH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A price of $33.20 per ounce for RFC purchase of newly mined gold was set today, an increase of five cents over yesterday and a new high.

The figure was six cents less than the London price of gold converted into dollars at the opening exchange rate of $5.13.

Previously the domestic price has been held at a point well above the world figure.

The weakening dollar, however, carried the London price above the domestic price for the first time late yesterday.

FREEPORT BANK GETS CHARTER

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—The Old Freeport Bank of Freeport, held a charter today to take over the business of the Freeport Bank and Trust Company, which has operated on a restricted basis since the national banking holiday last March.

The charter provides for $50,000 capital and lists the incorporators, all residents of Freeport as Dr. William J. Ralston, A. M. Johnson, each holding 100 shares of stock, and C. M. Kiskaddon, 30 shares.

Upon completion of its financing plan, the bank must obtain a license to reopen from the State Banking Department, which already has approved granting of the charter.

HERRON GOING TO JOB PARLEY

Mayor John S. Herron and Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang are to attend a conference Wednesday in Washington to discuss the formation of local boards under the Civil Works Administration recently created by President Roosevelt.

The Mayor yesterday received a telegram from Harry L. Hopkins inviting him to the conference and stressing the importance of co-operation between city and county officials in the formation of local boards.

The purpose of the Civil Works Administration is to give work to 4,000,000 people.

WIDOW'S TRIAL GOES TO JURY

his first witness after he had told the jury that he would show that she, meekest of women, had acted in self-defense after her husband had made vile suggestions to her and had threatened her with a knife.

TELLS OF CHILDREN

Mrs. Miller constantly rolled a handkerchief in a ball in her hand as she testified. She told that she had two children by her first husband, Gertrude and Ernest, 21, and two sets of twins by Miller, one of the older girls having died.

From the first she said Miller did not provide enough to keep the family. They lived several years in an old farmhouse and she raised garden truck which she sold to buy clothes for her babies. Later, she said, she did washing and cleaning at various homes in Squirrel Hill to provide for them.

The morning of the killing, she said, she went downstairs with her empty pocketbook and appealed to Miller for money. She said he asked her why she didn't go out and earn money. She told him she was not well enough.

'AN EASY WAY'

She continued:

"He suggested an 'easy' way for me to make money. I asked him what he meant and he said:

"'With other men.'

"Then he brandished the bread knife and threatened to cut my heart out. He had the door to the stairway blocked and suddenly I thought of a pistol I had taken from my son and hidden in an old trunk in the cellar. I got it to frighten him. I was trapped and desperate."

Earlier the trial had witnessed the unusual procedure of the state calling three young children to the witness stand to testify against their mother. Assistant District Attorney B. Meredith Reid, the prosecutor, prefaced this by explaining to the jury of seven women and five men that the state had no other witnesses.

Mrs. Miller sat with hands folded in her lap while Dorothy, 14, and William and Laura, twins, 12, told of hearing the shots and rushing downstairs meeting their mother with a gun in her hand on the way up and finding their father crumpled on the kitchen floor.

They testified that their mother, after shooting Miller, had gone up to her room and sat reading a Bible when the police came.

MINERS TO VOTE BY PLANTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Senator Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, said last night the board has decided to hold elections in the captive mines of Western Pennsylvania by mines rather than districts.

The steel companies, owners of the mines, agreed with the President their miners should have an opportunity to vote for representatives for collective bargaining, and that the companies would recognize whatever representatives the miners chose, whether union officials, company unions, or individuals.

Wagner said the elections probably would be held within two weeks. All the details have not been worked out, he said, after a conference with union officials and representatives of the steel companies.

Anthracite Miner Bombed in Strike

SCRANTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—An explosion of dynamite early today blew a porch off the home of John Selesky, North Scranton, and broke many windows in the building.

Selesky is a miner for the Hudson Coal Company and refused to join the strike called by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania. State and city authorities placed additional officers on duty as a result of acts of violence yesterday and last night. Three Scranton policemen were attacked by pickets.

HARD COAL MEN REJECT PEACE

International News Service.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 10.—The district board of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania today rejected the proposals of Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, for settlement of the insurgent strike in the northern anthracite coal regions.

Wagner offered to send a fact-finding committee into District No. 1 if picketing ceased and men with jobs were permitted to return to work. It was turned down because it contained no guarantee that strikers would regain their positions, Thomas Maloney, district president of the insurgent union, said.

SCRANTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Seven pickets were taken to hospitals and a score others went home with bruised and battered heads today after a clash between state police and pickets of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania at the Johnson mine, Dickson City.

Troopers were rushed into Dickson City when the pickets, several hundred strong, attacked miners on their way to work.

WEIRTON STEEL ACCUSED AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The National Labor Board today said it will send a representative to Weirton, W. Va., Monday, to investigate new charges made by employes of the Weirton Steel Company against company officials.

The complaints that the company is discharging workers in violation of its agreement with the Labor Board and otherwise using "coercion and intimidation" were submitted to the board by Representative Ramsay (Dem.) of West Virginia.

Ramsay said he asked the board to investigate because he feared there would be another strike at the plant unless steps were taken speedily to prevent one.

A strike of workers at the plant last month was called off when Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the company, agreed at a conference with the Labor Board to take back the strikers without discrimination and to permit the Labor Board to supervise an election of workers' representatives in December.

Holmes Finds NRA Changes 'Nothing To Howl About'

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Yale News, in an interview with Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired justice of the United States Supreme Court, quotes him as saying changes under the NRA are "nothing to howl about." He was quoted as saying:

"There always have been changes in the interpretations laid on the Constitution, and there always will be.

"The developments in the last few months are nothing to howl about."

The paper says Mr. Holmes "seemed not at all perturbed" over "recent controversies over the constitutionality of the NRA."

DRIVE STARTED TO MAKE NRA PERMANENT

Clyde Kelly Predicts Perpetual Rule Over Industry

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The stage was being set today for a battle to make the NRA permanent.

Representative Clyde Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who participated in the first conference on a law for control of business, predicted Congress will make the principles of the NRA, including suspension of anti-trust laws, permanent legislation.

Others backers of the recovery act have joined to make the fight, despite the fact that the NRA was created as an emergency under a law limited to two years.

BORAH OPPOSED

The question was brought to the fore when Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, characterized the suggestion of Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, that the codes will become permanent as "a serious mistake." Borah has fought suspension of the anti-trust law. Kelly said:

"I feel certain Johnson and Donald Richberg, general counsel of the NRA, know that the basic principles of the law must be continued, and I believe President Roosevelt recognizes that fact also."

Asserting there is "not the slightest doubt that the fundamental principles of the NRA will be made permanent," Kelly added:

"Modifications will be made to meet the needs, but we shall never return to the unbridled cut-throat competition which plunged us into this depression and kept us in it. Business must realize that it is affected with a public interest and the government cannot shirk its plain duty to assist industry in promoting the common good."

LOANS TO INDUSTRY

Possible modifications, Kelly said, include the writing by Congress of a general industrial code, which would include a general minimum wage and restriction on hours of labor, with suspension of anti-trust laws for code industries.

Direct loans to industry may be authorized by Congress next winter, Kelly said. A similar declaration was made recently by Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic House leader.

Financial aid to industries bearing heavier costs under the recovery program will lead to direct loans unless the present mortgage plan of the RFC is successful, Kelly said.

The declaration of Kelly is expected to be the signal for a drive by friends of the NRA to put through permanent legislation.

Army Officer's Case Set for Saturday

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Hearing on application of Lieut. John Murrel, former West Point football star, for release from custody on a federal charge of criminal assault was set yesterday by Federal Judge R. J. McMillan for Saturday. The Fort Sam Houston officer is accused of having attacked Blanche Ralls, October 22.

MILLIONS LOST AS BANKERS 'GO HOLLYWOOD'

Senate Probers Told of Costly Drive to Oust Fox

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—An ill-fated venture of Wall street bankers, who tried to "go Hollywood" by invading the motion picture industry, was revealed today by Harley L. Clarke, Chicago capitalist, at the Senate banking inquiry.

Clarke told how he obtained the aid of Albert H. Wiggin, former head of the Chase National Bank, to wrest control of Fox Films from William Fox. It proved a costly battle, ultimately bringing bankruptcy to the private banking firm of Pynchon and Company, and heavy losses to other participants.

Clarke, who amassed a fortune in the public utility field, and Wiggin, who took a king's ransom out of Wall street, struck a financial toboggan when they tried to become movie czars.

STORY OF LOSSES

General Theaters Equipment, Inc., was organized in 1929 by Wiggins and his associates to help finance their fight against William Fox. They organized a syndicate of bankers first, with Pynchon & Co., as managers, to underwrite an issue of 300,000 shares of stock. They borrowed $1,047,200 from the Chase bank in December, 1929, to finance the syndicate. The stock was floated at $32.

The syndicate also floated a $6,000,000 bond issue. This was retired in April, 1930, when the syndicate floated a $30,000,000 bond issue. The bonds collapsed from an original price of $99.50 to $40 within the year. The syndicate was caught with a lot of the bonds.

In May, 1930, Fox opponents organized a new syndicate to float 430,000 shares of G. T. E. stock at $48 a share. The participants were given a credit of $15,377,812 by the Chase Bank, all guaranteed by G. T. E. stock.

GET NEW BLOOD

By that time, Wiggin, Clarke and Dodge wanted new blood in the deal. They drew Martin J. Insull, Arthur Reynolds, president of the Continental National Bank of Chicago; W. F. Ingold, Sr., Charles A. Monroe, Charles B. Wiggin, all wealthy men, into the syndicate. The Chase Securities Corporation guaranteed 41,175 shares, while Pynchon & Co. was liable for 57,645 shares.

Late in 1930, with the stock declining in value, the load grew too heavy for Pynchon & Co. Wiggin rushed to his assistance. With the aid of the Chase bank, he saved the brokerage house by relieving it of some of the G. T. E. and Fox Film stock.

This rescue only postponed the collapse of Pynchon & Co. It went to the wall later, being suspended from the New York Stock Exchange with obligations totaling $40,000,000. Its failure was attributed directly to the decline in G. T. E. and Fox Film prices.

Senate investigators had information indicating Wiggin carried the bank into the deals.

GANNA WALSKA . . . U. S. BUILDS GOOD HUSBANDS, HOMES

Mme. Walska, who reiterated as she sailed for Europe that her flying trip to America really was after all just to see to it that the roof and plumbing in her locked-up home were properly repaired—not to help her former husband, rich Harold F. McCormick, in the $1,500,000 suit against him. She explained, too, that the U. S. "builds" good husbands and good houses, too.

Secret Bride

ELINOR SMITH

ELINOR SMITH WED SECRETLY

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Elinor Smith, aviatrix, who formerly held altitude and endurance flight records, has been the secret bride of Assemblyman Patrick H. Sullivan, of the Eleventh Assembly District, July 30, it is revealed.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smith, of Hicksville, L. I., said the couple were married at St. Ignatius Church in Hicksville by the Rev. George Bittermann. It was an elopement, but the bride's parents were told of the marriage soon afterward.

Miss Smith, discussing her marriage, said she will continue her radio announcing and flying, and added:

"I wanted a bridal bouquet so bad, but I was afraid to buy one, because then our secret would have been out. So I just picked some flowers from the garden of the St. Ignatius Church as we were going in."

PROBE OF LOANS TO CUBA ENDED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Senate Banking and Currency Committee today decided in executive session that it would not make public the State Department records dealing with Chase National Bank loans to Cuba.

Some of these loans were made privately to former President Gerardo Machado.

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, the committee chairman, announced the Cuban phase of the Chase bank investigation "now is officially closed."

Former Follies Girl Wins Divorce Decree

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Mrs. Robert E. Booth, former Follies dancer known as Hazel Land, was granted an emergency decree in divorce from her broker-husband yesterday. She charged cruelty.

CUBAN REVOLT CRUSHED; 150 LOSE LIVES

Rebel Leader Killed, 300 Wounded as Fortress Falls

HAVANA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A bullet-riddled Havana counted her dead at 150 and her wounded at 300 today and strove to resume peace after surviving two days of rebellion.

Government soldiers stood guard over the survivors of an A. B. C. radical secret society force which fortified itself yesterday in grim old Atares Fortress and fought until federal artillery fire forced their surrender.

Secretary of War Guiteras estimated the dead at 150 and wounded at 300. Col. Manuel Velasco, of the general staff, said he did not know and was unable to estimate the casualties.

The defeated insurgents were lodged in Principe and Cabanas Fortresses. They were well cared for, apparently, but they faced court-martial.

TRAFFIC RESUMES

Street cars, buses and taxis appeared again this morning on the streets from which they were driven yesterday by heavy rifle, machine gun and artillery fire.

Other forms of commerce hesitantly resumed as businessmen attempted to renew their methods of livelihood.

The fighting men of Col. Fulgencio Batista, by their work yesterday, smashed a rebellion that shook the foundations of the regime of President Grau San Martin.

In morgues, hospitals and elsewhere lay the dead and wounded—gruesome reminder of the strife in which rebel troops and opposition civilian groups sought to restore former Provisional President Manuel de Cespedes to power.

Among the dead was the picturesque veteran rebel of the hills, Juan Blas Hernandez, who lost his life in his first engagement within the city.

WOMAN FIGHTER SHOT

And, among the wounded, was at least one woman—blonde, small and about 20 years old—who with several others entered the Atares Fortress with the rebels shortly before dawn yesterday, a few hours before Col. Batista's loyal troops opened the devastating bombardment which resulted in the surrender of some 1,500 rebels.

The only remaining obstacle to complete tranquility, neutral observers believed today, would be the continued sniping by scattered bands of rebels.

Government authorities were confident however, that they had the situation well in hand, and it appeared that no foreign intervention was contemplated. The U. S. S. Wyoming steamed toward Havana, but she was expected to remain outside the harbor on her arrival early Saturday.

President Grau told reporters there was no truth in reports that rebels were massing in the interior of the island.

JOHNSON FAILS TO FIND CRITICS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—When Gen. Hugh S. Johnson headed into the Mid-West from Washington he regarded his mission grimly as one to do battle with critics of the NRA which he administers. Today as he prepared for a night address at Tulsa, Okla., he harbored the feeling of being a wildly acclaimed ambassador of the President seeking for critics he said he could not find.

Assuring he had failed to encounter the expected opposition in visits to "every so-called disaffected center except Sioux Falls," Johnson termed his trip "unnecessary and wrong." He told an audience here last night:

"I know something about the great Middle West. I saw it respond to a war which, generally speaking, it did not believe in. I know that whenever there is a great national principle to be conserved—regardless of personal interest—it can be counted to play the game."

The administrator urged patience and co-operation with the administration in its farm policy insisting that increased buying power is bound to bring benefits to the farmer.

Mother Goes to Jail To Keep 'Stolen' Baby

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Rather than divulge the whereabouts of her 4-year-old daughter, whose custody was given to others a year ago, Mrs. Eunice Patrone, tearfully went to jail in contempt of court.

Her sentence was for "until such time as she shall purge herself of contempt by producing or causing to be produced the child," or until further order of the court or other process of law.

Although Mrs. Patrone's statements to the court conflicted when she first said she didn't know where the child was and later said she had "done this for the child's good," the mother in a tearful plea yesterday to Judge Arthur Dolan, of Probate Court, asked that she be allowed legal custody of her daughter.

Her plea rejected, Mrs. Patrone bowed her head and then said:

"All right, then, I'll go to jail for the sake of my baby."

The child, Jean Marie, was given by her mother into care of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nickerson of East Boston, when she was 20 days old. The Nickersons were allowed to adopt the girl.

Recently Mrs. Patrone took Jean from the Nickerson home. That was the last seen of the child.

Walska Thinks America 'Builds' Good Husbands

By ALICE HUGHES
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The dashing Ganna Walska, daringly decolletaged underneath a squirrel-lined, green-plaid cape and a blanket of orchids and gardenias, elbowed her way past reporters on the liner Bremen, which sailed late midnight, and went to her suite. There she discussed the breach of promise action brought against her former husband, Harold McCormick, by Mrs. Nelson Doubleday, who is asking $1,500,000 balm.

Mme. Walska said America "builds" good husbands and added that if she ever married again it will be an American. Then she declared, anent the McCormick suit:

"I am not on the witness stand for my former husband, nor for the lady who is suing him. I came to America to arrange for repairs to the roof and plumbing at my home (at Ninety-fourth street and Park avenue) and I have done so. It has taken a week. And now I am going back to Paris, to resume rehearsals with Chaliapin for my concert in America in January.

"In spite of all nasty implications, I really came here to have my roof fixed.

"Yes, the pipes had really burst. But American houses are so well constructed that nothing was damaged. America builds good houses and provides good husbands.

"I shall not marry again, but if I do my new husband will be an American."

SUITOR HELD AFTER SHOOTING OF GIRL ON BUSY CORNER

MAGISTRATE'S DOG AIDS IN CAPTURE

Typist in Carrick High School Hurt In Shoulder

In a Central Police Station cell today, with his ardor cooled, is Roy Kreahling, 23, of 45 Semicir street, who yesterday in a suitor's rage, police say, shot down the girl who spurned him as she waited for a street car on a busy downtown corner.

Mr. Kreahling

In the Allegheny General Hospital with a bullet hole in her shoulder, the girl, Madeline Shade, 28, of 1905 Marmaduke street, was reported recovering. The bullet went through her shoulder and lodged in her purse she was carrying under her arm.

Detectives testified in Central Police Court today that Kreahling approached the girl at Sixth street and Duquesne way and said:

"If you don't come out with me, you won't go out with any other fellow. I'm going to shoot you."

The youth fled after the shooting, only to be captured a block away by Police Magistrate George C. Metzier and his Great Dane, "Bismark," who had joined in the chase. The magistrate disarmed him.

Kreahling would only testify:

"I don't know why I shot her."

He was held over until Miss Shade is able to appear.

The shooting culminated an acquaintance which began some time ago in a wallpaper factory where he was a shipping clerk and she was a stenographer, police said. Miss Shade admitted, police say, that she had turned a deaf ear to Kreahling's atempts to "date" her and that he had said he would "do something about it."

Miss Shade is now a stenographer in the Carrick High School.

Dog That Captured Fleeing Gunman

MAGISTRATE GEORGE C. METZIER WITH HIS GREAT DANE "BISMARCK," SIX MONTHS OLD

"Bismarck," the young pet who with his master leaped from a police radio car, happily passing the very scene at Sixth street and Duquesne way as Miss Madeline Shade, 28, Marmaduke street, was shot. "Bismarck" caught the coat-tails of fleeing Roy Krehling, held him for pursuing police, who reported his confession to firing the shot. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

HUNT FOR BOY, FATHER PUSHED

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—As police yesterday still sought positive identification of the body of a six-year-old boy found on the rubbish dumps at Princeton Monday, a new search was begun for Lee Emery, of Valley Stream, L. I., who has been missing with his son, Alfred, 6, since July 24.

Emery's wife, Mrs. Grace Emery, 40, yesterday viewed the body which lay in the same morgue, and in the same room, where Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was summoned to identify the body of his two-year-old son after the kidnaping two years ago.

Mrs. Emery fainted at her first glimpse of the body, but on recovery examined it more closely. In the end she left, without claiming the body as that of her missing son.

The mother said she would await word of the search for her husband who, when she saw him last, told her he was going to take the boy for a ride in his automobile. The couple is estranged.

U. S. ACE JAILED IN SHANGHAI

International News Service.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10. — Bert Hall, American aviator famous throughout the Far East, today was sentenced to a term of two and one-half years in prison for fraud.

Hall was convicted of defrauding Ho Chu-Kuo, a northern Chinese general, of $10,000 in an arms deal.

The American flier will serve his term on McNeill's Island. Hall for years has been a free-lance commercial pilot in China, often aiding in one way or another the various army chieftains in their warfare.

GARAVINI GIVEN CHANCE TO LIVE

Andy Garavini, hacker, shot in "the feud of the husbands," has an even chance to recover from that bullet wound in the abdomen, attaches at Mercy Hospital reported today.

Garavini was shot during a clash with Iggy Swartz, bookmaker, outside the William Penn Hotel early yesterday. Looking on was Garavini's wife, who married him after divorcing Swartz.

Police report that after Swartz had shot the hacker, Mrs. Garavini picked up a pistol and tossed it at the fleeing bookmaker.

Swartz, under arrest, is being held pending the outcome of Garavini's wound.

Texas' Body Leaves Chicago for Gotham

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The body of Texas Guinan, night club entertainer who died last Sunday at Vancouver, B. C., resumed its journey to Broadway this morning after a brief pause here between trains.

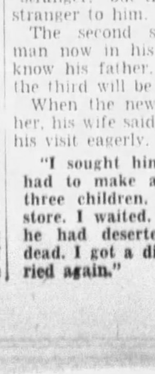
The body will lie in state at Campbell's undertaking establishment on Broadway, until Monday morning. The funeral service will be at St. Malách's Church.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This country is coming back. The best indication was old Kentucky. She disposed of sixteen at Tuesday's elections.



Will Rogers

That's a mi,, ty good showing on what's called an off-election year, 'specially when you consider that they needn't have voted at all, for prohibition had already been repealed by 36 states.

Old Kentucky has a law which gives the doctors the benefit of the doubt. They won't count votes or bodies till the next day. Clubs were wielded, and heads were disorganized in New York, too.

This is all a good omen. It shows we are get'ng out of our effeminate period of voting, where you do nothing but vote.

Led by the spirit of old Kentucky, we are returnin' to American principles, all but the Carolinas. Yours, WILL.

'Enoch Arden' Returns, Wife Rewed 3 Times

SEATTLE, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Seventeen years of wandering ended, a modern "Enoch Arden" is home again.

Years which saw him in the World War, interned in a Russian prison camp and exiled to Siberia; escape, and more wandering—are over for Fred H. Jacobs.

But back "home" he finds his old world has passed away. His wife has divorced him, believing him long dead, and since that time has remarried three times. His three sons are grown and with children of their own. There is a daughter, not his.

His aged mother still is living.

In 1916, Jacobs walked out of his home without a word. A long search failed to reveal trace of him. Then, last Tuesday, he dropped in on his sister, Mrs. Hilda Hilton.

Binding her to keep his secret, he revealed his identity and asked word of his children. Next he visited his mother.

The oldest son, William, came into the room to meet the "stranger," but the father was no stranger to him.

The second son, however, a man now in his twenties, didn't know his father. A meeting with the third will be held soon.

When the news was broken to her, his wife said she would await his visit eagerly. She said:

"I sought him for a time. I had to make a living for my three children. I kept a little store. I waited. I believed that he had deserted us and was dead. I got a divorce and married again."

U. S. and Russia Showing Geneva Jig-Time Steps

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The elapsed time between America and Russia is 16 years.

The corrected time is 30 minutes. That's Litvinoff asked for.

That's quick and sudden diplomacy. And much better than the Geneva hennery, which was all cackling and no eggs.

Litvinoff comes here loaded with the caviar of goodwill. If he brings 280,000,000 people together he is throwing the world's largest basket party.

All we know about Russia is that the wolves chase the droshkys. A droshky is an Irish jaunting car with a beard. The only way to get rid of the wolves is to throw them a chubby passenger. But we have Litvinoff's word that it ain't their national sport.

Why should anything like that keep two great nations apart?

Family Flees Fire In Laneville Home

FREEPORT, Pa., Nov. 10.—Fire swept through the home of Raymond Skiles, forcing Skiles, his wife, and their 15-year-old daughter, Gwendolyn, to flee on ice and snow-covered streets, at Laneville, near here, early today.

The fire started in a garage at the rear of the Skiles property and destroyed two automobiles and a truck. Loss was estimated at $5,000. Thirty volunteer firemen from Freeport and Natrona fought the flames after laying 1,800 feet of hose from Freeport.

$1,635 PAYROLL LOST ON STREET

With $1,635 in his overcoat pocket, Otto R. Weinert, proprietor of the Red Star Transfer Company, walked out of the Workingman's Savings Bank and Trust Company at East Ohio street and Madison avenue today.

A half-block distant he stepped into his automobile and prepared to drive to his office and meet the payroll.

He felt for the package of bills; it wasn't there.

It still isn't.

Later a little girl told bank clerks she had seen a woman pick up a package outside the bank and walk away.

Weinert isn't certain whether he was robbed, or whether the package dropped from his coat. He had seen a man, who immediately afterward boarded a street car, loitering outside the bank.

At any rate somebody besides Weinert got the money.

RELIEF WORKER DIES IN CRASH

Miss Marjorie Sample, 22, of 914 Ross street, Springdale, died last night in Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum when the auto in which she was riding was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at Creighton.

Miss Sample, a state welfare worker, was returning home after investigating a relief case. A standing southbound train obstructed her view of the crossing and her machine was struck by a northbound train and crushed between the two trains.

TWO INVALIDS SAVED FROM FLAMES

Score Driven Into Snow-Swept Streets By Fires

More than a score of scantily-clad men, women and children, two of them bedfast, were driven from their homes into snow-swept streets early today when fire damaged two adjoining dwellings in Avondale street and a double blaze threatened a Melwood avenue apartment.

A dozen families were forced to the street when fire broke out for the second time within six hours in a three-story apartment building at 322 Melwood street.

When Francisco, faithful dog companion of Robert Nelson Gay, blind University of Pittsburgh student, became confused in the noise and excitement, Guy was led to safety by William H. McCormick, a resident in the apartment building.

When the fire first broke out McCormick carried bed-fast Mrs. Harriett Kerr to safety from her first floor apartment. Mrs. Kerr held her infant son as she was borne from the building.

Then McCormick went back into the building and helped two other women to the street, other residents in the building said.

The flames began in an incinerator in the basement of the building and worked upwards into the first floor, but firemen succeeded in keeping the fire from the upper floors. Damage was then estimated at $3,000 by firemen.

Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning the flames broke out anew, and this time they worked into the first floor apartment of Ben Unger and his family, who had vacated the apartment when the first fire broke out. Firemen labored two hours before the last trace of the fire had died.

TRAPPED BY FLAMES

Trapped on the second floor of their burning home at 5544 Avondale street, Harry Sikov, assistant city paymaster, his wife, Mary, and their daughter, Beatrice, were assisted to safety by firemen who erected ladders at the rear of the Sikov home. Mrs. Sikov was slightly injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berkovitz and their 1½-year-old son, Jay, also occupants of the Sikox home, made their way to the street unaided.

The fire starting in the Sikov home was discovered by Mrs. Sikov, who screamed. Her outcry aroused Helen Wisniewski, maid of the family of Joseph Tobias, living in the adjoining dwelling at 5548 Avondale street.

Miss Wisniewski turned in an alarm as the flames spread from the Sikov home to the Tobias home.

In the latter home were Joseph Tobias, his two daughters, Miss Sarah Tobias and Mrs. Rose Lipson; her two children, Burton Lipson, 5, and Leona, 11; Miss Charlotta Levy, 15, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arthur. Miss Levy was confined to her bed by illness.

The damage, according to firemen, was estimated at $2,500.

WOMAN SAVED IN GARAGE FIRE

An aged invalided woman was carried from her wheel chair to safety during a fire which destroyed an auto repair shop and threatened destruction of a nearby dwelling in Perrysville avenue, today.

Mrs. Anna Gordon, 67, alone in her home at 1805 Federal street, was taken to safety by Patrolman Andrew Judas.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the auto repair shop of J. H. Beckey, of 6060 Perrysville avenue, and was carried by high winds to the porch of the Gordon home.

Battalion Chief Alex Reed estimated damage at $2,000.

McNair New Uncle Now; Infant Named for Him

MISS LOUISE YARD DONALD DANE M'NAIR SHUPE

MASTER SHUPE, AGED WEEK-AND-A-DAY, UNCLE NEXT MAYOR

Mayor-Elect Hasn't Had Time to See Nephew Yet

William N. McNair not only became Pittsburgh's new Mayor, but he also got a new nephew within a week. A baby boy was born to his sister, Mrs. Horace Shupe, last Friday in the Magee Hospital.

Donald Dane McNair Shupe—named for Uncle McNair and maybe a future mayor himself—weighed 7 pounds and 14 ounces at birth.

As yet McNair said that he has not had a chance to get a look at his newest nephew because of being busy with the city election. He pointed out, however:

"I heard that it's a very good looking baby. I expect to get out to the hospital in a day or so."

Nurses at the hospital said they did not know until election day that Mrs. Shupe is McNair's sister. On that day they noticed a placard in her hospital room, reading:

"McNair for Mayor."

Crippled Son Saved In Philadelphia Fire

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—A helpless 7-year-old boy, his body in a plaster cast because of a hip injury, was rescued by his father early today when flames swept their home in the Oak Lane section, burning them and six other members of the family.

The father, Nathan Berkowitz, 40, formerly of Pottstown, and the boy, Leonard, 7, were badly burned.

TEAM GUARDING INJURED STAR

WAYNESBURG, Nov. 10. — (AP.)—It's a losing proposition—sleep-losing proposition — for members of the Morris Township High School football team, but they're showing they can be good losers.

They are dividing the task of standing nightly vigil at the hospital bedside of Paul Thompson, star halfback, who was seriously injured several weeks ago in a fall from a second-floor window while walking in his sleep.

Thompson fears he may walk in his sleep again while convalescing, so his teammates have volunteered to stay at his bedside and guard him. Several weeks ago they all volunteered blood for a transfusion. Because of Thompson's injury the team canceled all remaining games this season.

FALL IN SHAFT BRINGS $20,000

A jury in common pleas court today awarded $20,000 damages to Leo J. Flanagan, of 319 North St. Clair street, who fell into an open elevator shaft and broke his back.

The verdict was against J. G. McCrory & Company. Flanagan was represented by Attorney H. Fred Mercer, with Judge Elder W. Marshall sitting on the case.

Charging the company, conducting a store at 6023 Penn avenue, was negligent in providing safety appliances, Flanagan sued for $100,000.

The accident occured March 11, 1931.

4 DIE AS PLANE CRASHES INTO CANYON

Girl Dares Flaming Gasoline to Save Passengers

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Crashing into a hillside within five minutes after it left the airport here, a tri-motored transport plane carried four persons, including Dr. Robert C. Coffey, famous Portland surgeon, to death late last night. Six persons were injured, none seriously.

The plane, operated by United Air Lines and Western Air Express, fell on its side and caught fire. All passengers on that side were killed. The pilot was blinded by an unusually heavy fog as he circled for altitude.

LIST OF DEAD

Dr. Coffey was recognized in medical circles as one of the greatest in his field, surgery of the kidney.

The other dead were H. A. Troftler, Chicago; Herman Cohn, Portland, and Al Davis, Seattle, pilot.

The injured are Robert E. Pelouze, Portland; Dr. John Straumfjord, Portland, assistant to Dr. Coffey; Floyd Hart, Medford, Ore.; H. B. Woodworth, Oakland, Cal., co-pilot; M. E. J. Powers, Glendale, Cal., and Miss Libby Wurgaft, stewardess, Oakland, Cal.

Dr. Straumfjord said:

"It was foggy and I could not see much. It was not long until there were two distinct jolts.

"I had no sensation of falling, but in a fraction of a second, it seemed, the plane crashed.

"I was thrown against the panel behind the pilot seat. I grabbed for Dr. Coffey, but he was limp. I took him by the shoulders and tried to lift him, but I could not. In some way I got out of the ship."

DARE FLAMES

The heroism of Miss Wurgaft, who had worked for the air line only two weeks, was one of the outstanding memories of the survivors. She and Co-Pilot Woodworth, despite peril to their lives from flaming gasoline, entered the burning cabin several times to save the occupants.

It was more than two hours after the crash in the isolated canyon before Woodworth and Hart could find their way through the tangled underbrush to a telephone to report the accident. Ambulances could get no closer than a mile from the plane. All the survivors except Pelouze were able to walk to the ambulance.

DORIS KENYON ASKS DIVORCE

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—In a brief complaint filed today, Doris Kenyon, beautiful blonde star of the stage and films, asked for a divorce from Arthur E. Hopkins, Syracuse, N. Y., real estate broker, from whom she separated one month and 24 days after their wedding.

She alleged Hopkins complained about her conduct and criticized her public career. He harassed her about her stage and film work until she became "sick and hysterical," she alleged.

The actress, who was the widow of Milton Sills, screen star, married Hopkins at her home in Brentwood Heights, June 14, last.

Weather Conditions.

The low that was centered over the lower lakes yesterday morning is now in the far Northwest. It produced light snowfall generally over the northeastern section of the country, and heavy snow over the northern portion of Western Pennsylvania. At Franklin, Pa., the ground is covered to a depth of 10 inches and at Meadville 14 inches. The weather is still cloudy over the lake region, and the states north of the Ohio River, while over most of the remainder of the country the skies are clear. There was a considerable drop in temperature over the country east of the Mississippi River, while over the West temperatures are rising.

PRIVATE PLANES AIM OF U. S.

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Minimum production of 10,000 low-priced planes for private use is the goal of a movement launched by Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Commerce Department.

Lack of such a plane is retarding growth of the private flying business, Vidal declared in announcing his plan.

Pointing out there are 14,000 licensed pilots, 11,000 student pilots and 8,500 licensed mechanics in the United States as compared with only 7,000 licensed aircraft, Vidal has circularized them to determine how many would purchase small planes if made available in the near future.

If a favorable reaction results, a first volume of the 10,000 planes will be planned by the industry.

The planes would be small low-winger monoplanes, selling for around $700 and carrying two passengers. They would be constructed of a new steel alloy, powered with an eight-cylinder motor and equipped with a geared propeller.

An outstanding feature would be the landing speed of 25 miles per hour, with "air brakes" in the form of flaps.

The cost of operation would be less than that of the average automobile, Vidal said. The low original cost would be made possible through mass production.

PUPIL'S 'GIRL' HIS MOTHER

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—They summoned Freshman Edward Hunter before the sophomore wall at Washington University and announced:

"The charge is fussing; the penalty two swats."

Protested Hunter:

"But I wasn't fussing (talking with a girl). That was my mother."

"Make 'em hard for that."

That was the order a husky sophomore, as he maneuvered the victim into position for the sentence.

Today Hunter went about the campus with a copy of the matriculation card of Sophomore (Mrs.) Maud Hunter. Besides attending classes regularly, Mrs. Hunter plays first violin in the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra.

Ohio Marine Dies On Duty in China

PEIPING, China, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Gunnery Sergt. Jack Albert Stone, of the United States Marine Corps, a native of Newark, O., died here yesterday of pneumonia.

He served in the Marine Corps 18 years, during which he established what his superiors called an exemplary record. He was one of the outstanding rifle shots in the entire corps.

KANSAS SEEKS OUSTER IDEAS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Kansas, seeking pointers as to impeachment, has queried Oklahoma, an old hand at the game, but the information will cost $10 a throw.

With impeachment action possible as a result of the Kansas forged bond scandal, Clarence W. Miller, Secretary of the State Senate, has asked for copies of the journals containing impeachment proceedings against former Govs. J. C. Walton and Henry S. Johnston, of Oklahoma, who were removed.

Said Miss Una Lee Roberts, Assistant Secretary of State for Oklahoma:

"I'll tell him where he can get it for $10 a book."

Traveling Salesmen To Discuss Code

An NRA code for commercial and traveling salesmen will be discussed at a rally to be held at 2 o'clock Sunday in the Fort Pitt Hotel by the Western Pennsylvania Commercial Men's Association.

A new uniform contract for all salesmen is proposed, according to Lee Wiseman, of 2324 Pittock street, secretary.

'ROSIE,' BOBCAT, TURNS 'MEANIE'

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Rosie, a California bobcat, born in a trap and educated at the University of California, has become too mean to merit further higher education and has been sent back to the woods.

Rosie has been nurtured for the five months of her life in the home of Eustace L. Sumner, biologist at the university, and has mixed on terms of equality with Sumner's house cats.

But Rosie tired of long naps on Mrs. Sumner's lap, tired of deep dishes of cream and even grew bored with the society of the feline menage that inhabits the Sumner home.

She grew surly and disdained trips in the Sumner car, especially screened for Rosie's comfort and safety. In short Rosie developed into an old meanie.

The last straw was when it became necessary for Sumner to wear thick gloves and padded clothing whenever he wanted to play with his sharp-clawed pet.

So this week Sumner donned his gloves and armor for the last time, dumped Rosie into a basket after a struggle, and drove her to a wild section of the San Francisco Peninsula, where he turned her loose.

VETERANS AGAIN IN BIG PARADE TOMORROW

Fifteen years after that first thrilling wave of shouts and tears that greeted the close of the World War, Pittsburgh district citizens will again remind themselves of that Armistice Day when they commemorate it with marching and banqueting tomorrow.

The golden triangle will once more be lined with patriotic thousands to cheer the marchers in the annual parade scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m.

In line will be 15,000 veterans, with 14 bands and colorful delegations of drum and bugle corps. They will be led by John Bingham, chief marshal; Edward Crump, chief of staff, and Thomas Coughtrie, adjutant, and a staff of 100 of the city's distinguished veterans.

ANNUAL BALL

It will be a gay time throughout the county and will last far into the night.

Fifty American Legion posts will unite in holding their annual Armistice night ball in William Penn Hotel. This is one of the most important legion sessions of the year and is held for the benefit of the legion's charity program throughout the county.

Another outstanding gathering will be the 80th Division veterans' banquet at the Plaza Restaurant, sponsored by the Gen. Lloyd M. Brett Post. Gen. E. G. Peyton, national commander of the 80th Division Veterans' Association, and Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, war-time commander of the division, will be guests of honor. Mayor John S. Herron will be one of the speakers.

111TH CELEBRATION

Another military ball will be given by the 111th Infantry Veterans' Association in the English room of Fort Pitt Hotel, under the chairmanship of Gordon L. Clawson. This will climax a two-day reunion, which opens with a banquet tonight.

Capt. Robert S. Cain, county treasurer, will give his fifth annual banquet in the evening at Fort Pitt Hotel, carrying out a promise he made in France to members of Company H of the 111th Infantry of the 28th Division.

Members of Company E, 111th Infantry, will hold a reunion dinner in Dimling's Restaurant at 2:30 p. m., and Corp. H. O. Diller Post, V. W. P., will give a party at the post home, 132 Prospect street, at 8 p. m.

PARTY TONIGHT

Many of the veterans will not wait until Saturday to begin their celebrating. Arthur C. Woestchoff Post No. 435, V. F. W., will give a dancing party tonight at Webster Hall, and officers will be installed tonight by Albert G. Baker Post 86, V. F. W., in the post home.

For students at the University of Pittsburgh, Armistice Day will have a double significance, as J. G. Quick, registrar, has announced no classes will be held Saturday.

Fort Black Post 538, American Legion, Hazelwood, will holds its first annual dance tomorrow night in Barkers Hall, Second avenue.

BRIGADE TO MARCH

Members of the Swift Mission Brigade will participate in the Armistice Day parade in New Brighton.

The annual charity ball of 10 civic and fraternal societies in Crafton and Ingram will be held at the Chartiers Country Club tomorrow night.

Armistice Day services for Pittsburgh Post 49, Jewish War Veterans of the United States, will be held Sunday morning in Rodef Shalom Temple, with the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson speaking.

Movie Actor Flees 150-Day Jail Term

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Orders were sent throughout Southern California by the police here last night for the arrest of Emmett Flynn, motion picture actor and director.

He escaped from the city jail, where he was serving a 150-day term for drunkenness. Given privileges as a trusty, he walked away, authorities said.

Fur Robe Stolen From Parked Auto

Chinese Reds Sack Towns, Slay 20,000

KIUKIANG, China, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Chinese reports today said Communists had massacred 20,000 persons in their recent seizure of Hsuiting, Hsuiduan, Wanyuan and Chenkou.

An orgy of plunder and terror, the reports added, followed the Communist victories, the invaders seizing money, 20,000 rifles and 10,000,000 rounds of ammunition. The government was said to be making desperate efforts to retake the captured cities.

Falcons to Form Branch Tomorrow

Polish Falcons will organize a new branch in St. Michael's Hall, Third street, Sharpsburg, tomorrow night. Members of the South Side branches and the Falcon Art Club will conduct the ceremonies.

G. Pieprzny, chief national instructor, and Mrs. Leon Kozlowski will direct drills. Speakers will be F. J. Klosowicz, national secretary, and Mrs. A. L. Sikora-Drobna.

A. E. F. INCIDENT RECALLED HERE

The World War ceased officially at 11 a. m., November 11, 1918, for some 15 million men, but for one battery it lingered on for 11 minutes.

That was because the battery commander's watch was slow and his men, deafened by the blast of their own guns, could not, you might say, hear that awful silence which had settled over the Western Front.

So they blasted away at the German lines, hurling shell from their station in a field at Bethelain-Bille, 10 miles west of Verdun.

Nearby was the Third Corps observation group and in it was George S. Harrison, of Shady avenue.

Harrison photographed a howitzer of that lone battery and its gun crew, which may have fired the last shot of the conflict.

Films for Children In Museum Hall

Free motion pictures for children will be shown tomorrow at 2:15 p. m. in Carnegie Museum Lecture Hall. The pictures shown will be "The Romance of Glass" and "A Motor Boat Ramble."

FRANCE SEES GERMAN PERIL

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Opposition deputies in the Chamber, debating on the eve of Armistice Day, today pictured a war menace from a Germany they declared to be secretly re-arming.

Deputy Alfred Margaine referred to the American international policy which is understood here as adverse to entrance into any future foreign war and reproached the government for "alienating America in opposition to President Roosevelt's financial policy."

Pierre Taittinger likened Norman Davis, American ambassador-at-large, to "Pontius Pilate" washing his hands of the disarmament problem.

He charged Germany with working "day and night" to develop an "invisible army," which could "settle the fate of England in three weeks."

Lepine, Ex-Prefect Of Paris Police, Dies

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Louis Lepine, 87, former prefect of police in Paris and governor general of Algeria, died here today.

DENIAL OF PORT TO VETS' GIROS PROTESTED

The County Commissioners were unfair and unreasonable and disrespectable to war veterans affiliated with the National Economy League, when they prohibited the use of the County Airport to the fleet of autogiros sent here last week by the American Veterans' Association, local members of the league today charged.

In a letter to the County Commissioners, A. Rex. Flinn, chairman of the Western Pennsylvania branch of the league, criticized the three County Commissioners. The latter had refused the use of the field to the giros displaying banners asking voters to oppose Constitutional Amendment No. 4, for a state soldier bonus.

Carlton G. Ketchum, chairman of the veterans division of the league, and Norman A. Robinson, commander of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, also signed the letter, which said:

"It is humiliating to our citizens to know that the Commissioners forced a group of distinguished war veterans, who came here as the guests of an organization, including more than 2,000 Allegheny County veterans in its membership, to use a private landing field.

"Certainly your action was also lacking in respect to the disabled veterans of the World War, whose officers were at the airport to join in welcoming their fellow soldiers.

"Why should any responsible group of citizens be denied the right to present their case openly and fairly, according the same opportunity to those who disagree? Please explain your action for the benefit of our 25,000 members."

Salvationists Hold Service Tonight

A special service will be held in the Salvation Army auditorium, 425 Boulevard of the Allies, tonight as part of the national revival serivces. Selections by the Songster's Brigade and the band will feature at the services.

LIQUOR OUTPUT TO BE UNDER NRA CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt wants firm federal control of liquor when prohibition ends December 5.

He plans to keep taxes down to make bootlegging unprofitable and he intends to bring the industry under the government's program of control of production and distribution that applies to other industries.

This plan developed from a lengthy White House parley yesterday and was being rushed into final form today by a special cabinet committee and a group of experts.

To assure a supply and prevent profiteering, the President will sanction a relaxation in the embargo against liquor imports before December 5.

LIBERAL LICENSING

He also is approving a policy of liberal licensing of distillers so they may manufacture liquor to be held in bond until legal sales are permissable.

Attorney General Cummings, the government's law enforcement official, put the administration policy in these words:

"The spirit is to have orderly, decent procedure under terms which will discourage and make unprofitable the activities of bootleggers and law breakers.

"The thought is not to make the taxes too high, for that is an open invitation to bootleggers."

One cabinet officer who is a member of the special liquor control committee stated today that the administration would stand by the old tax of $1.10 a gallon on whisky. Other experts insisted this would be slightly raised.

NRA TO BE APPLIED

The Attorney General made it plain that the government is going to exercise its authority under the National Recovery Act and the Agriculture Adjustment Administration to control production and distribution of liquor.

This will be done to serve a double purpose, first, the administration expects it will bring the liquor industry into league with the government to stamp out bootlegging and protect dry states. Second, it is the belief of the government that this will force fair competition and keep prices down to legitimate levels.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department will focus its attention upon big time racketeers and "real criminals."

It is estimated that about 250,000 gallons of medicinal liquor may be allowed to be imported between now and December 5. The existing tariff rates will apply until Congress changes them.

Assemblyman Favors Sale Of Liquor by Drink

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Wilson G. Sarig, of Reading, Pa., Democratic assemblyman in the Pennsylvania Legislature, wants liquor retailed by the drink in his state.

Speaking at the national repeal victory dinner last night, he outlined trends of thought he believes are plainly evident. He said:

"The first of these is that licenses and taxes should be kept sufficiently low to make bootlegging and racketeering unprofitable and the liquor must be sold at retail by the drink if the bootlegger is to be kept out of the field."

Sarig said there is a widespread inclination to intrust control of liquor to local courts instead of a state commission, and told of strong sentiment in favor of re-enacting the Brooks High License Law which controlled liquor in Pennsylvania before prohibition.

Repeal Challenged By Reform Head

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Vermont's ratification of prohibition repeal was questioned for its legality today by Dr. William Sheafe Chase, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in a petition on file with the Supreme Court.

Dr. Chase is superintendent of the International Reform Federation. He asked for a writ of certiorari in a challenge of the constitutionality of the Vermont statute under which a constitutional convention ratified the twenty-first Amendment.

New Orleans Allows Open Liquor Selling

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 10.—(Universal.)—

"Prohibition is dead as an alley cat."

District Attorney Eugene Stanley spoke this in giving licensed saloons full sanction for liquor sales today. Happily dripping wet New Orleans was shaking its cocktail shakers right out loud and hard liquor was being sold openly across bar counters.

Roosevelt Plan Hits Bootlegger

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The high spots of President Roosevelt's program for "after repeal."

Elimination of bootlegging and racketeering by taking the profit out of illicit liquor through moderate taxes.

Control of domestic production and distribution through the NRA and the Agriculture Adjustment Administration.

Control of imports through a monthly limitation quota.

Protection of dry states through existing federal laws and supply control.

Encouragement for beer and wine drinking as against hard liquors by comparatively lighter taxes.

Agreement between federal and state governments on taxes.

PHILA. THIRSTY LEAVE TOWN

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Although the necessary number of states have voted to kill prohibition, Philadelphia was still a dry city today by police edict.

Cocktail glasses may clink merrily all over the country, but Philadelphia police today were under orders from acting Supt. Joseph LeStrange to arrest all violators, even the half-pint variety, until the state and federal dry statutes have been formally expunged.

The result was a steady trek of Philadelphia's thirsty over the Delaware River to Camden, where saloons were openly selling their wares. Highballs and cocktails sold there in most places for 35 cents, while New Jersey's famed applejack was being dispensed at 15 cents.

Commander John D. Pennington, in charge of federal prohibition enforcement, said his men will "carry on" until prohibition is formally repealed.

RAW MILK SALE UPHELD HERE

Raw milk and milk from untested cows can be sold in Allegheny County, according to a decision handed down today by Judge Sarah M. Sofel in County Court.

Judge Sofel's edict restored to eight milk dealers, members of the Dairymen's Association of Western Pennsylvania, fines of $50 each levied by various aldermen last July. They had been charged with violating a city ordinance which forbids adulteration of milk by selling unpasteurized milk.

But unpasteurized or raw milk isn't adulterated milk, the Judge said, and pasteurization and testing cows are only regulations of the Health Department, not ordinances.

THINK 'BRAINS' CAPTURED

Samuel Talenfeld, 27, of 5494 Hays street, was held for further investigation today in connection with a series of holdups in the city following a hearing in Central police court, before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

Lieut. Edward O'Rourke, of the motor division, who arrested Talenfeld on a suspicion person charge, said he believes Talenfeld is the ring leader and the "brains" of a gang of stickup men operating in the city. Talenfeld gave his occupation as "real estate," but O'Rourke said that he operates a garage at 68 Arthur street.

Col. Brooks Named Allegheny Trustee

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 10.—Col. Charles Arthur Brooks has been elected a general trustee of Allegheny College, it was announced today.

Col. Brooks has been associated with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company for the last 50 years and is president of the central division and vice president of the parent company.

Monessen Ballots Ordered Impounded

MONESSEN, Pa., Nov. 10—Sheriff William Humes, of Westmoreland County, today ordered 8 city ballot boxes impounded on the petition of Dr. Joseph D'Alessio, unsuccessful councilmanic candidate.

D'Alessio lost the race for council to Robert McKelvie by 19 votes.

GREEN TO URGE LIQUOR CURB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Labor's William Green sees a need for after-repeal laws that will bar the old-time saloon and keep imbibers from buying more than they can afford or more than they can drink without getting drunk.

The President of the American Federation of Labor does not, however, fear any "moral breakdown" among workers with the return of spirituous beverages. He does expect a "very great many" to be scratched from unemployment rolls when the liquor industry gets under way again, He said today:

"Our experience during the days of the open saloon ought to serve us well now. We ought to apply these lessons we have learned so that the abuses that grow out of the sale of intoxicating liquor can be controlled.

"The laws and ordinances ought to be severe, and then the power to enforce them created and that power exercised without fear or favor, free from political influence."

One argument in favor of prohibition has been that workingmen too often spent a large share of their wages in saloons instead of for necessities of life. The labor federation president proposed to require liquor vendors not to sell to anyone more than he could drink without drunkenness or more than his financial condition warranted, with revocation of license the penalty.

N. Y. SEEKS BAN ON SALOON

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Empire State—experimenting in an attempt to set a post-repeal model for the nation—has determined to outlaw the saloon with its swinging doors, bar and backroom.

Liquor may be served only in hotels, restaurants, clubs, railroad cars and vessels, the Alcohol Control Board announced last night. Drinkers must sit at table when served.

Stores will sell liquor for consumption off the premises. Individual purchases are confined to three quarts of liquor or three gallons of wine. Case lots, however, may be bought from wholesalers.

Indiana Bans Sale Of Liquor by Drink

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Sale of whisky by the drink, and sale of "Cuban pints" will be banned by the state administration's proposed regulations for handling of hard liquor it was learned today.

The pint bottle will be the minimum quantity in which whisky will be sold in Indiana, it was learned.

Liquor Distillers Open War on Bathtub Gin

By DIXIE TIGHE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—In order that people who have known chiefly bathtub gin as the national drink throughout the prohibition era, may know that champagne is not a sherry chaser, liquor distillers are planning a comprehensive campaign to educate the younger generation how to express thirst-appeal.

Now that a bottle is no longer anything from a marmalade jar to an old cleaning fluid can, the public is to be instructed in when is a non-refillable bottle non-refillable and what tests to make with labels to bring out the truth and nothing but the truth.

Your taste—never mind what you really prefer—is to be switched from a yen for bathtub gin to a sensitive desire for high grade beverages.

Although cordial shop dealers and bootleggers have slashed prices and are giving sales talks on the little difference between bootleg stock and repeal's best seller, just remember that it's all wet now.

Newspapers throughout the country yesterday began to announce what the stores will have on hand to sell "when repeal is in full effect." Meantime, the country will continue to get a full effect on the bootleggers' last setup at cut rate prices.

Those forgotten men, musicians, are to return. The reopening of dining and dancing places is expected to be the keynote to the musician for tuning up his fiddle and blowing his own horn again.

SHERIFF RACE STILL IN SNARL

showed 386 for Heinz and 150 for Gollmar. On the basis of present tabulations these, if counted, would declare Heinz the winner.

CORRECTIONS MADE

As rapidly as districts were being counted by the return board a recheck was made with the unofficial figures and corrections made.

During the day, the official count added 83 votes to Gollmar's total, while Heinz jumped 35, giving the former a net gain for the day of 48.

Gollmar had started out this morning with a lead of 115 over Heinz.

Republican and Democratic workers were intent observers in the Sheriff race, as the return board held its second session today.

Sworn in yesterday noon, the board of 60 members encountered only minor hindrances. Votes for candidates for county office were tabulated for 21 districts, through the first of the Fourth Ward, and city candidates through the third of the Third.

Republican watchers were elated when they found the official count for the Fifth District of the First Ward gave Sheriff Gollmar 50 more votes than their own figures. Heinz led at the time.

Otherwise only minor discrepancies were shown with the unofficial count.

Only two boards were called in so far today, the Second of the Fourth Ward to clear up illegible writing, and the Ninth of the Third Ward, to explain why a tally was missing in the ballot box.

SHEETS EXAMINED

By special permission of Judges Dithrich and Reid, Democrats were permitted to examine the tally sheets. Changes were made when tally sheets showed blocks of four votes had been counted as five, resulting in a loss of two votes for Gollmar and two for Coroner W. J. McGregor.

Despite McGregor's substantial lead over the Democratic candidate for coroner, Dr. Vincent L. Marino, Democrats were also following that fight, under Marino's personal supervision.

A slight hitch occured at the start of proceedings when a tally sheet of the first district of the First Ward was found missing. It was discovered in the ballot box.

The board, meeting in two rooms on the eighth floor of the City-County Building, will recess for Armistice Day tomorrow.

Coroner M'Gregor Gives Voters Thanks

Coroner William J. McGregor today gave his thanks to the voters for his re-election in the following statement:

"I wish to thank the thousands of people of Allegheny County for their support and efforts during the recent campaign and their votes on November 7, which made it possible for me to return to the office of Coroner for another term."

Hosiery Presented To Women Voters

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Nov. 10.—The record vote of 776 cast in this town's Spring Garden precinct Tuesday was credited today to the activities of the Standard Political Club.

The club gave a pair of silk stockings to every woman who went to the polls.

Pennsylvania Waits Court's Milk Ruling

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District of Columbia Supreme Court today reserved ruling until Tuesday in a case testing the power of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to compel Pennsylvania dairy farmers to sell milk at a specified price.

The suit was brought by the Capital City Milk Producers of Philadelphia, and claimed the secretary's action in fixing milk prices was unconstitutional.

Brother Burgesses

RICHARD H. LAWRY, 42 THOMAS L. LAWRY, 46

Burgess-elect Thomas L. Lawry, of Emsworth, and his brother, Burgess-elect Richard H. Lawry, of West Homestead, where at present he serves as the 'squire. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

NAME BROTHERS BURGESSES

A Roosevelt "new deal" in West Homestead and Emsworth is going to start with the children.

That's point No. 1 on the program of Richard H. and Thomas L. Lawry, brothers, who were elected burgesses of their boroughs Tuesday. Both are especially interested in youngsters, since they have large families of their own.

Richard H. Lawry, a leader in West Homestead's political life for the last 18 years and present squire, said:

"I'm going to give the community one of the finest athletic centers in Western Pennsylvania. I'm for helping the kids and if anybody objects there is going to be trouble."

His brother, Thomas, of Emsworth, also a straight-shooter and plain talker, said he plans to run his office in a business like manner, then added:

"I'm a lover of sports and children also and . . . going to do all I can to help them."

Offer of U. S. Post Denied by Pecora

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee and defeated candidate for District Attorney of New York County, said today he has not been offered the post of United States Attorney of New York.

Before the election Tuesday there were reports Pecora would be appointed United States Attorney if he failed in the race for District Attorney.

Gollmar's Guard Ejected From Bureau

So anxious was Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar to see that ballot boxes were not pillaged that he sent 15 deputies to the Bureau of Elections last night to guard them, officials of the bureau reported today.

They said Gollmar had asked Commissioner W. D. Mansfield whether he might send his own men to assist the ballot box custodians and was told he should send two.

An hour later the 15 appeared, bureau officials said. The bureau's custodians called county police, who ejected all but two of the deputies.

STUDENTS HAIL SCHRAMM

Gustav L. Schramm, Pitt professor who won the election to the newly-created juvenile judgeship, today received the congratulations of his students.

Many of them helped him campaign.

More than 80, following his first reappearance in the classroom since he began campaigning, surrounded Schramm and offered felicitations. Telling them he would continue teaching until the first of the year, he said:

"I am most grateful to every one who has helped me and I hope those who did will continue to assist me after I become a judge. I want anyone who knows anything that I should know to come and tell me."

Schramm teaches on American government, municipal government and legal institutions.

DEMOCRAT WINS IN CRAFTON UPSET

For the first time in history, Crafton elected a Democrat burgess, George W. Hill defeating John W. Spalter, Republican, by more than 100 votes.

Ordinarily Democratic entrants in the Crafton political arena are looked upon as more or less of a joke, but the usual Republican majority of five to one failed to materialize, and Hill came through with a victory that was a complete surprise.

Hill is a retired railroader, having been with the Pennsylvania Railroad 43 years.

Charles A. Orr, another Democrat, was one of the Councilmen elected in the Second Ward, along with W. S. Guy, Republican. Other Councilmen elected were: First Ward, Tim F. Dunn, Republican; Third Ward, F. C. Biggert, Jr., Republican.

The Democrats also put up a hard fight for school director, losing by only a few votes to the Republicans, Walter D. Moser and Val E. Schott, Jr.

Other officials elected were: Justice of the Peace, Harry F. Dannals, Republican and Democrat, and George K. Ferrall, Good Will party; Tax Collector, Ernest Payne, Republican; Auditor, Winfield S. Haag, Republican.

Late returns in other boroughs were:

CARNEGIE

For Burgess, J. Kelso Nickel, Republican, defeated Joseph H. Hammill, Democrat; for Tax Collector, J. W. Lamp, Republican, defeated Joseph J. Cunningham, Democrat; for School Director, Case A. Foster and Kirwin R. W. Ramsey, Republicans, were elected; for Council, Joseph P. McCaffrey, Republican, was elected in the First Ward, and Jacob Bradwell and George Watson, Republicans, in the Second Ward; for Treasurer, James G. Gamble, Republican, defeated J. T. Carr, Democrat.

SHARPSBURG

Sharpsburg—For Burgess, Dennis J. Casper, Democrat, defeated Lawrence A. Bragg, Republican, 1,655 to 1,565; for Justice of the Peace, Anthony Ferraro, Democrat, defeated Harry A. Mercer, Republican, 1,375 to 1,262; for Auditor, Albert M. Jaronski, Democrat, defeated Elmerr J. Lutz, Republican, 1,544 to 1,518; for Council, Richard H. Morrissey, Edward S. Michalowsky and John J. Malley, Democrats, and Edward Braun, Republican, were elected; for School Director, Albert L. Schramm, Republican and Democrat, and Leo P. Becker, Democrat, were named, and for the two-year term, George F. Haberman, Republican, was elected.

DeRosa Fete Becomes Herron Job Boom

A testimonial dinner to Michael De Rosa, Sr., blind chairman of the Twelfth Ward Republican organization, was turned into a rousing testimonial for Mayor John S. Herron last night in the William Penn Hotel when former Congressman Harry A. Estep predicted Herron's candidacy in the near future for a county office.

Estep sounding for the Republicans a new keynote of "progressiveness and militance" asserted:

"John Herron was the most popular candidate the Republican party ever had in the city. Sometime within the near future, maybe within the next two years, in fact, John Herron may be a candidate for a county office where the best interests of the people who voted for the Republicans have not been served."

He indicated the County Commissioners office, control of which the Republicans doubtless will attempt to wrest from the Independents in 1935.

The former congressman who was swept out of office in the Democratic landslide last year blamed the Republican party's "leaders who have failed to recognize and heed the will of the people" for the set-backs. The landslide last year and its repetition Tuesday was, in effect, Estep said, a conspicious revolt of the people against bossism.

Many prominent in the political life of the city and county attended the dinner, including Mayor Herron, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Judge Benjamin F. Lencher, Attorney Charles J. Margiotti and Attorney Alexander Cooper. State Senator James J. Coyne was not present. He was in Chicago attending to business, according to Mayor Herron.

Sears PENNSYLVANIA DAYS

Sears Fifty Million Dollar Bet!

We all have heard "Bet You A Million" Gates. Would you bet Fifty Million if you had it? Sears, Roebuck and Company did it . . on America. During the early part of 1933, when the costs of merchandise were at their rock bottom, Sears, Roebuck and Company bought more than Fifty Million Dollars worth of merchandise. This merchandise was bought to sell, not for speculation. We are anxious to pass on to our customers the benefit of the advantageous buys we made; hence, PENNSYLVANIA DAYS . . beginning Thursday, November 9th, and ending Saturday, November 18th, 1933. PINCHOT CALLS LEGISLATURE FOR MONDAY loans received for this purpose.

Unemployment relief.

Restoration of the work formerly done by the labor and industry department's bureau of industrial relations—largely in mediating strikes and labor disputes.

Payment of the salary of the new Allegheny County Juvenile Court judge, for which the 1933 session made no provision in creating the court.

Additional appropriations to departments whose budgets were slashed by the regular session—Labor and Industry, Treasury, Health, Property and Supplies, Revenue and state police.

(No provision is made for more money for the Auditor General's department, also reduced, headed by Frank C. Baldwin, whose sharp attacks on the administration's relief policies and $25,000,000 relief-hospitals-colleges bond issue featured the period between the past and impending session.)

Mobilization of the entire Pennsylvania National Guard at Indiantown Gap next summer.

PAYMENT OF BILLS

Payment of unpaid bills of Senate, House or joint committees (including the Senate public utility inquiry) for past investigations.

Compensation for loss of revenue would result if the Einstein act, transferring the four mills tax on money at interest from depositors to banks, is repealed.

With this list, the Governor establishes definite limits beyond which the Legislature cannot go in appropriating money obtained from liquor control. The lawmakers may use the money for any or all of these purposes, but cannot, under court rulings on the scope of governors' calls, use the money for anything else.

LIQUOR REGULATION

Regulation and taxation of liquor was point one in the Governor's call. The appropriation of receipts from liquor was point two. The other 13 points were:

Recovery legislation, including co-operation with the National Recovery Administration and other federal agencies; regulation of intra-state business to prevent unfair competition; authority to the Governor and other state officers to apply for and meet the conditions necessary to receive federal grants, advances or loans to the state or for self-liquidating projects; legalization of home loan bonds as investments; authority to municipalities to construct public revenue bonds; creation or supervision of housing corporations; establishments of "authorities" for construction of public works; cancellation of public contracts at the request of contractors whose costs have been increased because of membership in NRA, and authorization of a tunnel under the Delaware River between Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Old age assistance, unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation, rehabilitation of industrial areas in which industries have permanently closed down, prohibition of private employment of deputy sheriffs, and regulation of hours, wages, payment and conditions of labor.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Regulation of the production, distribution and sale of milk and other dairy products.

Didn't Sign NRA But Gets Contract

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Treasury today was freed of court restraint to its granting a bid for construction of the New York City Postoffice annex in an order signed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The Treasury had held that by not having signed an NRA agreement at the time, the Driscoll company, the low bidder, was ineligible to receive the contract and that it should go to the second lowest bidder.

Death Robs Man Of Political Victory

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—For 30 years Louis J. Smith fought the Republicans.

Although nearly blind, he was an active Democrat, ever fighting, never winning.

This year, however, the Democrats carried his ward and Smith was elected assessor. His friends carried the good news to him in a hospital where he was ill with pneumonia.

But the oath of office is not for Smith. A few hours after receiving the news he died.

FATHER OF NINE DIES IN CHAIR

International News Service.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Nov. 10.—Two convicted slayers, one of them the father of nine children, were put to death in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here early today.

The victims were Harve Burton, 50-year-old mountaineer, and Walter Dewberry, 40, a Negro, who had lived at Chicago and Detroit.

Pdaying constantly, Burton, who killed his wife, walked to the death chamber lamenting that his children "back home" would be parentless.

Dewberry maintained his innocence to the last. He was convicted of fatally shooting a Kentucky farmer. Two other Negroes previously had been electrocuted for this crime.

BOMB 2 BRIDGES IN FARM STRIKE

MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Two railway bridges, one on the Illinois Central and one on the Chicago & North Western were slightly damaged by dynamite blasts early today.

Railway officials attributed the attempt to wreck the bridge to farm strikers.

'CITIZENS' WIN JOBS IN HOT STOWE FIGHT

Close fights developed in a number of the townships in Tuesday's election, with the Democrats and independent groups breaking into the winning column in several instances.

A hot fight was staged in Stowe Township, where the Citizens party, combining with Republicans and Democrats, were victors in all but two contests.

A triple party, known as the Blue Eagle, Liberty and Roosevelt group, elected the justice of the peace and one of the five Stowe Township Commissioners.

Results follow:

For treasurer, Joseph D. Sarandria, Republican, Democrat and Citizens Party, decisively defeated C. Victor Shaffer, Blue Eagle, Liberty, Roosevelt candidate; for controller, Carl L. Poznanski, Citizens Party, defeated J. Vincent Sanvito, of the triple group; for justice of the peace, Pasquale Mussman, of the triple party, defeated Herbert D. Porter, of the Citizens Party; for school director, Peter T. Stieska and W. Frank Kindle, Citizens Party, were elected; for township commissioners, Alexander Saunders, of the triple party, David Griffiths, John Ciangerulo, John Caputo and R. E. Wheeler, of the Citizens Party, were elected.

Other late township results included:

WILKINS

For Auditor, Joseph A. Tomasic, Democrat, defeated James J. Watt, Republican, 369 to 364; for School Director, Charles E. Cherry, Republican and Democrat, 736, and Michael Blagovich, Democrat, 421, were elected. Edwin J. Gray, Republican, 377, being runner-up; for Justice of the Peace, James W. Barker, Republican and Democrat, defeated Thomas Downey, Progressive Taxpayers Party, 567 to 366; for Treasurer, Andrew A. McKeever, Republican and Democrat, was a decisive winner, and for School Director, J. Arthur Wills, Republican and Democrat, was elected.

PENN

For justice of the peace, Charles Bamberger, Republican, defeated P. A. Withum, Democrat, 1,922 to 1,607; for treasurer, Philip Berg, Republican, defeated Albert P. Dible, Democrat, 2,121 to 1,808; for school director, John E. Hetrick, Republican and Democrat, 2,935, and Horace G. Smith, Democrat, 2,001, were elected. Walter O. Christenson, Republican and Roosevelt Party, running next with 1,824; for the two-year term, C. A. Schreiber was victor in a close race, and for auditor, E. M. Stemen was elected, unopposed. C. M. Dible, Democrat, defeated J. A. Peters, Republican, 124 to 115 for township commissioner from the Tenth Ward, the winner conducting his campaign with stickers.

Victor's Parade Marks Downfall Of Miles Bryan

The end of 26 years of political rule by Miles Bryan and his Republican organization in McKees Rocks was celebrated last night by the borough's Democrats in a huge victory pageant.

Enthusiasm ran high as thousands lined the streets in biting cold wind to witness one of the largest parades ever held in McKees Rocks.

Heading it was Thomas J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic party, wearing a brown derby and riding a mule. Then followed two bands, more than a thousand marching people and scores of automobiles bearing the victors, friends and admirers.

Burgess-elect Dr. P. J. Henney, presented with a large basket of flowers, said:

"The first thing we are going to do is to audit the borough's books. We are going to operate the government economically, and install swimming pools for our children. You may also expect a general housecleaning in the police department."

Speeches from the steps of Dr. Henney's home on 823 Island avenue concluded the celebration.

HOUSING LOANS POLICY SET

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Horace W. Peaslee, federal works housing official, told the national conference on government yesterday that granting of public works housing loans depends largely on their ability to serve those in the lower income brackets.

He said:

"The need for such a project is proposed, and whether the project in question will meet the particular need, that the object is really to serve the lower income group for whom it is intended and is not masquerading as such with an underlying speculative house sales and land-unloading motive, determines whether it is acceptable for a loan of public funds.

"The land must be free from encumberances and neither assessed at the fanciful figures of 1928 nor at today's sacrifice sales value; the design must not only produce sound construction, but at a cost which will meet on a rental basis the incomes of the group it aims to serve."

REED CERTAIN OF ONE RIVAL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—United States Senator David A. Reed is sure of at least one opponent at the next Republican primary.

Robert Gray Taylor, of Media, made public letters yesterday which passed between himself and the Senator in which Taylor informed Reed he would be a candidate on both Republican and Democratic tickets.

Political observers have predicted for some time that Gov. Pinchot would also be in the lists against Reed but the Governor has not committed himself.

Reed's reply to Taylor said:

"I am interested to know that you expect to run for nomination next spring as Republican and also as Democrat. It is a free country and I cannot think of any reason why you should not run against me if you want to, although circumstances prevent my wishing you luck."

FARLEY HAILS VOTE VICTORIES

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In his first statement on Tuesday's elections, Postmaster General Farley declared yesterday the results demonstrate "the satisfaction of the country with the Roosevelt administration."

Wherever there was a clearcut contest between Republicans and Democrats, Farley added, it was apparent that "the Democratic tide which elected Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency a year ago is still running strong."

The administration's political generalissimo bluntly dismissed demands of John F. Curry, Tammany boss, for his resignation as New York state Democratic chairman.

Curry had declared that Farley, by supporting Joseph V. McKee, recovery candidate for Mayor, had disrupted Democratic ranks, causing the loss of the city to Fiorello H. La Guardia, fusionist. Farley said:

"The Pennsylvania results were also significant. The Democrats elected a Mayor in Pittsburgh, the citadel of the Mellon Republican machine for nearly 30 years."

O'Brien Silent In War on Farley

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Mayor John P. O'Brien, defeated for re-election by Fiorello H. La Guardia, said yesterday he would return to the practice of law after his term expires at the end of the year.

The Mayor would make no comment on the campaign or upon the movement of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, to oust James A. Farley, postmaster general, from his state chairmanship of the Democratic party for his support of Joseph V. McKee, independent Democrat.

ARMISTICE, FOOTBALL :-: New Series Band Concerts :-: RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

War Veterans In Armistice Program

On the eve of Armistice Day, WCAE presents a program dedicated to the heroes of the World War.

From 11:30 to 12:30 tonight, Gen. John A. Lejeune, of the United States Marines; Maj. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, Lieutenant Governor of the commonwealth; Robert S. Cain and Maj. John H. Shenkel, holders of the D. S. C., speak on subjects of interest to every veteran.

In the program is included a dramatization of a World War incident in which Gen. Shannon won distinction.

* * *

Steel Band

The first radio program to advertise steel—a weekly band concert—makes its debut over NBC-KDKA tonight at 10.

Bennett Chapple, as "The Ironmaster," gives dramatic word pictures of the steel industry.

* * *

"Rip" Miller, head gridiron coach at the United States Naval Academy, is guest speaker on the All-America football broadcast heard over CBS-WJAS at 9:30.

The head man of the Midshipmen squad is interviewed by Christy Walsh, Sun-Telegraph football expert. Music and a football drama complete the show.

* * *

WCAE & Co.

The Troubadors, So-and-So's and Pittsburghers Quartet combine their musical talents tonight to entertain the WCAE listeners from 7:15 to 7:45.

* * *

Jessica Dragonette and the entire concert ensemble join in presenting gems from "Buddies" during tonight's broadcast over WCAE at 8.

* * *

Election Day highlights, Russian recognition and other topics of current interest are dramatized in the March of Time, heard over WJAS at 8:30.

* * *

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle speaks over WJAS at 10:30, in behalf of the Welfare Fund.

* * *

'Our Family'

The WCAE drama "Our Family," heard every Saturday night at 8, changes schedule tomorrow night only.

It will be heard at 7:30 instead of 8.

Paul Abele, former Duke captain, and Paul Reider, past skipper of the Panthers, air their views on tomorrow's Pitt-Duke game during a WWSW broadcast tonight at 6.

KQV will broadcast a curbstone description of the Armistice Day parade Saturday morning at 11:15.

Sprague Goes to KDKA As Sports Reporter

By AIRCASTER

WWSW loses one of its principal assets December 1, when Ed Sprague goes to KDKA as Sports Reporter for a local chewing gum manufacturer.

Sprague was signed up this afternoon to take Tony Wakeman's place on the pioneer station. Wakeman plans to go to New York at the end of this month, to join the CBS staff.

Joe Sartori, who very materially helped Sprague to "arrive" as a sports reporter, will probably produce another winner for WWSW.

* * *

The Columbia Broadcasting System's deal for bringing via the short waves, the events attend Admiral Byrd's current voyage to the South Pole has pointed the way for the new vogue.

If CBS was to have its Byrd, then NBC figured it would have its own sojourner, Phillips Lord, whom you know better as Seth Parker.

Phillips has equipped himself with a 250-foot schooner, short wave apparatus, movie gear and a crew of hardy tars.

More important still, he has acquired a sponsor.

On December 5, when he will have been at sea three weeks, Parker will begin a series of NBC broadcasts from such exotic and removed spots as Trinidad, Tahiti, etc.

The Sendoff

Before embarking on this adventure, Lord will sail to Maine on November 15, for his official farewell.

That day will be a legal holiday in Lord's home state.

Before a gathering of scribes yesterday, "Admiral" Lord broke down and confessed that this bit of sea-roving which he is about to begin becomes the realization of a boyhood dream.

Appropriately enough, he has named his good ship, "Seth Parker."

Mae West Signs

Mae West has accepted the offer of a face cream firm, which is trying to clear time either at NBC or Columbia.

FAIRMONT'S BETTER BUTTER

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The election may be over, but all the arguments are not. "Stella," of Sewickley, got herself into one. In spite of argument to the contrary, she maintains that a voter must pay all his taxes before he can vote. "Stella" is right; "Stella" is also wrong.

It is permissable to separate the poll tax from the tax on real estate. But if an elector owed personal property tax he had to pay the whole works.

People think the repeal amendment created unbounded joy. Don't overlook Amendment No. 8, the one that provided relief for hospitals. Voters answered the prayers of thousands like Marie Kritzko, McKees Rocks, who writes:

"I am not very old, yet I have spent 28 years of my life as a cripple. For 12 years I have been a charity patient of St. Francis Hospital. I have undergone 10 operations. Now I am on the road to recovery. I feel like Cinderella stepping into Fairyland."

* * *

"Unknown," from Verona, is convinced that the article on how to reduce mentioned on the broadcast is a marvelous article. She examined the paper carefully and although she couldn't find it, she lost two pounds searching for it.

Just keep looking, "Unknown." It's there and you're not doing so badly anyway.

* * *

Prudence Penny referred to me a letter written by Mrs. William Wilcox, of Oakdale. She sent in a recipe for dandelion wine with instructions not to permit me to see the recipe because I might neglect the job to go picking blossoms.

Giving old "Globey" the double X, huh?

Just for that I'll wait till you pick the blossoms.

W. Thomas Jackson, of Apollo—Those beauty-making machines sometimes cause a lot of disturbance to radio reception, but there is little the Radio Commission can do about that. After all, they have a right to do business. Sometimes motors can be adjusted so that interference, if not eradicated, can be reduced to a minimum. Ask your electric light office if it has a man who specializes in removing radio interference.

'My Life of Crime' On Air Today

The adventures of an English lad, born with a silver spoon in his mouth, but who gave up his life of luxury to become a criminal, is dramatized over eight radio stations in the tri-state district this afternoon and evening.

Based on a real life story in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "My Life of Crime" is heard on the following schedule:

WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2; WALR, Zanesville, 5; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15; WAIU, Columbus, 7:15, WADC, Akron, 7:45 and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon tells about the "Long Long Ago" as the feature of the 6:45 "Songs at Eventide."

Two worthwhile features, Mickey Bell's early evening songs and Fran Eichler's Band with Alma Krekler as soloist, at 6.

Eddie Peyton plays a medley of tunes written by Isham Jones as the feature of his 11:30 Frivolities.

Roth Making 450th Weekly Broadcast

Making his four hundred and fiftieth weekly "Motor News" broadcast over Station WCAE, C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, completes nine years of continuous weekly broadcasts today.

The series, which had its inception November 13, 1924, is credited with numerous major improvements of paramount importance to motorists.

North Side Woman, 73, Dies of Burns

Mrs. Jean Hardie, 73, of 607 Merchant street, North Side, died last night in Presbyterian Hospital from burns suffered several hours before when her clothing ignited from the kitchen stove while she was preparing the evening meal, according to the coroner's report.

WELFARE DRIVE OPENING SET MONDAY

Pre-campaigning finishing touches completed, the Welfare Fund will launch its intensive two-week drive to raise $2,837,000 for relief work this winter at a luncheon-meeting in Kaufmann's Monday.

In co-operation with the organization, churches of all creeds will stress the welfare theme at services Sunday, and theaters will use a special sound picture throughout the week urging support.

In city and county schools lessons in civics and economics have been adapted to emphasize the work of Welfare Fund agencies, fund officials said.

By tonight, it was announced, all prospect cards will have been assigned to team captains in every section and division. Unit and county neighborhood, sub-division meetings will be held tonight in Turtle Creek, Sharpsburg, Bellevue, Wilkinsburg and Braddock.

Reports on advance soliciting of the special gifts division will be announced at the meeting Monday.

SHOUP FEARS SCHOOL CRISIS

Substantial reduction in school taxes for 1934 was urged by C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League in a radio address last night from Station WWSW.

Declaring a financial crisis will face the Pittsburgh public school system unless such a reduction is forthcoming, Shoup pointed out that hundreds of schools have been forced to close in the country. He said:

"We should take stock of the situation and find out definitely where we are going. Real estate taxes, and especially school taxes, have risen to the point where the real estate owner can no longer bear them. It is necessary that school taxes be lowered substantially and immediately."

Delinquent school taxes now total $9,000,000, he said.

Flying Amy to Join Husband at Bermuda

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Amy Mollison sailed for Bermuda yesterday to join her husband, James A. Mollison, with whom she flew from England to the United States in July.

She expects to rest at the island resort for several days. Recently she was ordered by her physician to take a complete rest for six or eight months and not to make any long-distance flights.

Turkeys Cheaper And 18 Million Await Feast

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(Universal)—The American army of Thanksgiving turkeys, 18,000,000 strong, and all hale and hearty, is ready to begin its annual pilgrimage to the November feast table of the American home.

Department of Agriculture officials said yesterday this year's turkeys will be not quite so large as in some bygone days, but they will be just as tender and just as juicy. And, what is rather important, a little cheaper.

Where turkeys sold at an average to the consumer of 27 cents a pound last year, they will be only about 25 cents this year.

AUTO LOOTING SUSPECT HELD

Joseph W. Ellert, 30, listed as having no home, was being questioned by city detectives today in connection with the looting of automobiles in the downtown district.

He was arrested in a Liberty avenue pawnshop when he attempted to pawn a watch. One he previously pawned had been stolen from an automobile parked in Seventh avenue, detectives said.

Detectives George Franz and Fred Good searched the rooms formerly occupied by the prisoner and reported finding three handbags and several overcoats. Ellert refused to tell how he obtained the articles, but admitted, the sleuths said, that the hat he was wearing had been stolen from a North Side church.

O'NEILL NAMED TO ACADEMY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Eugene O'Neill, famous playwright, today headed four new members elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters in connection with the centennial observance of the birth of E. C. Stedman, poet and critic.

Other academicians elected were Cecilia Beaux, New York artist and fourth woman to be elected to the academy; William J. Henderson, author and music critic, and Henry Dwight Sedgwick, of Massachusetts, author and historian.

H. B. SMITH NEW KIWANIS HEAD

Harold B. Smith today was the newly-elected president of the Kiwanis Club of Pittsburgh for 1934. He was elected at the annual election of officers in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday.

Others elected are: Vice president, William C. Arther; treasurer, H. H. Myers; treasurer, John H. Bradfute, and directors, Col. William R. Dunlap, W. Mark Lysinger, Oliver C. Colwes, Dr. Norman Ochsenhirt and Samuel E. Watters.

The new officers will be installed January 4. Ed M. Kliment, retiring president, presided at the meeting.

TOTALS OF COUNTY VOTE ON BONUS, RELIEF AND METRO AMENDMENTS

Complete returns from Allegheny County in Tuesday's election reveal that amendments for the soldier bonus, relief and the metropolitan plan were carried by a large margin. It required the vote of the city of Pittsburgh to carry the metropolitan plan amendment.

A tabulation disclosed that 72 of the separate municipal divisions of the county voted against the metropolitan plan and 37 for it.

Voting in favor of the proposal were the cities of Pittsburgh and Clairton, 24 boroughs and 11 townships. Arrayed against it were the cities of McKeesport and Duquesne, 34 boroughs and 36 townships.

This indicates much missionary work will be necessary before the plan can become operative. The amendment provides that a majority vote in favor of the metropolitan charter must be cast in each of a majority of the municipal divisions, in addition to a majority vote in the entire county, before it can become effective.

The metro plan amendment carried in the state by a vote of 392,652 to 277,899.

Total votes on the metropolitan plan amendment was:

Pittsburgh — For, 84,833; against, 29,416.

Third-class cities—For, 4,544; against, 8,280.

Boroughs — For, 28,377; against, 33,781.

Townships — For, 12,234; against, 17,631.

The vote on the three most important amendments was:

Whitaker Vote Board Ends Overtime Job

The election board of Whitaker Borough was asleep this morning and going strong for a whole day's slumber.

And asleep or not, a firm conviction will rest with all its members that they earned their fees.

The board filed its returns late yesterday. The members had had no sleep since 7 a. m. Tuesday. Their only interruption had been a ride to the election bureau in the City-County Building, where they were brought by a sheriff's order early Wednesday.

Exhausted but still retaining their good humor, members explained last night that they had too many votes to count.

In the first place there were 818 voters in the district, which is a consolidation of what was until three years ago the First and Second districts of the borough. Secondly, they had five ballots to dispose of—the extra one being on a special bond issue.

It would take a while for anyone, they said, to count the resulting 4,090 ballots.

Schoolboy Draws Gun When Rival Talks to 'Moll'

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Another boy talked to Sammy Lombardo's girl in algebra class.

Sammy, who is 15, leaped into action. His startled teacher wrenched his fighting equipment away from him. It was a loaded .38 caliber revolver.

Hudson avenue police, a little bewildered, found Constance Macaluso, 14, a helpful witness. Sammy had forced her, she said, to carry his gun for him in approved gun-moll style, in her lunch basket.

Passenger in 'Lost' Plane Loses Bet On Locality

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 10.—A powerful amphibian swept down on Monongahela River near Greenfield's famous bend.

Townsfolk paddled out in rowboats, believing the pilot in trouble. A head came out of the cockpit sheath and Frank D. Erosse, 29, Philadelphia clubman and pilot, asked:

"What state is this?"

At the answer, "Pennsylvania," another occupant exclaimed:

"I lose $50! I bet we were over Maryland."

The plane took off again. The loser was a Baltimore shoe manufacturer, who refused to give his name.

Ky. Police Hold Man Wanted in Penna.

NEWPORT, Ky., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Leslie McNeal, 23, was arrested last night by Newport police who say he is wanted in New Castle, Pa., in connection with an investigation of 50 robberies and burglaries.

SCHOOL BOOKS' BRIBING PROBED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The president of the American Book Company was named yesterday by a former employe with having personally handed him money to be contributed to local committees in an effort to influence school elections in two Ohio counties.

A. T. Amrine, now superintendent of schools at McDermott, in Scioto County, asserted requests for contributions from the company were made in nearly every county of the state.

At a resumption of a special state Senate committee investigation into school textbook lobbying, he testified:

"For that reason I stayed out of a lot of counties just before election. The minute I would register in a hotel they would flock in for donations."

Sports for Emsworth? Must Ask Ben Avon

School Board Still Controls Field in Other Borough

It looked today as though Ben Avon, opposed to Sunday sports, can still dictate the use of its athletic field even if it is located in the borough of Emsworth, where the electors cleared the road Tuesday for legal Sunday games.

John A. Hunter president of the Ben Avon School Board, said of the legal aspects governing the use of the field which is a public school property:

"It is entirely up to the school board to decide who can use the field and when. Whether the board will allow Sunday baseball or football is a question to be decided. Nobody can use the field without a permit from the board."

Attorney Fred Houston, solicitor for Ben Avon, pointed out that there was never any occasion to use the field on Sunday as the school students play their games during the week.

The field is at the Ohio River boulevard and Beaver avenue.

Phila. Mayor Holds Up Sunday Sports

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—There is a possibility that Philadelphia may not have football games next Sunday, after all, despite the voters' overwhelming approval of Sabbath sports at Tuesday's elections.

The City Council passed an ordinance yesterday licensing such sports, but a report was circulated in city hall circles that Mayor J. Hampton Moore would refuse to sign the ordinance until he receives official certification of the election results, which would not be available until next week.

2 TO FACE TRIAL IN HOLDUP

Sam Davis, 23, of 56½ Roberts street, and Richard Meller, 37, of 704 Anaheim street, were held for court today on a charge of robbery after a hearing in Central Police Court.

Arrested in connection with the holdup of the Quality Laundry at 4732 Penn avenue on December 31, 1932, both men were identified by Miss Mattie Desery, employed in the laundry office. She said at the hearing that the men, with a third man, came into the laundry, held up three drivers and herself and took $450.

Davis was also held for court on a second robbery charge in connection with the stickup of Bolds Bakery, Industry street, on July 10, 1933. City detectives testified that Davis and two other men, masked, entered the bakery office and took $1,275 from the safe.

DEATH OF BRIDE BRINGS ARREST

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Toy G. Woolley, 28, an auditor, twice married and once divorced this year, was charged with murder today in connection with the fatal shooting Sunday of his 28-year-old bride. He had reported to officers the shooting occurred accidentally as he was cleaning a shotgun after returning from a hunting trip.

Investigators said Woolley married Miss Dorothy Joynes last August, shortly after obtaining a divorce from his former wife, Mae Woolley, of Austin, now a student in the University of Texas.

Auto Won't Start, Finds Cat in Hood

ANDERSON, Ind., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Looking under the engine hood of his car to see why it wouldn't start, Richard Wright of Huntsville found that a cat had caused a short circuit.

The music section of the Twentieth Century Club gave its opening concert yesterday afternoon in the club auditorium. For so attractive a program there was a rather small audience though neither Irene Williams, the soprano, nor Phyllis Kraeuter, the cellist, seemed to mind and performed with real enthusiasm.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Williams is quite a spirited singer. Her voice is not remarkable for its quality though she gains some excellent dramatic effects and sings with intelligence.

She brought us some fine French songs, an almost unknown air from the "Tzar's Bride," not heard here since the Russian Opera last sang, and three of Grieg's masterpieces.

Miss Kraeuter played a rather barren piece of Jeral whom none of the dictionaries indentify. Her style is rather broad and not at all youthful as one might expect and she seemed able to make a fine cantilena as well as quite delicate effects in her smaller numbers.

Earl Mitchell once again was a most satisfactory accompanist.

The matinee musicales at Hotel Schenley still attract quite large audiences. Yesterday morning patrons were especially cordial since two favorite Pittsburgh singers gave the program—Margaret Stoner Klingelhofer, contralto, and Cass Ward Whitney, baritone.

Mrs. Klingelhofer is such a good musician and gives such good account of herself in the lieder of Brahms and Strauss that it makes us regret the technical defects in her voice all the more. Whitney sings a ballad as well as the greatest art songs and gives less than he can of his music.

The Schenley musicales are giving local talent its opportunity, and I wonder whether our musicians fully appreciate their duty to make these events the market place of their best.

SEWER VICTIM REMOVED FROM PUBLIC GAZE

POLITICS

Election Upset to Sway Legislators' Votes

By MARK SHIELDS

On Monday at 3 p. m. Gov. Pinchot will deliver his message to the special session of the Legislature, and then the membership will be off on a so-called deliberative and law-making chase which has no definite date for termination.

Mr. Shields

State Chairman Edward Martin and some leaders of the regular Republican organization express the belief that the session will be short, probably adjournment before Christmas. This wish, however, is probably father to the thought. The Republicans, considerably battered after the results of last Tuesday, would like to have the thing over with as soon as possible.

They have had previous experience with Gov. Pinchot. They have encountered his uncanny ability to capitalize a political situation, especially when the Legislature is in session. They realize that every additional controversial proposition which is tossed in their faces increases just that much the danger of making a political mistake and furnish their opponents within and without the party additional ammunition.

It is interesting that friends of the Governor take a position exactly opposite that of the regular Republican leaders. They believe that the session will be protracted, and that the Governor will take delight in each added week. For one thing, the eyes and the ears—and the ears are something the Governor considers—will be directed toward Harrisburg. It will be not only a legislative capital, but a political capital, for there is an election coming next spring which will nominate candidates for Governor, United States Senator, Congress and the Legislature.

* * *

Liquor Control Bill May Cause Fight

Tuesday's election still is in the air, but politicians look to one election before the preceding one is cold.

What the Governor's call will include still is subject to conjecture. It will, of course, include liquor control. That in itself is sufficient to string out deliberation. It required not weeks but months to finally arrive at a beer bill which the Governor would sign. There is the possibility of more profit in liquor than in beer, wherefore the manner in which it is to be dispensed means a battle.

Gov. Pinchot wants the profit eliminated, except as restaurants and hotels resale whisky and wine. He wants state stores to do the selling to individuals for consumers off the premises. That idea is not being universally approved. It will be fought, but Mr. Pinchot has the power to prevent any legislation on the subject he does not approve.

Despite some objections from persons favoring old age pensions, and who want the idea initiated again through a proposed constitutional amendment, it is assumed from past statements by the Governor that he will call for the introduction of a bill dealing directly with the subject. He has legal opinion to support him in his attitude.

The old age pension scrap will be a peach, shot through with politics, with many members of both House and Senate uncertain what attitude to take to protect their political futures.

* * *

Pinchot Can Include New Court Wage

Unemployment relief will be another subject, undoubtedly. There again is the material for long days and nights of bickering. Some election law legislation may be suggested.

It is known that the Governor has been urged to include a provision for an appropriation for the judge of the new Juvenile Court of Allegheny County. When the bill creating the court, with a salary of $10,000, was passed, no alteration was made in the judicial appropriation bill for the pay. All judicial salaries are paid by the state, rather than by the county in which the judge sits.

If the Governor should include in the call anything about veterans' bonus there will be a battle royal. Whether he will do so or not is unkonwn, but he favored the bonus, and the voters on Tuesday authorized the Legislature to legalize bonds for $50,000,000, to be prorated among the veterans. There is no legal obligation on the Governor to include this in the call, and the Legislature cannot be compelled to act, even if he does.

Members certainly will be pulled back and forth on this subject, whenever it comes up.

Presumably the Governor might permit legislation on any subject dealt with in Tuesday's constitutional amendments, including a new Metropolitan Pittsburgh charter. If he does throw open the door there is added just so much more matter on which the voters have expressed themselves, and on which legislators who must face those same voters no farther away than next spring would be anxious to act popularly.

Maid Compelled To Confess She Knows Girl Spy

Read This First

Gail Loveless, just 20, had had thorough training as a character actress under the tutelage of her friend and fellow-artist of the stage, Pauline Cushman. Miss Cushman had served as a spy for the Union Army. Now it was necessary for her to go again into the Confederate lines at Martinsburg, Va. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart needed watching. It was feared he intended to lead his raiders into Pennsylvania on a devastating raid.

Miss Cushman asked if she might take Gail Loveless with her. Pinkerton, head of the Federal Secret Service, and his aide, Col. Sharpe, seeing the young girl impersonate an octoroon, were convinced of her ability to fool the Southerners. They said she might go and assigned to her, as an agent of the Secret Service, the number 13, which had been borne by another spy, recently captured by the Southern Army and hanged.

A few days later Gail Loveless, as Lucille Lyndon, "yaller gal" laundress, had the good luck to be assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Stuart himself. And there, while she washed a shirt in a swift little river, came Capt. Jack Gailliard, foremost of Gen Stuart's spies. He kissed her and was ashamed of the thrill it gave him. Shortly afterward Pauline Cushman was arrested as a spy.

Now Go On With the Story

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

She turned her back on him and walked away through the dew-wet grass, hurrying as soon as the trees concealed her; and came, breathless and anxious, to the cook-tent and shanty where the headquarters black servants were established.

"Whar yuh been a-traipsin'?" demanded Bob suspiciously.

The girl giggled.

"Huh! Co'tin' long o' some nocount nigger!" sniffed Bob. "Mars Gailliard he done been askin."

Her heart stood still. "What does he want, Bob!" she managed to ask lightly.

"Mo' co'tin," said Bob ominously; "but not de kin' of co'tin youh been a-doin. Yuh gotta go to Mrs. Dandridge—ober dar to be big house. Dar's a co't-martial ho'den ober dar. Das de kin 'ob co't gwine teach yuh sumfin yuh don't know gal!"

"Who me?" she asked saucily, but with death in her heart.

"Yaas, yuh! 'Long ob all de debblin' an' de gwines-on in dis hyah camp."

"Das what Ah means. De debil's in ev'ybody. Debbil in yuh, too, Ah reckon. Dey done catch a Yankee spy, an' dey gwine hang her. An' dar's de co t an' dars de co'tin yuh gwine git. An' Mars Gailliard, he sez—"

"All right," said Gailliard's voice from the darkness. He came up, took the little laundress by her delicate arm, very gently. "Clear the cook tent, Bob. Clear out everybody. I want to talk to Lucille."

He led the girl into the tent, dropped the flap, lifted a lantern and took her slender hand, turning it over so that he could examine the fingernails.

They were palely bluish. Well, then, she was black. "Where have you been since the dance ended?" he demanded.

Knows Prisoner

She hung her head sulkily. "Dunno."

"Yes, you do. Where have you been?"

"I won't tell on him," she retorted.

"Tell on whom?"

"Only he's a lieutenant; and I won't tell yuh what we done."

"What you did?" repeated Gailliard.

"Down by the river," she giggled.

"Oh, that's what you've been up to, is it?" growled Gailliard. "Well, you're a saucy wench, and too fond of kissing."

"I like it," she admitted, looking up at him demurely. Death lay cold in her frightened heart.

"Listen to me, Lucille," he said; "they've caught a Yankee spy in Bower House. There's no mistake about it. She's that Mary Vail of Martinsburg. She really is Pauline Cushman, of the Yankee secret service. Do you know her?"

A silence.

"Do you or don't you?" he demanded.

"Yass, suh, I does."

"I know you do. You were seen speaking to her several days ago. Besides, she admits it. Now, Lucille, where did you know Pauline Cushman?"

"I was her maid in the theater."

"So she says. When did you leave her?"

"When I heard she'all was a Yankee."

"Well, you seem to tell the truth. That is what she says, also. Besides, I'm certain that you really are a black girl. I reckon you re what you say you are." He took her arm again.

"The gentlemen of the military court desire to see you. Come with me and don't be frightened."

They walked together over the grassy hill in the misty radiance of the stars. The girl was faint with grief and fear, but she wriggled coquettishly against him.

"Mars Stuart won't scold me, will he, Cap'n Gailliard?" she murmured.

"He isn't there."

"Is they gwine to do me a harm, suh?"

"No. But this is a most damnable thing that this actress woman has tried to do to us! Betray our secret movements to the Yankees on the very eve—" He checked himself with an oath.

Captured Spy

Lucille whimpered. "She seemed lak a kind, good lady, suh. Only when I found out she was a Yankee——"

"She's a devil. She's been in our lines before. Chancellor nearly caught her once. We've got her this time, anyway."

The clustered candle lights in the great hall dazzled the little laundress as they entered Bower House. Sentries on guard held them; then they went into a lamplit library where several officers sat at a table; and Pauline Cushman lay apparently asleep in a huge upholstered chair.

She opened her eyes and sat up when the laundress came into the room.

"Well, sir?" demanded a major of cavalry, very quietly.

Capt. Gailliard, at attention, said: "The girl is a genuine Negro, and is perfectly truthful, sir."

The officers decided to examine her, and she was formally called and sworn.

"Oh, gentlemen," said Pauline Cushman quietly, "there is no need for all this, is there?" And she looked at Gail Loveless with a pallid smile and said: "Poor little Lucille Lyndon. You were a good maid."

A captain of cavalry said to the laundress: "You recognize this—lady?"

"Yaas, suh."

"She is the actress, Pauline Cushman?"

"Yaas, suh."

He turned to an officer of horse artillery, who shook his head and said: "I have no question to ask this colored girl."

To Lucille this captain of cavalry said: "That is all. You may go."

She looked at Pauline Cushman, who looked steadily back at her. "I loved yuh, ma'am," said the little laundress—"only yuh turned Yankee."

"I love you still," said Pauline.

"I—I hope, ma'am, that you'll come to no harm," faltered the little laundress.

"Nothing really can ever harm the soul," said Pauline Cushman.

So they acted the last scene, and parted; the ruling passion strong in death, and both of them perfect in their art, even in the shadow of death's descending curtain.

Cavalry Attacks

Gailliard followed the girl to the veranda; and here she seemed to grow giddy, swaying backward—into his arms.

"I like it," she admitted, looking up at him demurely. Death lay cold in her frightened heart. This is Operator 13 in a situation: a wrong word would cost her life.

Operator 13 apparently passing the time of day with a gentle old Negro loafer—in reality transmitting information through him as an agent of the Federal government to the United States army command in the field against the South.

"I'm glad of it," cried the South's Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, 'We're off for Pennsylvania.'

She was a light burden. He lifted and carried her out to a garden seat under the great oaks, returned to the house and came again, bringing a glass of cold water.

A noise of spurs and sabers on the veranda aroused her. The gentlemen of the drumhead court were returning to the cavalry camp on the hill. Gailliard, who went hastily to join them, stood aside at salute as Pauline Cushman appeared between two troopers with drawn sabers. She moved with all the dreamy acquiescence of one prepared for death.

The little laundress rose on legs that trembled. "Are they goin' to hang her?" she whispered to Capt. Gailliard.

"Yes."

"Now?"

"Tomorrow at sunset. They are taking her to the provost. You'd better go back to your tent. Shall I walk with you?"

"If yuh—would be so kind, suh."

They moved slowly and in silence across the grass. The cavalry camp, as yet, showed no sign of midnight departure; sentries walked their posts; lights were extinguished except at headquarters and in the provost guard tent.

"Is she in there?" asked the laundress.

Before Capt. Gailliard could reply, a hissing rush and a glare of light dazzled them as a rocket soared skyward from the river below. Another glare blinded them; another and another, as rocket after rocket swished upward; and bang, bang, bang went cavalry rifles and carbines.

Instantly their ears were deafened by a perfect hell of trumpet and bugle blasts; shouting of half-dressed officers stumbling out of tents. Torches blazed; everywhere men were saddling horses, pulling their mounts into line; volley after volley of musketry rattled out along the river.

An officer, riding up, called out to Gailliard. "Yankee cavalry attacking at White's Ford!"

In the frightful racket and confusion, amid darkness and fitful torchlight, the laundress ran crouching toward the provost tent. Under her single garment, strapped to her naked body, was a long, razor-edged knife in a velvet sheath. She threw herself flat on the wet grass, felt for it, and reaching out, slit the tent wall swiftly without a sound.

Out and Away

So keen her knife's edge, so silently she accomplished it, that the woman lying on a blanket within never heard or saw her; nor did the armed sentry, craning his neck out of the open flap to stare at the rifle flashes along the river below.

It was only when a soft hand touched her cheek that Pauline Cushman sat up swiftly and looked fearfully behind her.

The next instant she was out of the tent and off in starry darkness down the hill.

The little laundress, trembling at the door of the cook tent, saw Jeb Stuart gallop up in the torchlight, followed by a staff officer from Hampton; and he heard him say angrily to Rooney Lee:

"Pleasanton has broken into Martinsburg with a thousand cavalry and six guns! Sir, I give you twenty minutes to throw him out and across the Opequon!"

At that instant a frantic sergeant of the provost guard rode up to report the provost tent wall split and the Yankee spy vanished.

Stuart glared at him, blue eyes ablaze. Suddenly he shouted with laughter. "I'm glad of it!" he cried gayly; "we're off for Pennsylvania, and I don't care whether the whole world knows it! May God speed her pretty feet! Stand to horse!"

In the darkened quarters of the cook tent the little laundress lay on her blanket amid her baskets and hampers and scattered laundry. Sometimes she shivered, and sometimes she quivered with sheer joy in the dreadful game so safely ended where she had faced and defied and euchred Old Man Death.

Close to her tent the troopers when riding on their way down to the Opequon, laughing, joking, bragging that they had 20 mintues in which to chase the Yankee cavalry out of Martinsburg, and that 10 minutes would be quite enough.

One of the harum-scarum riders, passing, leaned low from his gaunt horse and pulled up the flap of the cook tent.

"Where's the pretty little yeller gal?" he called out. "I reckon I'll need a laundress myself when I'm promoted gin'ral of this hyar army!"

The little laundress, lying on her dark blanket, brushed the tears from her frightened eyes and giggled.

Capt. Jack Gailliard, of the Confederate Secret Service, was a bad young man, according to Allan Pinkerton, known as Maj. Allen, chief of the Federal Secret Service. But he was a good young man to gaze upon, even in his careless attire of a Virginian Valley farmer.

He came along whistling blithely that lovely October morning, sauntering down from Stuart's cavalry headquarters under the oak trees into the charming old village of Martinsburg. Guileless gaiety made even more innocent his beardless, sun-tanned face. He whistled and sang "Lornea" soulfully. But his secret young mind was dark with deadly thoughts, and he meditated stealthy schemes as he strolled along whistling and singing:

"We loved each other then, Lorena.
More than we ever dared to tell."

Spy to Find

Gailliard's clever brain was busy with dangerous designs because a cipher dispatch from Mr. Gaston, General Lee's chief cipher operator in Richmond, had just come in, warning Confederate secret service operators at Jeb Stuart's headquarters that somewhere another Yankee spy had penetrated the Confederate lines on the Potomac. Which information made it grimly necessary to identify, catch and hang that spy lest Jeb Stuart start on his reckless ride to utter ruin with two thousand laughing horsemen.

'It matters little now, Lorena,
The past is in th' eternal past,
Our heads will soon lie low,
Lorena."

He warbled it in a melting baritone as he came in sight of the Boyd place— a two-storied house guarded by silver maples and almost smothered in roses and honeysuckle in late bloom.

Just beyond the house ran a broad, clear, rapid stream—the Opequon—where a young colored girl knelt on a sandy crescent, washing clothes. Then suddenly—and as always heretofore, and always to his surprise and chagrin—he experienced the same odd, breathless excitement, at sight of the girl, felt the same throbbing trouble in his heart and a swift heat in his bovish cheeks at the mere nearness of this lithe, brown-skinned, half-naked young girl.

Shameful Emotion

He had seen her at intervals, now, for about three weeks; and this had happened to him from the very first sight of her, had even increased in violence, this sudden, passionate awareness of her—and her lovely pale brown features, her velvet-fringed eyes and the slender grace of her warm, breathing body.

That such a girl could have any emotional effect upon Gailliard, of Bayou Princess, seemed incredible. Annoyed, perplexed, ashamed, he would not even admit it to himself, and yet here it was happening again—the swift flush painfully warm on his face, and the same sudden trouble with heart and pulses.

"Mawnin', Cap't Gailliard, suh," she drawled in her sweet, childish treble.

"Good morning, Lucille," he replied with forced carelessness. "Are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd at home?"

"No, suh; but I reckon Miss Belle is. Look at all these hyar pretty clothes! Miss Belle done buy 'em when she wuz visitin' in de Washington prison."

"Who told you that?" he inquired, stopping beside her.

"Miss Belle she done tell me, suh. Axed me wuz I keerful, an' if I knowed how to wash fine linen."

He glanced down unwillingly into her upturned face. The girl was so delicately brown—scarce darker than a brunette—so daintily made and so pretty that always when he saw her his first suspicion revived that here was a girl of his own color in disguise; and he could scarcely force himself to believe she really was a Negro.

But the pale bluish half-moon at the base of her fingernails had proved her dusky skin to be no disguise. She certainly had African blood in her.

"How are your flaming love affairs coming on, Lucille?" he inquired, with dry humor, yet oddly unquiet.

The girl giggled and turned to her washing, with a provocative twist in her slim lips.

"You better keep away from white soldiers," he added sharply.

"They're always pesterin'," she laughed, soaping a chemise of frail, sheer stuff. "Yuh done kiss me once yuhse'f, such," she added with shy audacity.

Russian Conditions Bad, Savant Says

Housing and clothing conditions in Russia, judged by civilized standard, are intolerable, according to Dr. Ethan T. Colton, who spoke last night in Carnegie Lecture Hall. He continued:

"On the other hand, one credit is the setting up of full social protection to the workers as an integral part of the economic order."

Sewickley Estate Distributed in Will

The will of Abby C. Adair, of Sewickley, filed today, provided for the distribution of an estate valued at $20,000.

Besides two bequests of $1,000 each, the will provided that the remainder of the estate go in trust to a niece, Margaret Irwin Mackay, and gave her authority to will it at her death. Fidelity Title and Trust Company was named executor.

AWAITS BURIAL AS BROTHER SEEKS FUNDS

Body Rests in Privacy Of Morgue Basement At Kin's Request

The body of Margaret Schwickrath, the "mystery girl," rested in the privacy of the morgue basement today while her brother, John Schwickrath, of Haydenville, near Greensburg, endeavored to raise funds for her burial.

The body of the slain girl was removed from the case where it was viewed by thousands in the last 10 days, at the request of the brother, yesterday. To many visitors who called at the morgue to view it, Morgue Superintendent John P. Black explained that it was not necessary to have the body displayed longer because identification had been accepted.

HELD IN JAIL

A murder charge was filed by county detectives against Roy A. Mull, 43; his wife, Grace, 39, and their son, Elmer, 19, before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan as Attorney Robert B. Ivory, Jr., instituted habeas corpus proceedings to obtain their release.

After learning that a murder charge had been lodged against the three, Judge Sylvester J. Snee ruled that presentation of evidence was not necessary, and ordered them remanded to jail without bail pending a hearing, probably next week. He stated that they should not be removed by detectives for further questioning.

SEEKS SISTER'S PAY

The report of F. C. Buckmaster, county chemist, on the analysis on stains found on the trousers worn by Roy Mull and on a rag and a pillow found in the Mull automobile, in which the couple and the murdered girl went to Haydenville from their East Ohio street home a day before her body was found in an Allegheny boulevard storm sewer, is expected about Tuesday.

Schwickrath said he will attempt to collect the $16 pay of his sister, previously collected, detectives say, by Mrs. Mull. He will use the cash in telegraphing relatives for burial expense.

TOWNS SEEKING GAS RATE CUT

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Representatives of 35 Southwestern Pennsylvania towns yesterday conferred with the Public Service Commission and counsel for the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company on gas rates charged by the company.

The Utility League for Municipalities, representing the towns and headed by D. Glenn Moore, Washington, sought an agreement by which lower rates could be obtained without recourse to a formal complaint case. Moore was accompanied by David I. McAlister, Washington, counsel for the league, and Robert M. White, New Castle city solicitor.

They conferred with Commissioners George Woodruff and P. Stephen Stahnecker and A. Leo Weil, counsel for the company.

The meeting produced no final agreement but further conferences will be held.

U. S. HOLDS BOSS OF TROUPERS

Albert Hunter, alias Brother Albert, a Negro, of New York, who headed a theatrical troupe of white and Negro performers that came to Pittsburgh three weeks ago from Cleveland, yesterday was held for court under the Mann act by the United States commissioner. In default of $2,500 bond he was committed to jail.

Two white girls, who said they joined the troupe in Cleveland, testified against Hunter. He previously had been held for state court at a hearing in Morals Court, following a raid at a Center avenue hotel, where Hunter and some of the members of the troupe were stopping.

Following the hearing in Morals Court an agent of the division of investigation, Department of Justice, preferred the federal charge against Hunter.

BAR CRITICIZED IN DISPUTE ON PROBE COSTS

The Allegheny County Bar Association yesterday came in for more criticism from County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who again turned down the proposal to appropriate additional money for the bar's probe into professional conduct of certain members.

County Solicitor J. P. Fife, in a letter to the Commissioners, had recommended the Commissioners appropriate funds to renew the "shyster probe." To this McGovern said:

"It's not the function of the taxpayers or the County Commissioners to keep the lawyers honest. Let them rob each other for awhile. They should keep their own house clean and we could do a lot better by putting a few laborers to work."

SUBMITS REPORT

Fife in another letter to the Commissioners gave a report of the bills submitted by the probing committee of expenses incurred during the investigation.

He said he felt Donald Anderson, secretary of the committee, had done his work well and was entitled to $2,400 due him in salary which the Commissioners had refused to approve.

An investigation of the bills by the Commissioners led to the discovery that bills had been paid in duplicate, resulting in about $1,500 more being turned over to Anderson than was due at the time.

After Fife's letter was read Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said:

"What I cannot understand is why they are all standing up for this fellow Anderson."

SEES CARELESSNESS

Fife replied he was not standing up for Anderson. He said he believed Anderson had done good work, but that his accounts had been kept carelessly.

McGovern then said:

"Someone is standing up for this fellow. I would not vote to pay Anderson a cent of that $2,400 we owe him. I don't think he should be crucified but at the same time he got things mixed up in a terrible state.

"The Controller should have caught the mistakes. He's a lawyer. The Vogt (Prothonotary John Vogt) is coming up soon and he's got his books in such shape that no one will ever find out what it's all about."

After a lengthy discussion the Commissioners decided to have their auditors obtain all the unpaid bills of the commitee for approval, after which they will be paid direct. Then the Commissioners will deal directly with Anderson as to the money due him for salary.

NATIONAL CITY HEAD HERE DIES

Robert G. Young, 46, sales manager of the Pittsburgh office of the National City Company of New York, died last night in his home at 5821 Ferree street.

He was born in Toledo, O., was a graduate of the law school of the University of Michigan in 1908 and was admitted to the bar in 1908. He engaged in general law practice until the World War when he offered his services with the Federal Reserve Liberty Loan activities. In 1918 he formed his connection with the National City Company and was located in Akron, O., until 1922, when he removed to Pittsburgh.

Mr. Young was a member of the Duquesne Club, the Oakmont Country Club, the University Club of Pittsburgh, the old Union Club, the Bankers' Club of Pittsburgh, the Bond Club of Pittsburgh and the Toledo Club of Toledo, O.

He leaves his parents, George R. and Mathilda A. Young; his wife, Mrs. Ruth Ann Burton Young; a daughter, Ruth Ann Young; a son, Robert Barton Young; three sisters, Mrs. James G. Rowe, Mrs. Howard Ickes, and Mrs. Kenneth Smedecor, all of Toledo, and a brother, Walter J. Young, of Maplewood, N. J.

Desperado's Girl Chauffeur Held

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Federal authorities today held Miss "Bobbie" Moore as the girl who assisted in the escape of Verne Miller, notorious southwestern desperado, from a trap set by federal agents at a Sheridan road hotel here.

Miss Moore drove Miller away in a speedy coupe last week as officers opened fire on the desperado, it was charged. She was arrested when she went to the Federal Building to visit Mrs. Vivian Matthews, who was found in Miller's hotel apartment after he fled.

The control is in the hands of the passenger, however, and he can switch stations, or tune out if he wants to.

Gov. Gore Sails From Porto Rico

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Gov. Robert Gore left Porto Rico last night by steamer for New York, accompanied by his family.

As soon as he arrives there he expects to go directly to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for observation and a possible operation. His trip is being made on advice of physicians.

Man Who Jumped As Airplane Fell Hurt in Landing

PRIVATE ROBERT GAULT

Parachute and Suit Credited With Saving Life

The heavy silk parachute and the padded flying suit which saved the life of Private Robert Gault, formerly of Stowe Township, when he jumped from a spinning Army plane en route from here to Washington, were stored in his mother's kitchen here today, awaiting his recovery in Cumberland Hospital.

Good samaritans who rescued Gault after his fall, and carried him to a gas station, also called his mother here, Mrs. Mary E. Stevens, of 822 Broadway, Stowe Township.

She hurried to his bedside Wednesday night. An X-ray will be necessary, physicians told her, to determine the extent of her son's injuries.

SAVED BY SUIT

His heavy suit, she says her son told her, probably prevented his more serious injury when he tumbled into a tree on a cliff's edge near Cumberland, Md.

He was forced to "bail out" for the first time, she says, when the pilot, Lieut. Fabian Popo, could not get their ship out of a sudden spin. In a freak air accident, Pope was out on a wing, preparing to jump too, when the plane suddenly righted itself and he was able to pilot it safely to Bolling Field, Washington.

SECOND ENLISTMENT

Her son has always been enthusiastic about aviation, according to Mrs. Stevens. He is serving his second Army enlistment, transferring to the Army Air Corps from the Coast Artillery three years ago.

His wife is ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Howles, of Island avenue, McKees Rocks, and unable to be with her husband.

ABUSE CHARGED BY WIFE

Her husband sometimes exhibited his wrestling talent by hurling her to the floor, Freda Hendel, 330 Elysian avenue, testified before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in seeking a divorce from Harry B. Hendel, moving picture proprietor. He kept late hours, she said, continuing:

"When I asked him where he had been he abused me. He made a nervous wreck out of me."

He once threw a shoe which struck her on the spine, causing an injury, she said. Her suit charges cruel and barbarous treatment.

Divorce suits were filed by Lou Etta H. Jackson against Charles T. Jackson, Fred Meyers against Marie Meyers and by Hazel E. O'Brien against Thomas E. O'Brien.

Divorces were granted to Anna Mae Ross from Anthony Ross, Emily Atkinson from Edward C. Atkinson, Florence A. Miller from Alfretta Miller, Agnes Klingensmith from George B. Klingensmith and to Wanda Sally Thomas from Hebert E. Thomas.

VANDERBILT OUT IN BRIDGE PLAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The defending champions have fallen from the Vanderbilt Cup Contract Bridge throne—deposed last night in the first round knockout play by an unseeded foursome from Atlanta.

It was the greatest upset contract bridge has seen in years. The Atlantans had a plus of 1,890 for 36 boards.

The ousted champions were Harold S. Vanderbilt himself, donor of the cup; P. Hal Sims, once captain of the famed "Four Horsemen;" Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz, considered one of the greatest psychologists in bridge, and Edward Hymes, Jr. All except Hymes are veterans of many championships.

Pitted against them were William Barrett, of Augusta, who is only 21; Whitner L. Cary, bridge editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Don Daniel, 18, and his mother, Mrs. J. T. Daniel, an Atlanta bridge teacher.

"Billy" Barrett is best known of the quartet. In 1931, when he was 19, he played with Ely Culbertson on the team that won the national team-of-four championships.

AIMEE'S GIRL IN LOVE RIFT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A broad hint the romantic Singapore marriage of Roberta Semple and W. B. Smythe may have collapsed was contained in statements the 23-year-old daughter of Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton made as she preached in Angeles Temple last night. Roberta said:

"I would be very happy if my husband could see things as I do. But—we just don't think alike. He has read so much philosophy that his head is fairly buzzing with ideas. My creed is very simple. If he objects to my work—well, I'm afraid that's just too bad."

Miss Semple and Smythe were married March 4, 1931, while the evangelist and her daughter were on a world tour. Smythe was purser on the liner on which they sailed.

Upon their return to the United States, it was announced that Smythe would work at Angelus Temple, but he took no active part in the organization. Last February he returned to the sea and is now in a steamship line office in Seattle.

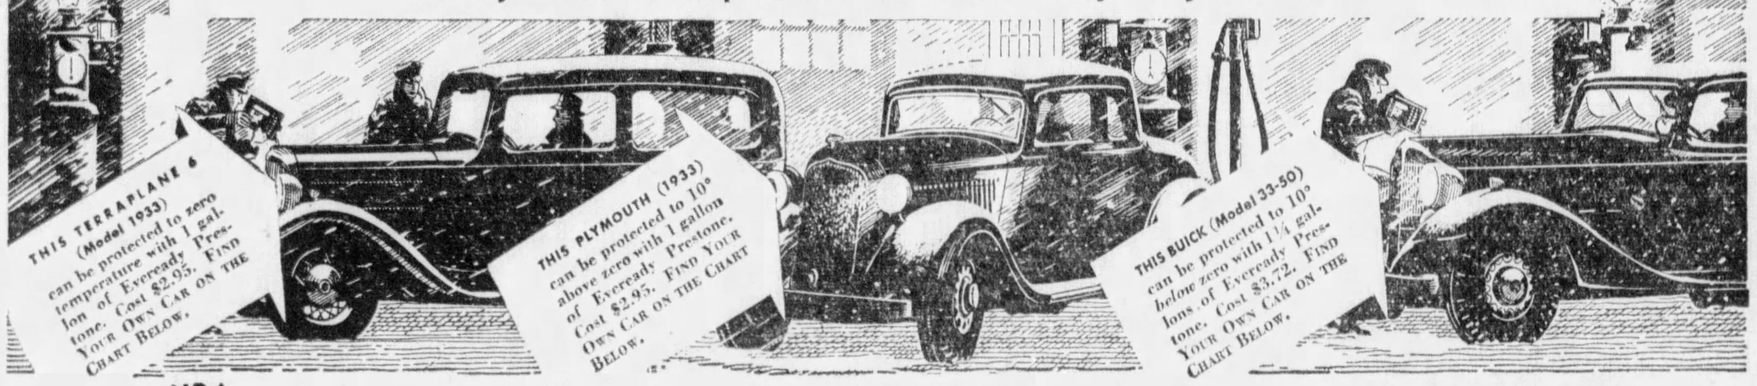
FREEZING WEATHER IS HERE!

Every hour is important to the safety of your car!



NRA

Put in EVEREADY PRESTONE

NOW $2.95 A GALLON

The same safe, all-winter anti-freeze sold last year for $4.45. Concentrated—not diluted or cheapened in any way.

HUNDREDS of cars out on the street and in unheated garages will have frozen radiators, cracked engine-blocks, and big repair bills before many more hours have passed.

Boil-away anti-freezes—a makeshift at best

If you buy a boil-away anti-freeze it will evaporate during the next warm spell and leave your car unprotected. You'll have the bother of continual testing and frequent refilling.

Formerly, boil-away anti-freezes, with all their faults, had one appeal—low initial cost. But today, at the new low price of $2.95 per gallon, Eveready Prestone is within the reach of all. And, of course, in all-season cost it offers real economy. It won't boil away or heat up your motor—even during the warm days. It won't cause rust. One filling will last you all season long.

How many "permanent" anti-freezes will last through the winter?

To bring you the honest facts on many so-called "permanent" anti-freezes, rigorous laboratory tests have been conducted. For hundreds of hours, each product was run through an automobile cooling-system at a speed and engine-temperature exactly duplicating actual driving conditions.

The 25,000-mile anti-freeze

Under this test Eveready Prestone was unchanged after 1000 grueling hours—still giving full protection not only against freezing, but against rust. Other anti-freezes, in the same test, broke down and became definitely corrosive in from 50 to 200 hours.

This test means that Eveready Prestone will protect your car all winter long—25,000 miles of driving and upwards.

The important thing in buying an anti-freeze is to figure cost to a definite protection point, not the price per gallon. See how reasonably you can get all-winter protection against freezing and rust with Eveready Prestone.

FIND YOUR OWN CAR ON THIS CHART

For example, a Model-A Ford can be protected to a temperature of zero with 1 gallon of Eveready Prestone. Cost $2.95.

Do not confuse Eveready Prestone with either alcohol or glycerine

Eveready Prestone is a distinctive patented product—approved by every car manufacturer, and by all leading radiator makers.

Many a can of "permanent" anti-freeze is nearly half water. Eveready Prestone is concentrated. At $2.95 a gallon, it is your safest, most economical all-winter protection against freezing and rust. Have it put in now.

An Absolute Guarantee

National Carbon Co., Inc., specifically guarantees that Eveready Prestone, if used according to directions, will protect the cooling-system of your car against freezing and clogging from rust formations for a full winter; also that it will not boil away, will not cause any damage to car finish, or to the metal or rubber parts of the cooling-system, and that it will not leak out of a cooling-system tight enough to hold water.

RADIO FALTERS WHILE HITLER URGES VOTE

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—After Chancellor Adolf Hitler had spoken 12 minutes in a closing election campaign speech directed to the entire nation today, the radio hookup which carried his voice to every part of the reich suddenly ceased to function. The radios resumed, however, after four minutes.

Hitler hurled defiance at foreign nations.

The German populace gathered through the nation to hear their leader through loud speakers erected at vantage points everywhere before they go to the polls Sunday to elect a straight Nazi ticket.

Hitler served notice that Germany would never again gather with other nations around the green table of diplomacy unless her equality were vouchsafed.

Lashing at what he called past regimes' mismanagement of workers' vital interests and the resultant class antagonisms, the Chancellor said:

"I care naught for titles; the only epitaph I want is that I did my job honestly and fearlessly. It is our children's interest I am thinking about.

"I am not so crazy as to want war. I know war. Many other statesmen do not. Germany's calumniators never saw a bullet.

"We do not bother about other peoples and they should not bother about us."

Derisive boos from the hearers answered the speaker when he said:

"You are represented abroad as bloodthirsty beasts."

Then he continued:

"In times like these, the only thing to do is to remain firm and not yield one iota."

Hitler reiterated his desire to stretch out the nation's hands to all former enemies and said Germany's security alone is endangered, not that of others.

The speech lasted 50 minutes.

Radio broadcasting stations in all parts of the world, including North and South America, relayed the address.

WILHELM'S KIN OPTIMISTIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Louis Ferdinand, possible heir to the German throne should the Monarchy be restored, observed his twenty-sixth birthday yesterday, optimistic concerning the future of his country.

The grandson of Former Kaiser Wilhelm said he was convinced the German people were capable of solving the nation's problems. His chief interest in the United States is automobiles and he is on the coast in connection with his association with a motor company.

The tall second son of the Former Crown Prince said Hitler in Germany and President Roosevelt in the United States are working toward the same goal—"each for what seems to be the best for his country."

GERMAN ARMS STAND UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. William P. Merrill, of New York, president of the World Alliance for International Friendship, said today Germany has "real justification" for her withdrawal from the Disarmament Conference "in the failure of the nations to keep their promises" on disarmament.

The root of "the ugly jungle growth of international misunderstanding" may be found in "sad and sorry failure" in the realm of spiritual forces, he told the opening session of the alliance's goodwill congress. He added:

"Nations have entered into agreements they knew were neither just nor practicable, through the working of unworthy motives."

U. S. Urged to Avoid Clash With Germany

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Rex B. Hersey, assistant professor of economics of the University of Pennsylvania, and Edgar Ansel Mowrer, fromer Berlin correspondent, advise a "hands-off" policy toward Germany as most advisable by the United States.

Hersey and Mowrer spoke at the Foreign Policy Association last night. Both speakers said anything the United States could do in Nazi Germany would lead to dangerous misunderstandings.

British Labor Party Asks Disarmament

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Requests for drastic disarmament are embodied in the Labor party's motion of censure to be moved in the House of Commons November 13.

The Labor group, overwhelmingly in the minority, asks complete abandonment of all air bombing and general abolition of all weapons now forbidden Germany under the Versailles treaty.

Churches Insured For $20,800,000

ROME, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Fire insurance totaling $20,800,000 was taken out today by the Catholic Church on Rome's two huge basilicas, St. Paul's and St. Mary Major.

The massive edifices of stone possess incalculable value and contain some of the greatest treasures of the church.

BORICH APPEALS TO HIGH COURT

The fight of Frank Borich, 38, national secretary of the National Miners' Union, against the Department of Labor's order for his deportation, has reached the Supreme Court of the United States.

Attorney Jacob Seligsohn, counsel for Borich, said an appeal to the highest court to review the case was filed yesterday.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Philadelphia, recently affirmed the decision of Judge R. M. Gibson of the Federal District Court, who upheld the deportation order and dismissed a writ of habeas corpus Borich had brought against W. H. Marshall, director of immigration in the Pittsburgh district.

Borich, a native of Yugoslavia, who came to this country in 1913, is charged with being a member of an organization advocating overthrow of the government. Pending action by the Supreme Court, the Circuit Court is expected to stay its mandate and continue his bond.

Faith Bacon, Hurt By Auto, Recovers

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Faith Bacon, former New York show girl and Century of Progress fan dancer, was released from the Columbus Hospital yesterday where she was recovering from a back sprain suffered in an automobile accident early this week.

BLIND VETERAN HERE FOR FETE

The most popular man in the 80th Division!

That's the way his comrades refer to Howard Wells, blinded by shrapnel in France, who is the first visitor to arrive for the 80th Division Armistice Day programs.

Mr. Wells arrived yesterday from his home in Petersburg, Va. Escorted by Charles R. Haley, local veteran, he called upon Mayor John S. Herron and was presented with a key to the city.

Although sightless, Mr. Wells travels and manages his business with ease. His home is near Camp Lee, where the 80th Division trained before the war. His friends say that Wells can conduct a tour of the camp grounds with more accuracy than a professional guide.

Wells was national commander of the 80th Division Association in 1929.

Aged Minister Shot; Unable to Explain

Found wandering in the yard of his home with a bullet wound in his face, the Rev. Robert Jones, 72, Negro, of 3945 Lorigan street, was in West Penn Hospital today in a serious condition.

Police questioned the aged minister but he was unable to tell how he had been hurt. Four Negroes residing in the Jones home were held for questioning.

AMBRIDGE RIOT PROBE ASKED BY LIBERALS

Declaring that the fatal rioting and bloodshed in Ambridge October 5 resulted from a violation of the NRA right of workers to organize, the League for Social Justice and the Civil Liberties Union today demanded an investigation by state and federal governments.

In a letter to Gov. Pinchot and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, a committee representing the two organizations today demanded that "those officials who exceeded their authority and violated our laws and constitution be brought to justice."

OFFICIALS BLAMED

The riot resulted in one dead and more than 50 wounded, the letter recites, and this they attributed not to lawlessness on the part of the strikers, but the determination "of the authorities both of Ambridge and Beaver County to break up the strike and intimidate the strikers."

The committee states that it investigated the rioting, but as an unofficial body it could not obtain testimony from the authorities or the industrial owners. However, the committee stated it had obtained statements from participants.

TERRORISM CHARGED

The committee's reports charges that "terrorization" was carried to the Valley Hospital, Sewickley, in that a company physician accused some of the wounded of being "Reds" and told one:

"You ought to be shot."

The report bore the signatures of Rose Stein, secretary; A. L. Wills, Herman Levine, Charles T Douds and Harvey O'Connor. O'Connor is the author of "Mellon's Millions." He was arrested by police at his home the day after the riot. He subsequently was discharged through habeas corpus proceedings.

FRIML ENTERS RADIO ROW

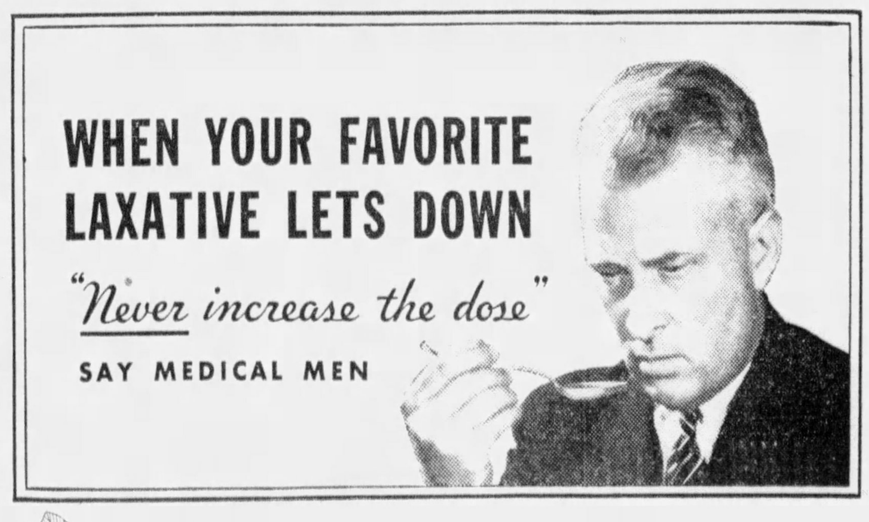
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Disagreeing with Sigmund Romberg, who said the radio kills a good tune in a few weeks, Rudolf Friml, composer, landed from the Italian liner Rex yesterday after a year's trip around the world.

Friml, famous for the music he composed for "Rose Marie," "The Vagabond King" and "The Three Musketeers," said people can never get tired of a composition if it is good. He added:

"What does tire people is the same treatment modern composers give their pieces. There is not enough variety."

He has brought back music for a new musical comedy, which will have its setting in Honkkong. He has given more time recently to Oriental music, believing the Orient is stimpulatin "if one doesn't stay too long."



If you've taken the same laxative too long, don't resort to taking double doses! You can always get action from just one Chocolate Cascaret. The system never gets "laxative stale" from cascara (a natural laxative from the bark of a tree).

You know strong cathartics are harmful. Any cathartic you have taken too long, nags at the bowels and is even worse. The system grows "laxative stale."

If the same dose you started with doesn't get the same result today, you are laxative stale and need a change.

Some people are laxative stale from even two months' use of the same laxative. Why not make a simple test that will cost you just ten cents? Take a Chocolate Cascaret; a real laxative, with a real chocolate taste. The finest chocolate candy you can buy has no finer flavor. But the important thing is the way cascara cleanses the system. Mild as it is, one Chocolate Cascaret is all you will ever need for a thorough, muscular movement of the bowels.

Cascarize the system every two or three days until the bowels are moving like clockwork of their own accord. Get the children's bowels working with the same regularity—youngsters need no coaxing to take a Chocolate Cascaret!

All druggists have plenty of the new Chocolate Cascarets now, for 10c, 25c and 50c. In the new brown box.

Children Cannot Strike Back

. . . but children were struck at last fall when demands for a deflated Welfare Fund budget ended in allowances so pinched that by midsummer the four children's agencies had to close their ears to all new calls for help. More than this, children removed from their homes for gross neglect had to be returned to these homes because there was no money for continued board. What became of them we do not know.

Daily telephone calls and pleas come to the children's agencies from hospitals, institutions and individuals begging them to take urgent cases. The only possible answer is "We cannot."

One deserted mother thus having to solve her own problem answered an ad for children to board and placed her baby there. She later lost her job, failed to visit the baby because she owed so much board—and we won't harrow you with the details of what happened to her child in that home. What became of the several hundred others who were obliged in their inexperience to try to solve their own problems, we do not know.

In the wake of unemployment come more and more dependent children.

Jobless men do not undertake marriage—and in one agency alone the number of unmarried mothers and their babies has doubled this year.

Jobless married men frequently desert. Wives of jobless men sometimes lose their minds.

The children are left to hold out their arms to that vague creature, The Community. We are forced to strike down those outstretched arms with the blow—"Not until January and then only if The Welfare Funa budget includes more money for children and if Pittsburgh subscribes that money."

Here is the day . . . November 13 to 28

Here is the budget $2,837,000

Those arms will not, cannot strike back. They offer no threat, though their stake in the future is greater than ours.

Shall we—The Community—take them into our care at last with increased pledges

To The Welfare Fund

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Today we have another debut with tall, attractive Katharine Ward, daughter of the C. S. B. Wards doing the bowing.

Her mother is presenting her today at luncheon in the Twentieth Century Club. Sister debs and a few of her mother's friends are the guests.

Decorations at the luncheon table will be in coral, repeating the accent given to the deb's costume by carved coral jewelry, a family heirloom. African daisies and coral chrysanthemums were used.

Of Coral Jewelry

The coral jewelry contrasted with the deb's gown of Schiaparelli-blue bagheera, made in the princess mode, having long tight-fitting sleeves and a scarf of the bagheera fashioned to suggest a high cowl neckline both in front and back. Her small hat was of the bagheera, and she carried a muff of coral roses.

Her mother was in black moss crepe with a hat to match and had a corsage of gardenias.

Honoring her young debutante sister, Vardi Marshall, Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., will give a tea in her honor November 25.

Here's a reminder—today's the day society women are selling all sorts of things that will make Christmas gifts at Calvary Episcopal's parish house.

St. Anne's Guild is holding its annual bazar today with Mrs. Henry Vaughan Blaxter as general chairman. Earnings will be used for the Guild's emergency relief work in the East Liberty district as well as for the poor of the parish. * * *

Among the spectators at the first hunt race meet of the Bath County Hounds Thursday at Hot Springs, Va., was Sewickley Heights' post-deb, Nancy Lee Byers.

2 Weddings Of November Announced

Announcements are made today of two November weddings, one to be on November 30, and one that took place on the first day of the month.

The bride of Thanksgiving Day will be Miss Dorothy Mae Lober, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lober, of Seward street.

At 4:30 o'clock that afternoon she will marry Edward A. Burg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burg, of Delmont street, in the Mt. Washington Presbyterian Church. The Rev. C. S. Wible will officiate.

On November 1, in the home of the Rev. W. R. Jamison, of Ingram, he officiated at the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Weinman and Ray W. Graham, of Oakdale. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will be at home in Oakdale.

Miss Sarah B. Golbitz Engaged to Jack Shaer

Mrs. Bertha Gilbitz, of Margaretta street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sarah B. Golbitz, to Jack Shaer, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Shaer, of Knoxville. No wedding date has been named.

Pittsburghers Register At New York Hotel

Recent arrivals at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, were Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer, of Shady avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Hattenbach, also of Pittsburgh.

Jennie Fair Married To Isadore W. Mandel

Mr. and Mrs. Isedor Fair, of Baywood street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jennie Fair, to Isadore W. Mandel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Borris Mandel, of Craft avenue.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Suggestion to Cinderella Ball committee—How about having a popular prize for the prettiest deb at the ball—the International Art Exhibit?

Some think Peggy Mitchell the prettiest; others, Louise Collier. As for myself, I think it's hard to choose one—our many debs this year are all so charming.

* * *

In the day-time our debs go in strong for sports clothes, with sweaters and skirts in the lead. And if the deb isn't in sweater and skirt, you can be sure she's wearing a wool sports frock.

At rehearsal for the Cinderella Ball yesterday, Peggy Mitchell wore a stunning yellow twin sweater set with a rough tweed skirt of brown with flecks of yellow. * * *

Mary Gordon and Peggy Robinson will be off for Princeton this week-end.

At the Dorrance-Humphreys wedding, weren't you delighted not to hear the same wedding songs, such as "At Dawning," which has been worn pretty threadbare.

The choir sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" just after the wedding march. And when the bride and bridegroom mounted from the chancel steps to the altar rail, the choir sang out "O, Perfect Love."

And the choir's recessional was that joyful hymn, "Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart" with the refrain of "Rejoice! Rejoice! Rejoice! Give thanks and sing."

Caroline Ketter To Be Married On Tuesday

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Catherine's Church, Beechview, Miss Caroline Ketter will wed William A. Taggart.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Caroline Ketter, of Belasco avenue, and her fiance is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Taggart, of Natchez street. Miss Martha Ketter is to be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. James McDonnell, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be matron of honor. Joseph Pritchard, Jr., will be the best man. James McDonnell is to give the bride in marriage.

After a breakfast in the Keystone Athletic Club, Mr. Taggart and his bride plan to make their home with Mrs. Ketter.

Crafton Departments To Meet Next Week

The literature department of the Crafton Woman's Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Ira M. Smith, North Linwood avenue, Monday. Different phases of "Old Wives' Tale" by Arnold Bennett, will be discussed by Mrs. J. W. Rodgers, Mrs. C. E. Lewis, Mrs. C. E. Stevenson and Mrs. J. L. Cox. Current events in literature will be given by Mrs. E. N. Zern.

The home department of the club will meet in Mrs. E. A. McCann's home, Lincoln avenue, Wednesday. Miss Janet Forbes will furnish the program.

Miss Matthews To Wed J. R. McGinley Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The Church of the Ascension on lower Fifth avenue will be the scene of the wedding of Miss Claudia Matthews and John Rainey McGinley II, on Saturday at 4:30 in the afternoon.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Norton, rector of St. Paul's Church, Rochester, N. Y., will conduct the ceremony.

Miss Matthews is the daughter of Mrs. Skinker Matthews of St. Louis and Paris, and of Claude L. Matthews, of St. Louis.

Miss Matthews is a graduate of the Mary Institute of St. Louis and has spent several years in travel abroad with her mother. She will be given in marriage by her father and her only attendant will be Miss Jessamine Goddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morril Goddard, of New York City.

The bride will be gowned in antique French lace over ivory satin. Her long train of lace, satin and tulle and the Medici sleeves of her dress are high fashion notes in a season devoted to elegance.

The bridal veil is fashioned of ivory tulle and Miss Matthews will carry a bouquet of white orchids. Miss Goddard's gown will be of coral and rust tulle and her bouquet of autumn flowers.

Mr. McGinley is the son of Mrs. Holden McGinley, of Milton, Mass., and Thomas Atterbury McGinley, of Sewickley, Pa.

Mr. McGinley attended St. Paul's School, at Concord, and was graduated in 1931 from Harvard University. He will be attended by Benjamin West Frazier III, of Lansdowne, Pa.

A note of reminiscence has been sounded in the selection of the Rev. Dr. Norton to read the services. He formerly was rector of the Church of St. Michael's and All Angels at Ellinwood, Mo., which church is built on the site given to the church by the bride's grandfather, Thomas Keith Skinker.

The Church of the Ascension will be decorated elaborately in white chrysanthemums. Ushers at the wedding will be: Rives S. Matthews, Hastings, N. Y., brother of the bride; George Rives Shaffer, Charlottesville, Va., a cousin of the bride; H. Ayres Brinser, Harrodsburg, Pa.; Stewart R. Dyckman, Dallas, Tex.; Alfred W. Baldwin, New York, and Benjamin Patterson Bole, Jr., Cleveland, O., a cousin of Mr. McGinley.

After the wedding ceremony Mrs. Skinker Matthews will entertain the wedding party and guests with a reception at the Ambassador Hotel.

Among the guests attending the wedding and reception will be Mrs. John Rainey McGinley, of New York, grandmother of the bridegroom; Thomas Atterbury McGinley, Sewickley; Misses Betty and Gertrude McGinley, Milton, Mass., sisters of the groom; Miss Isabelle and Miss Bertha Skinker, St. Louis, sisters of Mrs. Matthews; Judge Alexander Rives Hall, Montreal, Canada, cousin of Mrs. Matthews, and other guests from Cleveland, Milton and Boston.

La Wimoda Club Alters Form of Regular Meeting

In place of the regular covered dish luncheon, a short business session will be held Monday by the La Monda Club in the Lambskin Club rooms, Bellevue. A talk on foods will be given by C. H. Lehman, of McCann's, and the afternoon will conclude with a bridge party.

Methodist Ministers' Wives Meet on Monday

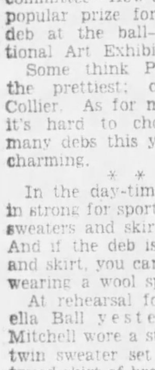
The Methodist ministers' wives of the Pittsburgh Conference will have a luncheon and informal gathering at the Congress of Clubs on Monday. For program there will be songs by Miss Bertha Schmid, with Miss Thelma Brandt accompanying, and readings by Mrs. Edward Boetticher.

North Side Chapter Giving Supper Thursday

Under auspices of the North Side Chapter, No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star, a sauer kraut supper and bazar will be held in Malta Hall, North avenue, on Thursday from 5:30 until 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Alma Remele is general chairman.

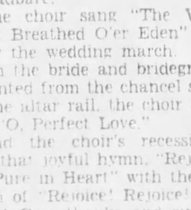
THROUGH THE SPYGLASS VIEWING THE NEW

These being the days when shop news of varied assortments is in order with holidays ahead of us, football around us, and life going on as usual . . . we take our spyglass, tried and true, and spy out the land of shops for you. For information on where to find the items mentioned here, call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass . . . or send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.



* * *

Somewhere, sometime, some nimble fingers have been busy making those filet scarfs which are being shown now for only 19 cents! Handmade . . . all of them . . . and measuring 36 inches long. To say they're remarkable is putting it mildly!



You'll probably be interested to hear that one of the shops in town has dug up all its Christmas cards left over from last year (clean and fresh, of course), and is offering them for half and less-than-half price. And so people-y, you see you can send such splendiferous cards as 25c ones all over the landscape for only 10c.

Many smart ones at 5c, 10c and 15c apiece!

And wrappings the same way! Such knockouts as black paper be-sprinkled with golden moons and stars . . . and white paper with quaint little snow scenes . . . and every sheet of it reduced . . . to 5c the package! (Some even used to cost 50c!) No wonder we counsel you to spend a couple of nickels and dimes now and tuck away some really unusual cards and wrappings for later festivities!

* * *

Shine on, shine on your windows, your mirrors, your windshield and so forth with the new cleaner spray we've discovered! This comes in a handy size can wearing a little spray business at the top, which, when squeezed, sprays your glass needing cleaning. "Just a twist of your wrist" and a clean window! No buckets of water to get kicked over . . . no splashing about in soapy puddles! And 50c works the miracle!

* * *

Skippy . . . bless his rascally soul . . . is now appearing on the sides of children's silverware. On little plates (with sly sayings of his engraved there also) . . . and in the form of a little figure beside a porringer!

Best of all, he's on a mug, which comes atop a wooden wagon . . . so that your small edition may drink his milk with one fist and pull his wagon with the other (if you allow such things). And the whole contraption costs only $2.25. (These pieces are silver-plated.)

* * *

There, there, little budget, don't cry! You can still have your entertainment set in spite of the ebb tide of your finances! Because one of the stores has just brought out a bee-yoo-te-ful cocktail tray of ivory with green designs of hunting scenes or scotties . . . and on the tray are encamped a whole battery of tall glasses—eight of them—and each wearing five stripes in a different color! The price? . . . $1.25, and not one penny more!

THE SPECIAL OCCASION DINNER GOWN

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A picture gown with a 1933 date on it, the model sketched right. It is of faille, that fine ribbed silk that has the softness of satin and the rich body of velvet, and the color is one of the rare fuchsia shades which pick up artifical light so successfully. Note the bit of arm which shows above the long tight sleeve with its fin ruffles. The front neckline is exaggeratedly high; the back proportionately low.

THAT "special" gown—the one that must be conjured into the wardrobe against the night that the president of your husband's company entertains, or the night when you must entertain him—will not be so hard to find this season. Just the prevailing cut of dinner gowns, long, svelte, and requiring little underpinning but a good corset, is becoming to most women, and there is certainly a catholic choice in fashionable colors.

* * *

ONE can select a model that shows long sleeves as its histrionic feature, or one that gives a pretty back its best play. Or if a low necked line all around and short sleeves are the most flattering, there are new versions of the jacketed ensemble that can be investigated. Sometimes the jacket is a detachable unit that masks a very formal gown; sometimes it is merely a capelet or bertha effect that is part of the frock's own design.

Some of the new novelty velvets that have a silvery sheen make beautiful tailored dinner gowns and jackets, models that are charming at home, and just as lovely when taken out places to do things, plus a chic, silly little evening hat. The fashionable gray which does not become every woman is often perfectly harmonious when it has this silvery velvet cast to lighten its neutral elegance.

* * *

AMONG the more striking lames of the new season are those which combine beetroot shades with dark gold or bronze threads. In very pliant, sheer lame, this coloring is regal in a feminine way which consents to leave off the tiara, as it were, and not be too opulent for a smart occasion where a few are gathered together. Plain satin shoes in the beetroot shade, bedizened with slim, plain gold heels, and worn over sheer gun metal stockings strike just the right accessory note with such a gown.

Concert Form Planned for Opera Day

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Instead of the costume presentation of scenes from operas, such as have been given for several years, the Tuesday Musical Club will have its opera program (Tuesday) in concert form. The compositions chosen by Mrs. Lewis E. Young and Mrs. Helen Bell Rush Davis, are arias which were written from 1866 to 1927.

To open there will be the overture from "Mignon," played by the String Ensemble, with the assistance of W. L. Shultz, oboe; Julius Bielo, double basso, and James Morrow, French horn. Ottilie Kruger is to sing "Je Suis Titania," by the same composer, Ambroise Thomas. Then will follow arias from operas by Bizet, Gounod and Massenet, sung by Joseph Lang, baritone; Anne Woestehoff, contralto, and John Dickson Fulton, tenor.

For the second half of the program Edith Canter Lazear will do "Madre, Madre" from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," with a male chorus assisting. In the chorus will be Samuel Murphy, Ellsworth Davis, Robertson Tilton, Adam McNaughton, Ralph Maser, Percy Dorrington and John Edmondson. Donizetti, Bellini, Moussorgsky and Deems Taylor will be represented on the program, too, each soloist making a second appearance.

Mae Kober Ladley, secretary of the club choral, will be hostess at a bridge-breakfast on Wednesday at 10:30 in her Wellesley avenue home, as a benefit for the choral budget. Mrs. Ladley has the assistance of Mrs. D. A. Rosser, Mrs. E. O. Austin, Mrs. S. J. Ratcliff, Miss Marion Murdoch, Mrs. H. H. Hanna, Miss Anna Whitten, Miss Katherine Jane McCullough, Mrs. Charles Aufhammer and Miss Gretchen Aufhammer.

Republicans Defeated Selves, Mrs. Gann Says

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Asserting Republicans are defeated "only when we defeat ourselves," Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, sister of former Vice President Charles Curtis, predicted yesterday the party "will come back on the wave of present day political unrest."

She told 300 members of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania:

"A mere change of party government won't cure world ills. The depression is still with us.

"It is up to us now to recover what ground we have lost. If we work hard we can gain control of the House of Representatives in 1934 and start on our way back."

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

A Columnist, Who Thought a Sec'y Was a Disguised Voice on the Phone, Jots a Few Notes to Himself!

Dear P. Y.: I had the porter dig into the mothballs to find the typewriter you used last year when you were doing this column—the one with the head-rest attachment . . . Now you can check out of the hotel and do your sleeping right at the desk . . . The porter is a pretty thoughtful chap and said he would attach a little invention of his own . . . The way he explains it is that it connects with the keyboard, and a small mallet falls on your head every hour—thus preventing you from oversleeping . . . Please call Bert Lahr . . . He heard you got to bed before 6 yester-dawning and is worried there may be something wrong.

John D. Rockefeller called . . . But it was the wrong number . . . Everybody has had his say about the demise of your loyal friend, Texas Guinan . . . Perhaps she was misunderstood by the hinterlands, but here's part of a letter from the mother of Elaine Reed, one of the many gals for whom she asked a Big Hand . . . It reads: "Dear Mr. Yawitz: As a mother who knew Texas, I want to say that New York has lost a great soul. It was backstage in 'Padlocks of 1927' that she gave her advice and friendship to my daughter. Her very first words to all her girls were—'Be good always; you can't be an artist and be otherwise'. And she always lived up to that ideal herself. The Queen of All Troupers is dead! But her spirit will survive forever in the younger hearts of Broadway. And she will be an angel in heaven as well as she was on earth" . . . And those who didn't know Tex can get an idea of what she was by this simple expression of an average mother . . . There's a wire here from Jimmy (Cyranose) Durante . . . He says, "You can't keep a fellow with social aspirins down, and after all my setbacks I have finally been admitted to the Book of the Month Club."

Eric Wilkinson writes to say that the missing Elmer can be found at Mae West's apartment. Elmer called her bluff and went up to see her . . . You'll laugh at that advertisement that appeared in large type in the Wilmington Star — "Will persons who removed card tables from American Legion Home return same by tomorrow night and save themselves public embarrassment? Board of Directors" . . . I wonder if that office boy of ours was down South over the week-end? . . . The worst pun of the new season comes from Skiffer Holbrook who believes that a lot of men smoke, but Fu Manchu . . . But the outstanding pun of the ages will always belong to Marc Connolly, whose Chinese tailor once told him, "I'll Machiavelli good suit cheap."

Social Registerites who still have What It Takes to play in the local gambling hells have deserted the roulette tables entirely . . . It seems old-fashioned craps is back in its own with the older dowagers and debutantalizers leaning across the baize to shout, "Come Seven!" . . . Perhaps you can tell me the address of one of the spots—my mother needs a little excitement . . . Incidentally, this year's most mischievous deb is Beatrice Elphinstone. She shocked those who are still shockable at a party at the St. Moritz the other night by appearing with painted toes instead of stockings . . . Local screemie palaces who strive to make the columns by assembling odd title combinations in their electric lights usually get very little attention from you. But this one on an upper B'way marquee is a stroke of managerial genius: "The Private Life of Henry VIII—With His Six Wives" and "Three Little Pigs" . . . You've gotta drop in and hear Chic Endor sing "I Raised My Hat."

The Franklin Battans (Louanne Wilk) expect to be twinned . . . Fight promoters who previewed Max Baer in "The Lady and the Prizefighter," are already betting that the contender is a bigger box office draw than Jack Dempsey . . . The most amusing bit in the flicker is the scene in which Maxie sings and dances his way through a vaudeville act . . . There's something intangibly weird about the whole production, first, because it is, to say the least, somewhat the story of the fighter's own life, and, secondly, because it re-enacts fight history. I mean the scene where Dempsey and Jess Willard meet in the ring prior to the Baer-Carnera match. Dempsey looks over the crowd and chirps, "Well, Jess, looks like a bigger crowd than we had at Toledo," and the lanky, bulging ex-champ replies: "To tell the truth, Jack, I don't remember a thing about that afternoon—" . . . . I hear that gesture of Hollywood stars descending on the capital is a phoney one. . . Did you know that Bing Crosby supports an entire Indian tribe in Arizona? . . . An anonymous bridegroom writes dolorously to tell you that the honeymoon is over when he starts bringing the Sunday papers home on Saturday night . . . Call Abe Lyman . . . The Marion Wills-Burton Tanns will Clash in the Areno . . . Warren William refuses to play in "Wunderbar" because he has been refused co-star billing with Al Jolson . . . Lester Gaba, who designed covers for "Life" for the past year, has Forsaken It All and is cooling his temper with a trip to Mexico.

Mimes on the Fox lot complain their eyes have gone Hollywoozy as the result of the recent change from bulbs to carbon lights on the sets . . . Of all the pets in the world—and this is on the level—Delys and Clark, the chanters, are harboring a skunk . . . Helen Meyer called to remind you that you are to represent the Broadway commentators in the pageant at the Blue Eagle Ball at Sherry's, Armistice Day. She wants to know what sort of costume to make for you that will be representative . . . And I told her a suit of armor over a bullet-proof vest.

Your severest critic,
Paul Yawitz.

Joel Building Ranch Home For Bride

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—The rest of the honeymoon of Frances Dee and Joel McCrea will be spent not in a palatial Beverly Hills home but in two rooms of an uncompleted ranch house 60 minutes' drive from Hollywood.

This was the word received from Joel, as he reluctantly tore himself away from his bride and took the train for St. Louis, where he was to board a plane for California. Frances will remain near Washington for a number of days to complete her picture, "Rodney."

The chief reason why the young RKO actor hurries west is to start a crew of 50 men on a rush job to finish his ranch home by Christmas. Meanwhile, he and Frances will start housekeeping in the kitchen and dining room which are just about complete.

Joel's home is to be a combination of modern house and old-fashioned log cabin.

In one of the rendezvous the other night, the talk drifted to actors who have saved situations by their presence of mind.

Frank Darien, veteran player, recalled a smart young super appearing in a Civil War melodrama. The chap had only one line:

"Here comes the colonel."

After that, the colonel rode in on a horse.

But on the opening night, the horse took fright, jumped the cue and bolted across the stage into the opposite wings. Shaken but game, the super announced:

"That must have been the colonel."

Gary Cooper and Sandra Shaw had their bit of fun with the reporters at Phoenix. They denied that Sandra was in the party and pointed to the hotel register, which read: "Miss Veronica Balfe, New York City." Which you up-and-coming fans don't have to be told happens to be Sandra's real name.

Rumors persist that Isabel Jewell and Lee Tracy will be wed around Christmas time. The pair staged an affecting farewell when Lee recently boarded a plane for Mexico. Many tears and kisses. If it's true, however, Isabel isn't admitting it.

"We just like each other," she says.

The sartorial crowns of Adolphe Menjou and William Powell are being shot at by the dapper George Raft, who now owns 35 suits. Fine linen handkerchiefs are another fad of Georgie's. He has 200. Jack Larue, on the other hand, says that a film leading man can get along on six suits.

Henry's Life Grand Film In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

There is a fine photoplay on view in the Fulton, "The Private Life of Henry VIII. And its merit is not all in the grand characterization of a swell actor, Charles Laughton, who plays the part of England's bluebeard monarch. Besides his extremely plausible delineation of the much-married Henry, there is such a blending of historical facts with matters of entertainment value as to make the picture as diverting as any comedy drama of purely fictional and imaginary origin. And the nice part of its dramatic highlights is that no one can say "ah, that's a lot of baloney that could never happen anywhere except on the screen." It did happen.

While this picture is "historical" in a sense, it is not all of the history of the man who was called Bluff Hal. Nor is all that is in it actual history. It is rather a mixture of some comedy and some drama based on facts attending the life of an unusual figure, the mixture being intended to be not a historical textbook for the student, but an entertainment for the theater audience. It is an English-made picture with a wholly English cast, and it serves to show that the British can make good pictures, too.

Shadows of Henry's life with five of his six wives make up the content of the story, his first wife, Catharine of Aragon, being omitted because, as the foreword states, "she was a good woman." Although two of the five are beheaded, the picture is not in any sense gory, the matter of executions being handled delicately but effectively. The Anne Boleyn episode is especially shadowy because the picture begins amidst preparations for her last experience as the one who is to be her successor is taking stock of the future. And it ends with a comedy note—the doughty King, old now, sneaking forbidden food, like a schoolboy, during the absence of his sixth wife, who "manages" him. Of her he says, "the best is the worst."

Laughton dominates the story, and he gives a characterization that will live long among the notable screen portrayals. It is a picture that runs the gamut from grossness of appetite, joy, pride, vanity and self-will, to deep and tender feeling and the profundity of grief when he learns of the infidelity of one he has adored.

Only one overmatches him, the crafty Anne of Cleves, whose bridal bed is made a gamester's table to win her freedom.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Cornelia Otis Skinner will again bring something new and original in dramatic entertainment when she presents her sequences, "The Loves of Charles II," "The Empress Eugenie" and "The Wives of Henry VIII," in the Nixon during her three days' engagement beginning Thursday, November 16, with a matinee on Saturday. "The Loves of Charles II" touches the highlights in the life of the gayest, most reckless and probably the profligate monarch. It follows his checkered career from his days of exile and poverty in Belgium through his triumphant march to the throne. Nell Gwyn maintained a firm hold on his fickle heart to the very moment of his death. "The Empress Eugenie" is a portrayal of the vivid and stormy life of the dazzling Eugenie de Montijo, who became the wife of Louis Napoleon, last emperor of the French.

Miss Skinner will present "The Loves of Charles II" Thursday evening, November 16, and at the Saturday matinee. She will give "The Wives of Henry VIII" Friday night, and "The Empress Eugenie" Saturday evening. Each of the sequences will be preceded by a group of Miss Skinner's character sketches.

When Katharine Cornell returned from her summer's holiday in the Bavarian Alps, she told the New York reporters that whatever might be the press and the public's opinion of her Juliet, her first Shakespearean venture, she was certain that the road would insure the success of her forthcoming tour because good plays presented by good actors always are well received through the country. She said that her company shall be the best she can assemble.

"The so-called decline of the road is not due to talking pictures or to other competitive entertainments," Miss Cornell said. "It is due to the lack of first-rate plays produced in a first-rate manner. The way to become a good actor is to act on the road. Broadway is crowded with hothouse players who never have been out of the city."

Light Comedy On Stanley Screen

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Ruth Chatterton does a light comedy role satisfactorily in "Female," photoplay in the Stanley, in which the principal male role is played by George Brent. The story is rather annoying because it is neither dramatically teasing enough to arouse you nor humorous enough to tickle you except in a mild way.

Miss Chatterton is crisp and business-like as the head of an automobile manufacturing concern, but she has become the "super-woman" at the cost of the loss of any natural feminine appeal to men. Such proposals as she receives are so suggestive of being strictly matters of business that she becomes fed up. She goes to the extent of even throwing herself as bait to some of her employes, who are shocked into some kind of response that doesn't ring true, romantically.

Then, under circumstances that are far from conventional, though innocent, she meets one who seems promising. He, too, is one of her employes, but she doesn't know it. Nor does he, so he treats her as he would any other pick-up. This meeting leads to the most laughable part of the picture, which we will just avoid detailing, so you can get your laugh, too.

The story skates all around the thin ice of sex without any approach to anybody breaking it—remember we stated that it was annoying. Not that we care for sophistication, so-called, but something can be said for the honesty of the demand that things be either flesh or fowl.

Half the film is wasted—so it seems—in setting the idea that Miss Chatterton is a big business woman, with the accent on the B, during which nothing of any consequence happens.

Both Miss Chatterton and Mr. Brent do their work well, and there are a lot of other "names" in the cast, including Ruth Donnelly, Laura Hope Crews, Johnny Mack Brown, Lois Wilson and Kenneth Thomson.

Gibson, Pitts In Davis

By MARY SHINE

Wynne Gibson, Zasu Pitts, William Gargan and Charles Farrell connive to make a pretty slapdash affair of "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men," appearing in the Davis.

Aggie isn't ostensibly "on the make." She just makes a sissy into a very tough proposition, and falls in love with him. Then her former heart interest, whose favorite pastime is knocking out policemen, which keeps him in jail just long enough for Aggie to accomplish her Jekyll and Hyde transformation on mother's little man, returns.

Aggie decides that she will make a gentleman out of her bona fide hard-boiled egg and send her first experiment back to his social registerite fiancee. Aggie is played by Wynne Gibson and her two men by Charles Farrell and William Gargan. Zasu Pitts does a little hand wringing as Aggie's older sister.

Other film features include brief but interesting views of the Samoan Islands and a thoroughly dull comedy, "Hot Daze."

Miss Brian in Lead With O'Brien

Mary Brian has been engaged to appear in the leading feminine role opposite George O'Brien in his forthcoming "Heir to the Hoorah," from the play by Paul Armstrong. She will play the part of a New York society girl. The story departs from the Fox star's usual western roles and permits him to wear a boiled shirt.

New Pictures Showing

Max Baer, Myrna Loy, Jack Dempsey and Primo Carnera have principal roles in "The Prizefighter and the Lady," feature now on the Penn screen. Max Baer, wedded to Myrna Loy, leaves her when he gains fame as a fighter.

No Cause for Alarm

THE MANAGER of the small town bank finished inspecting the papers before him, and nodded in a satisfied manner.

"All right, Mr. Nelson. Everything seems to be in order," He smiled apologetically. "You see, we have to be very careful, inasmuch as you're new to us. I assume you wish to get right to work, Mr. Nelson?"

The other man, whose name happened to be Spike Jordan, nodded.

"Might just as well," he agreed.

Then, when the older man had left the office, a broad grin broke over his features. For a moment or two, at first, he had felt a trifle nervous. Not, he assured himself, that he had any cause for alarm. There was no chance of a slipup anywhere.

He'd been spotting Tom Nelson for a long while now. Ever since he'd been tipped off that Nelson had been appointed to the position of bank auditor. And when the newly-appointed auditor had started off on this trip to a small town for the purpose of inspecting the books of the bank there, Spike had trailed him.

Nelson had arrived that morning. And Spike had followed close on his heels. He'd engaged a room in the same hotel, on the same floor, in fact. When he heard the auditor start down the corridor on his way to the bank, he'd called to him, invited him into his room on a flimsy pretext, and after that it had been easy.

Spike had Nelson's credentials, his brief case, even his wallet. And the other man was in his room now in a drugged coma. He was good for many hours. Long enough, at least, for Spike to carry out his plans.

He'd remain late at the bank, of course, after the others had gone. By that time, he'd have learned the combination of the vaults, and there would be nothing to do but scoop the money into the brief case and depart for places unknown. By the time that they learned he wasn't Mr. Nelson, the auditor, he'd be so far away that it wouldn't matter.

It took brains, Spike told himself, to plan a thing like that. Any yegg could go into a bank and pull a holdup. But there was more of a chance of getting caught or killing a guy and getting sent to the chair.

Take, for instance, that gang that had been pulling a series of daylight holdups all over the district for the past couple of months. Last week they'd killed a teller. The week before that, they'd injured a guard, and it was still doubtful if the bird would pull through.

Not for him, Spike thought contentedly. When he did a job, it was with neatness and finesse. Take this, now. It had been a swell idea in the first place. And to look at him, no one would ever suspect that he wasn't Thomas Nelson, bank auditor. He looked the part. Thanks to his early training, he knew enough about books and figures to bluff it through the day, too.

The manager came back and showed him into a small office.

"Everything's all set, I believe," he said. "You may work here if you wish. I trust, Mr. Nelson, that you'll be quite comfortable while you're here."

Spike smiled slyly.

"I'm sure I will," he returned courteously.

"And if there's anything we can do to make you more so," the other man went on, "you can just . . ."

Then he stopped. And Spike, at the sound that ruptured the quiet of the morning, sat frozen where he was. For echoing through the entire bank came the loud clanging of a burglar alarm. Spike began to shudder violently. There wasn't another thing in the world that could unnerve him like that. The last time he'd heard one of them, the result hadn't been too pleasant. He'd spent a number of years in a prison cell afterwards.

His brain worked rapidly. He knew what was happening outside. It was a holdup. The gang, he supposed, that had been pulling these jobs all around here. His hands became cold as the ringing stopped, and then started again louder than ever. The cops would be there any minute now, Spike knew. Maybe one of them would recognize him. They'd think he was in with the gang. And he'd be held, not for robbery, but for the murder of that teller who had died last week.

Spike knew what that would mean. Grilling. They'd never believe he wasn't there as an "inside man."

The manager was on his feet. He was on his way to the door. Spike's terror mounted, and the effect of that steady clanging was pressing his nerves to the snapping point. He could think of nothing, except death in the electric chair.

He seized the other man by the arm. He began to babble, and his words were scarcely coherent.

"I'm not in on this!" he screamed. "I swear I'm not! You'll tell 'em that, won't you? I ain't Nelson—he's up at the hotel, but I didn't have anything to do with the holdup. All I know about those guys is what I read in the papers!"

He fell back in his chair, and dropped his face in his hands, sobbing hysterically. When he looked up, the manager was standing over him, and there was a gun in his hand.

"You'll tell 'em!" Spike was tearing at the man's sleeve. "I never killed anybody in my life. I only put Nelson away for a while."

The other man nodded grimly.

"I'll tell them," he agreed.

Spike drew a long breath of relief as the manager motioned him to get up.

"There's a guard outside," he said. "He'll take care of you. Come on, you—Nelson, or whatever your name is."

As they reached the door, he smiled strangely in Spike's direction.

"We read the papers around here, too," he stated. "We know all about that gang of bank robbers. That's why we sent for somebody this morning to test the burglar alarm." . . .

RYAN PAINTINGS UNDER HAMMER

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Thomas Fortune Ryan collection of paintings, objects d'art, books, period furniture and tapestries—one of the most valuable in the nation—will go under the hammer.

These works made a show place, for years, of the Ryan home on upper Fifth avenue. The capitalist—who left a fortune of upward of $125,000,000—once purchased $1,000,000 of property to add a few feet to his flower garden.

But this lavishness was not evidenced toward a son, Allan A. Ryan. They had been estranged for several years. In his will, the banker left his son a pair of cuff links.

Pitt Y's Planning Welfare Appeal

More than 150 students will take part in a drive for funds on the University of Pittsburgh campus next week, to be conducted by the university Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. organizations.

Half the proceeds will go to the County Welfare Fund and the remaining half to student welfare groups and Ling-nan University, Canton, China, where Pitt maintains two resident instructors.

FILM NOTABLES HONOR MARIE ON BIRTHDAY

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Seated around a monstrous cake weighing 500 pounds, 8 feet tall and 6 feet across the base, a crowd of 800 persons last night paid tribute to Marie Dressler on the 62d birthday anniversary of the beloved screen actress.

It was Hollywood's biggest and gayest birthday party. It began with a dinner dance on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's largest sound stage, with other phases of the celebration overflowing to other stages.

HUGE BIRTHDAY CAKE

At a signal within the great banquet hall all lights were extinguished and out of the darkness powerful spotlights stabbed at the center of the dance floor, where the giant chocolate cake had been hauled on a decorated electric truck, driven by white-garbed chefs.

Gov. James Rolph, Jr., Will Rogers, Lionel Barrymore, Jimmy Durante, Mary Pickford, May Robson and Polly Moran were among the speakers who lauded the personal qualities of the honor guest. Among those in the crowd were United States Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, and Mrs. Ashurst; Carrie Jacobs Bond, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil B. DeMille, Sid Grauman, United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, and Mrs. McAdoo, and Clark Gable.

The program was broadcast over a national hook-up.

FIRST ROLE

Will Rogers recalled that Miss Dressler made her first public appearance as "Cupid" on a pedestal in a church performance at the age of 5; that she was laughed at in an amateur theatrical at Lindsay, Canada, when she was 14, and in retaliation, she joined a light opera troupe.

From a part in a chorus at $8 a week Miss Dressler has risen to one of the highest salaried stars in pictures, but she arrived at the top over a circuitous route and knew the trials and heartaches of the show business before she made her first big hit, that of "Flo Honeydew," in the play "Lady Slavey."

She lives in a two-story red brick house in Beverly Hills with a housekeeper who has been with her for 18 years.

Prosecutor's Son Faces Auto Charge

Robert Bouton, 25, of New Kensington, who, police say, is a son of Victor Bouton, District Attorney of Westmoreland County, faced a hearing in Traffic Court here today after his automobile collided with a police radio cruiser at 1213 Wylie avenue shortly after midnight. Bouton was charged with reckless driving. No one was injured.

PARDON LOOMS FOR MANN

Universal Service.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 10.—Attorney General Cummings will recommend a pardon for Conrad H. Mann, Republican leader, organizer of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, convicted recently in New York on lottery charges, it is reported on reliable authority.

Mann is under sentence to serve five months in jail. He is scheduled to start serving his term next Wednesday.

It is learned Senator Bennett C. Clark, of Missouri, had conferred with Attorney General Cummings. It was said District Attorney Medalie, of New York, opposed clemency for Mann.

Clark was understood to have argued it would be a travesty for Senator J. J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, who recently was acquitted of lottery charges, to sit in the Senate while Mann languished in jail on a similar charge.

Last Man's Club Will Hold Banquet

The Last Man's Club, comprised of 11 men here who were members of the 107th Field Artillery of the Twenty-eighth division, will hold its annual dinner and election tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Stanley G. Cain and Harry Horn are present officers.

Quicker Relief Now From Pain

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence, to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glasses, above, tell the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headache, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

DOLL LADY

Is in Pittsburgh Again!
This Year She Brings Gorgeous

"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?"

Though 90 per cent water, the turnip contains sugar, cellulose, starch, pectin and minerals. It is appetizing when properly prepared and has disease-preventing properties.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

Housewives who need to keep within a budget are greatly interested in vegetables that are economical and health-giving. I feel sure that many important vegetables are omitted from the menu because they are little known, and perhaps because few cook them properly.

The turnip is a vegetable too much neglected in recent years, though it deserves great popularity. It is a thick fleshy root, grown in many parts of the world. It is cultivated in a variety of sizes and shapes. It may be round, long, squatty or spherical. This vegetable varies from the size of a small orange to a weight of over 40 pounds.

"Cruciferae" is the name given the group of vegetables to which the turnip belongs. It was so named because the four petals are so arranged that they form a cross.

The turnip was a popular food of the early Greeks. Large fields were used for its cultivation.

In certain countries, notably in Russia, the turnip is considered a delicacy. It is a popular food in Lapland, where it is often eaten raw. Fortunately, the turnip is easily cultivated and is grown in all climates.

The food value of the turnip is not remarkably high because it carries about 90 per cent of water. Sugar, cellulose, starch and pectin are found in it. Its mineral content is important, and it is an excellent addition to the diet because of its disease-preventing properties.

PUNGENT TASTE

The strong spicy flavor of the turnip comes from an essential oil. Its presence is more conspicuous in the older vegetable and many prefer turnips of strong flavor. Because of their pungent taste, turnips do not combine well with all vegetables.

They are delicious when cooked until tender in rapidly boiling salted water. When ready to serve, mash and add butter. Overcooking spoils the flavor. A recipe I recently came across advised combining one apple with three cups of mashed turnips, the mixture covered with bread crumbs and baked.

OFTEN SERVED RAW

Young and tender turnip tops make excellent greens. They are cooked in the same way as spinach and are often served raw in salad form or in combination with other vegetables. They are valuable for their mineral content, as I have said.

"Rutabaga," also known as "Swedish turnip" or "turnip rooted cabbage," is either yellow or white. The turnip-like root grows partly below the ground. It has a strong flavor similar to the kohlrabi.

Turnips are easily prepared. They are inexpensive and obtainable nearly all year round. They lend variety to the diet. Do not limit their use to stews and soups. Use them as a vegetable to be served separately, so that all members of your family may be able to appreciate their fine and appetizing flavor.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

1 10-lb turkey, oyster stuffing.

Clean, stuff and truss the turkey. Weigh it and compute the correct time for roasting, allowing 20 minutes for each pound. Then arrange the turkey on a trivet in a covered or uncovered roasting pan and roast it in a moderate oven of 350 degrees Fahrenheit for the figured length of time. In serving, remove the skewers, cut the threads, and place the turkey, breast side up, with the neck to the left of the platter.

OYSTER STUFFING

Four quarts stale (not hard) bread crumbs, 8 tsp. salt, ½ c. melted fat, 4 tbsp. chopped parsley, 4 tbsp. lemon juice, ¼ tsp. pepper, 2 qts. oysters, 1 ½c. oyster liquor.

Combine the crumbs, salt, fat, parsley, lemon juice and pepper. Add the oysters, from which all tiny particles of shell have been removed, and the oyster liquor. Mix well before stuffing into a 10-pound turkey.

* * *

FLUFFY OMELET—2 tablespoonfuls fat, 6 egg yolks, 6 egg whites, 6 tablespoonfuls milk or water, 1 teaspoonful salt, dash of pepper.

Melt the fat in a skillet and tip the pan to grease the sides and bottom. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; add the milk or water, salt, and pepper. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry, then gently fold them into the yolk mixture. Pour into the skillet and spread evenly. If a regulation omelet pan is used, grease both sides and pour half the omelet mixture in each side. Cook over a low heat until well puffed and delicately browned underneath—about 17 minutes. Then place in a slow oven at 350 degrees F. for five minutes, or just long enough to dry the top. Now loosen with a spatula, fold as for plain omelet, and turn on to a hot platter. Serve at once, as the omelet shrinks rapidly. Serves four to six.

* * *

PLAIN OMELET—6 eggs, 6 tablespoonfuls milk or water, 1 teaspoonful salt, Dash of pepper, 2 tablespoonfuls fat.

Beat the eggs to blend the yolks and whites, then add the milk or water, salt, and pepper. Melt the fat in a skillet to cover the sides and bottom. Then turn in the omelet mixture and cook over a low heat until a film of cooked egg has formed on the bottom. Lift the edge of the omelet and tilt the pan so that the uncooked portion runs under the raised cooked portion. Cook a minute longer and repeat the process. Continue until the entire mixture is set and a delicate brown on the bottom. Loosen with a spatula and cut across at right angles to the handle of the pan, being careful not to cut all the way through. Then fold the omelet in half from the handle to the opposite side. Turn on platter and serve immediately. Serves 4 to 6. To vary this omelet, ½ cup left-over, cooked, minced ham, tongue, chicken, dried beef, fish, or vegetable, or 2 tablespoons grated cheese or jelly may be spread over the omelet as it begins to set. Or they may be folded into the omelet mixture before it is cooked. Serve the omelet with white sauce, or cheese sauce to which fish or vegetables have been added.

DEMANDS FAIR FARM PROFITS

A warning to middlemen and profiteers that the margin between what the farmer gets and the consumer pays must be adjusted more fairly or an investigation of their operations may be necessary, is made by Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, in an article "Our First Planned Harvest," in the December Cosmopolitan.

To satisfy dissatisfied elements, he indicates that it will probably be necessary to have a complete look at the books of the various people who stand between the farmer and the consumer.

Secretary Wallace writes:

"Millions believe that when prices go down, the matter may be fixed by shouting in a loud tone of voice at Wall street, or the Chicago Board of Trade. Other millions believe in government price fixing. They say the government is all powerful and that by a simple wave of a magic wand, cotton prices may be changed overnight.

"Still others think that if the government would only enter into agreements with packers, milk dealers, cotton spinners and others, it would be possible to give the farmers much higher prices and the consumers much lower."

Secretary Wallace believes that under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration it is up to the farmers themselves to work out a particular plan to meet conditions.

Two Pittsburghers Honored at Cornell

C. M. Reppert, Jr., of 5625 Stanton avenue, and J. W. Todd, Jr., of 6941 Perrysville avenue, have been elected to Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering society at Cornell University, it was announced today. Reppert is one of the editors of the Cornell Daily Sun.

Junior Patrol

The first snow fell yesterday, fellows!

Although it soon melted, it made the streets and sidewalks dangerous and icy. Help people all you can this time of weather, fellows. Clean the snow and ice off your own sidewalks or sprinkle ashes or salt if you can't scrape the ice off.

You bet we know it's fun to sled ride and ice skate, and we hope you all have a lot of fun doing both this winter, but try to be careful, fellows. And try to be considerate of others. Sled ride, for instance, where there is little or no traffic on the hill. Skate on a pond or lake, not on the sidewalks where people have to walk.

Snowy sidewalks give some Junior Patrol members a good idea, we hear. They are going around to home owners and asking them for the job of cleaning the snow off their walks. It's a good way to earn some money, but you shouldn't stay out of school to do it.

When you ask for the job, tell your customer how much you will charge and what you will do. Then, if you are hired, be sure to do a good job. Clean the sidewalk perfectly clean, clear across. Remember, people who hire you will tell others what a good job you do. In that way you will get a reputation that is valuable to a good worker. Do it right, even though it takes you a little longer.

Here's a letter today from Bernice Betty Sobel, of 1029 Farragut street, Pittsburgh. She writes this mighty pleasant letter:

"Will you please tell me what we are supposed to do after we have joined? Please write me a letter when you send me my membership card. I am going to try very hard to be a good member and obey the Junior Patrol pledge."

First of all, Bernice, we would like to have you join a Junior Patrol club or form one of your own if there isn't one already in the neighborhood. You can have lots of fun and help others in a hundred ways.

Junior Patrol clubs have parties and meetings, help each other cook, sew and play games, and keep busy all the time outside of school.

A good Junior Patrol member, don't forget, will do his or her best to be a success in school with good grades and a pleasant smile for everybody. He is always interested in keeping himself and others safe. He crosses streets cautiously. He looks before he starts down stairs. And he keeps the Junior Patrol pledge.

"The 1c Additional Rebate on Fresh Milk Bottles Is Cancelled Forthwith"

THE REASON: We're told that if we don't—a price war, etc., lower prices to farmers, etc., etc., will result and more, etc's.

OUR ANSWER: You read it! (Above)

EXPLANATION

With a deposit bottle we CAN sell milk for 1c less than dealers who have no control over bottles. Our dairyman can pay as much and MORE to the farmers who supply him. He and we can make a profit—and you can save. Where's the harm?

But—we've enough wars on our hands. Take cigarettes—cut pricing is seriously injuring thousands of legitimate merchants—already suffering from additional expenses—and everybody losing money.

Take oleo prices—doing more harm to the dairy interests than a fair price on milk could ever do—on the other hand it's helping consumers.

P.S.—We've a swell new Dairymen's Milk Product. It's chocolate milk—made with whole milk and it sells for 11c a quart and bottle deposit. (Now we suppose the soda fountain operators will get mad.)

Really FRESH Coffee IS GROUND BEFORE YOUR EYES

A&P Coffee comes to you really fresh. Its freshness is natural freshness, not just preserved freshness. Coffee freshness cannot be imparted, developed or increased by any process. The only way to get coffee that is really fresh is to grind newly roasted coffee beans, and that is just exactly what is done for you when you buy A&P Coffee. It is ground before your eyes to suit your method of brewing, coarse for pot, medium for percolator, fine for dripolator. Choose any of the three A&P Coffees, each is of the very best quality.

Tattletales Often Start Much Unhappiness

Is it ever right to be a tattletale?

Or—getting down to cases—if you discovered that your sister's husband was philandering—

Should you tell her?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I wish you would help me decide what to do.

I have an only sister. I love her devotedly. I can't bear to see her being two-timed, and that is exactly what is happening.

She has been married for six years to a husband she thinks is a prince. She thinks she is happy. She has two children, a boy of 4 and a girl not quite 2. And she is always telling everyone what a wonderful man Bill is, how hard he works—and how patient he is about having to be away from home when business makes it "necessary for him to be out of town," or when he has to spend two or three nights a week "grubbing at the office."

And the truth is that everyone she talks to is secretly laughing at her, because her husband doesn't work night at the office. He chases around to parties with other women, and on two separate occasions I know positively that his "trips out of town" were trips with another woman—trips he didn't have to take "on business" at all.

WANTS TO TELL

Now this has me nearly frantic. It makes me simply boil with rage. I think I should tell her. She is so trusting and faithful, and if you could hear the comments people make about her blindness, and the way her husband is pulling the wool over her eyes, you would understand just how I feel.

I love her so that I can't bear to see people laughing at her or feeling sorry for her. It seems to me that it would be the kindest thing to put her wise.

But my husband and a cousin I have talked it all over with tell me I am wrong, and say I shouldn't "take her happiness away from her." But I can't feel as they do.

Please help me. Shouldn't I tell her? Of what good is the Fool's Paradise she is living in?

MAIDA.

Shouldn't you tell her?

No, my dear. Keep your hands off. It's not your problem, and you have no business to meddle in it. Yes, I know. You hate to think he is putting anything over on her. But on the other hand—

SHOULDN'T INTERFERE

Maybe he isn't. Maybe she knows, and is desperately trying to keep up a front, and if you interfere you'll destroy everything. For perhaps he'll wake up some day, and try to play the part of a real man, if things are left to work themselves out. And perhaps she knows that he has a decency in him which you don't suspect, and is banking on that decency to pull him through.

But in any event, the problem is between her and him—and you have no right to interfere.

But how about your loyalty to the sister you love? You can best serve that loyalty, my dear, by keeping silent—by standing by to give her all the comfort and understanding you can, if the storm does break.

No Tattletales! That is my answer to Maida.

What's yours?

Fay King Tells Some Simple Cures for Well-Known Ailments

By FAY KING

A trained nurse once told me that the two greatest antiseptics are soap and salt.

The finest teeth I ever saw were never cleaned with anything but strong salt water.

Most headaches come from bending the head too long over work. The nerves at the back of the neck become numbed. Roll the head around as far as you can five or six times in one direction and then unwind it in the opposite direction. This massages those nerves and you won't need pills or powders.

The best cure I've tried for a cold is to eat nothing all day, take a hot bath, drink the juice of six lemons, which just fills a glass, and go to bed. My cold was cured the next day.

Madge and Lillian Score in Their Appeal

I mentally salaamed to Lillian's flair for psychology as she finished her little tirade for Philip Veritzen's benefit.

His face relaxed a trifle, and he answered her gamin grin with a smile. But his eyes were still wary as he replied.

"I always have been glad to listen to whatever you wished to say to me, Lillian," he said with apparent sincerity. "I have no reason to change now. So tell me whatever is in your mind."

"It's Madge who must talk now," she said, and I braced my nerves for the ordeal of facing the keen-eyed man before me.

"First," I said, looking directly at him, "I want you to believe me when I tell you that your son and Mary are infinitely grateful to you for your munificence; infinitely thrilled by the plans you have made for them."

"With the exceptions?" he said sardonically.

"With no exception," I said firmly. "They appreciate everything, and are overwhelmed by your generosity. But—you know as well as I how gossamer are the threads of young romance; and before you broached these plans I knew that they had planned something very special, very romantic, for the five days which were all they thought they could have for their honeymoon."

"Do you know what their plans are?" Mr. Veritzen asked judicially. "Perhaps they could be fitted in—"

MADGE EXPLAINS

"Oh! Can't you see?" I burst out passionately, amending it to "Of course you see they couldn't be fitted in anywhere, for no one save themselves has any idea of what they're going to do. Only to me have they confided a word, and then only to say that they're going to do something special that they both love, and that means a lot to them. I know that they're arranging to start away in Noel's old car, for they're planning the luggage to fit it. But from the look on their faces when they spoke to me about it, I know that it is a plan which should not be spoiled. It will be a precious memory all their lives, whatever it is, and I am so anxious to save it for them."

"As I understand it," Mr. Veritzen said slowly, and there was a chill in his voice, "you are asking me to substitute this romantic plan of Noel's for mine. Well!"

"She is asking no such thing, Phil Veritzen," Lillian struck in vehemently. "All we want is this. Let those children have the five days as they originally planned them, asking no questions as to where they are going—only letting them have the new car and the motor coat for Mary you are so generously providing—then at the end of that time let them go on with the wonderful time you have planned for them."

NOEL LIKE MOTHER

His face lost its coldness, but he was not yet ready to yield.

"They do not want to chuck the whole thing, then," he said. "I thought perhaps they were opposed to the social engagements I had planned for them."

Even as I hurriedly murmured, "Oh, no, indeed!" I was remembering Mary's face as she contemplated "being on exhibition," as the plans of Noel's father entailed. But with her promise and Noel's to go through anything cheerfully if their five days were only saved to them, I felt safe in protesting their thorough acquiescence in his plans.

"It will mean a good deal of embarrassment to me," he said. "I have made all arrangements for those first five days; but—I suppose I can manage them."

He turned to me abruptly.

"This is Noel's plan, I suppose—his special romantic honeymoon."

"That I do not know," I answered truthfully, "but I have gathered the impression that it is his."

"daresay," Mr. Veritzen commented. Then for the space of half minute or so he was silent, while his eyes seemed to look far into space.

"Noel is very like his mother in those things," he said at last. "I remember—"

He broke off short, with something very like a sigh, while Lillian and I sat breathless, not daring to look at each other. Noel's gentle, beautiful mother, whose memory the boy adored, but who, rumor said, had known but little happiness with brilliant temperamental Philip Veritzen—what memories of her were coming to him now, perhaps pleading for her boy's hapiness?

Hints for the Household

When cooking or laundering is being done in the kitchen, the windows should be let down from the top. It will keep the air pure and take the odors out of the room before they escape into the rest of the house.

Big buttons are much easier for the small child to manage than little ones. For this reason they should be used exclusively on his dresses and underclothing. These should open in front or at the sides.

Large beets, thoroughly cooked and chilled, can be scooped out and filled with celery and covered with mayonnaise to make a delicious salad. Placed on lettuce they make a decorative dish as well.

How to Keep Well

Hope for Cure Is Given Lepers

In the minds of most of us, the word "leprosy" calls up the picture of a horrible and very contagious disease. If you were riding in a crowded street car and someone shouted "Here is a leper," there would be panic. Every occupant of the car would dash for the door.

Dr. Copeland

It is a fortunate thing that physicians and all other scientists interested in leprosy and other supposedly contagious diseases do not feel this way about them. Continued observation and intimate study of this dreaded disease have led to great advances in the treatment and prevention of leprosy. Contrary to a popular notion, leprosy is not a highly contagious disease. The disease is rarely transmitted to other members of the same family.

Leprosy is one of the oldest known afflictions of mankind. It was prevalent in Southern Europe in the early centuries of the Christian era and again during the middle ages. Occasional cases are now found all over the world. We have learned that it results from an infection. This infection is traced to a germ called the "bacillus leprae."

Until rather recently the disease was imperfectly understood. Almost the only effort made at control related to the prevention of its spread. To this end leper colonies were established throughout the world. The unfortunate victims were forced by law to leave their homes and to enter these colonies which were merely custodial institutions. There was slight hope of ever returning home cured. "Out of sight, out of mind," was the attitude taken by all nations of the world in regard to the sufferers from leprosy.

Civilization has made great strides in the handling of lepers. Places for their treatment are now located in accessible parts of the world. They are equipped with modern hospitals and presided over by trained doctors and nurses.

I am glad to say that those who have leprosy are not transported to those "leprosoriums" without hope of cure. Indeed, many are entirely cured and eventually return to the normal mode of living. This change was brought about by the discovery of the value of chaulmoogra oil, a substance which has been successfully used in the treatment of leprosy.

This oil is obtained from a tropical tree. First it is submitted to a process of refining and sterilization. Then it is injected into the tissues of the patient. The duration of the treatment depends upon the extent of the disease. I am glad to say that successful results continue to be reported from the leper colonies everywhere.

In addition to the use of chaulmoogra oil, hygienic quarters and nourishing food are essential. The new thought that leprosy is a curable disease has greatly improved the morale of these sufferers and has a real part in hastening them along the road to recovery. The old method of isolating lepers as hopeless incurables, with nothing better to do than let them die, has been forsaken by all nations.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

'All's Well That Ends Well'

It is a unique experience, I believe, for a player to be doubled at a Small Slam contract which can be easily made, take refuge in a Grand Slam contract to minimize losses, and then make the Grand Slam, although there is an Ace held by an opponent which could be cashed. This was the rather amusing experience of a lady playing a game in the experts' room of a bridge club in New York recently.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	6 N T	Pass
Pass	Double	7 ♡	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

It will be noted that North and South were not using the Four-Five Notrump Convention, else this article would never have been written, as they would have stopped at the safe contract of six hearts, which can be easil made. East's Double of six ntrump was ill advised, as even the suggested club lead woul not defeat the contract. Howver, the Doub's made Soutl fearful and, anticipating the pssibility of losing heavily at te notrump contract, she now ook refuge at seven hearts, wher she thought she could minimize her losses.

Wst, in my judgment, on the bidding should have led a club. It would be the indicated Opening gainst the six notrump bid and equally indicated against the contract of seven hearts. However, West did not take this view of the matter and opened instead a trump. The result was, of cotrse, that the hand was made, South's losing club being discarded on a spade.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Holding the Knave-five-four of the suit my partner has bid and being the Opening leader against an opposing three-notrump contract, what card should be led, assuming that that suit and no other is chosen?

Answer: The four. Holding four cards of partner's suit or three to any honor except the Ten-spot, a low card should be led. Retaining the Knave temporarily in back of Declarer may very well be the means of keeping Declarer from having a second stop in the suit.

Hooked Rug Easy to Make

Hooked rugs, like patchwork quilts, are an American art. Simple to make, they show the same quaintness of design that is found in the samplers of early Colonial days. Animals were a favorite subject—the pet cat or dog was often immortalized in this way. This Scottie carries out this old-time idea, and will appeal to the grown-ups as well as to the children. The dog, done in black, mottled with gray, is in contrast to the background in which all colors of scraps are used. The colorful flowers at the corners add a quaint touch. They can be omitted or used on a chair set consisting of pad and cushion as shown.

Pattern 584 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the Scottie, about 15 inches square, and four 5-inch corners (any size rug can be made); directions for making a rug and a chair set; color schemes with the colors marked by number on the design.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mothers' Meeting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the new superintendent of the cradle roll of our church and I would like to have a measuring bee to bring the mothers together to talk about their little ones. Would it be better to send a written invitation or give a personal call to each mother, asking that she come and bring her little one? The superintendent before me was quite discouraged because so few mothers came to these meetings? B.

Under the circumstances . . . that is, because of the previous lack of response, I suggest by all means that you go to see each mother and thereby make your invitation an especially personal one, an especially hospitable and gracious one. The "personal equation" in such a case is tremendously important, and you sound so honest and fine in your wish to serve that I am sure, in your personal call, you can communicate your enthusiasm and wish-to-serve so effectively to these mothers that they will be delighted to respond.

Thanking the Lodge

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly suggest a form of "thank you" note to be written to members of a lodge who sent me a beautiful blanket for my new baby?

To whom should the letter be addressed and would this letter-paper be appropriate?

K.

Address your note to the person in whose name the present was sent . . . that is, if the lodge sent the gift by the secretary, address your note to her. If it was sent just in the name of the lodge, send your note to the president or the secretary. The letter-paper on which you wrote to me is in good taste for this note.

The note might read something like this:

Dear Mrs. Anderson:

May I thank you, and through you, the other members of the ..... Lodge for their glorious thoughtfulness and kindness to me and to my new baby? I was so touched by their goodness, and I have never seen such a handsome baby-blanket. My new son looks so happy and comfortable in it that I hope that you will all come soon to see him and his complete satisfaction with life since he has such a snuggly blanket to live in! It was a perfect plan for his delight, and we both thank you deeply.

My best wishes to you all, and again my appreciation,

Cordially,

Mary Wilcox King

Housewarming

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When moving into a new home, who gives the housewarming party . . . the people moving in, or their friends?

T.

Usually it is the hostess and the host themselves who give the housewarming party.

Recipes Give Helpful Friday Suggestions

Meatless Menu Need Not Handicap Home-makers

Friday to many women has be- come a weekly nightmare of what-can-I-cook-that-is-differ- ent?" Yet there are many delic- ious meatless recipes of which even the most particular of fami- lies will highly approve.

With the aid of Prudence Penny and her prize recipes, the Friday problem can be completely and efficiently abolished. "Luncheon cheese," today's $5 prize-winner, is certainly not a usual meatless dish. Nor is the recipe for indi- vidual spinach and egg cakes.

And for the children's luncheon at noon, lentil soup will prove most practical and nourishing.

You know what you consider your best recipes. Send them in and soon they will be praised in many homes, as well as in yours.

Not only will they be gratefully used, but they may also bring you the $5 or one of the 10 $1 prizes which are awarded daily by Prudence Penny to the best recipes submitted.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

KATHERINE WHOLEY,
3508 Fifth avenue.

LUNCHEON CHEESE

Two eggs, slightly beaten.
One cup thin cream or top milk.
One teaspoon butter.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon mustard.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
Few grains cayenne.
One-half pound mild cheese, cut in small pieces.
Stale bread cut in finger-shaped pieces one-third inch thick.

Spread bread with butter. Arrange close together around sides of buttered baking dish, having bread extend about 1 inch above dish; also line bottom of dish. Combine other ingredients, pour into dish and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit).

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. E. M. BECK,
257 Welsh avenue, Wilmerding.

EARLY MORNING BAKED COFFEE CAKE

One cup scalded milk.
Two cakes yeast.
One-half cup sugar.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon lemon extract.
Two-thirds cup soft butter.
Three eggs.
Four and two-thirds cups flour.

Start about 9 o'clock in afternoon. Mix butter, sugar, salt, extract and eggs. Beat well. Add yeast to lukewarm milk. Mix flour and milk alternately into egg batter. Let this raise till 9 o'clock in the evening. Then beat well for 10 minutes. Cover with dampened cloth and place in refrigerator or cold cellar over night. Next morning cut into desired shapes, handling as little as possible. This dough is good for cinnamon cakes, rolls or breads. Citron, raisins or nuts may be added, if desired. Makes delicious nut bread if nuts alone are used.

MRS. HARRY GUY,
1409 Myrtle avenue, New Brighton.

SIX LAYER DINNER

Two cups raw diced potatoes.
One-half cup uncooked rice.
One cup green peppers cut fine.
Two cups hamburger fried in butter.
One onion cut fine and cooked in the hamburger.
One cup carrots cut fine.
One small can tomatoes.

Put into casserole in layers in the order given. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Add one cup warm water. Cover and bake two and one-half hours in a slow oven.

MRS. WILLIAM L. THOMSON,

PETER PAN EARS OF CORN

One cup yellow cornmeal.
One teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One cup boiling water.
One-half cup sifted flour.
Two and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One third cup milk.
One egg, well beaten.
One-fourth cup melted butter or other shortening.

Combine cornmeal and sugar. Stir in boiling water and set aside to cool slightly. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift again. Add milk, egg and shortening in the order given, then add flour beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased corn-ear or muffin pans in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 12 ears of corn.

MRS. CARL W. ALLEN,
73 Kerr street, Uniontown.

INDIVIDUAL SPINACH AND EGG CUPS

Two cups canned spinach.
Six eggs.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One small teaspoon sugar.
Salt, pepper.

Season spinach with vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper. Butter six custard cups and line with spinach. Drop one whole egg in each cup, being careful not break yolks. Cover with well buttered bread crumbs. Set cups in shallow pan of water and bake until brown on top, then the egg will be cooked through. Remove from oven, let stand a few minutes, then unmold.

MISS CLEO CONNELLY,
224 N. Main street, Sharpsburg.

ANISE CHRISTMAS CAKES

Three pounds powdered sugar.
One dozen eggs.
Five cents worth of anise oil.
One teaspoon powdered baker's ammonia.
Flour as needed.

Separate eggs and beat each, then mix and beat again. Add sifted powdered sugar and beat one hour. Add oil and powdered ammonia and beat. Flour to make stiff dough. Roll one-eighth inch thick and cut in fancy shapes. Let lay on clean table cloth over night in warm room. Bake in moderate oven until done. Store away in airtight container for about a month before Christmas. If bought in bakeshop these cakes are very expensive.

JEAN FRIEDMAN,
5807 Bartlett street.

LENTIL SOUP

Soak two cups of lentils in cold water over night. Drain and add to a sliced onion which has been browned in two tablespoons of drippings, when these have been fried for five minutes, add three stalks of celery cut in small pieces, or some celery seed, pepper and salt to taste, and two quarts of warm water. Boil all these slowly, stirring often, until the lentils are quite soft. Pass all through a sieve, return to saucepan, heat again and serve. One may use a few good soup bones for added flavor in case the above recipe is too plain.

EDITH O. COLGATE,
54 Vernon drive, Mt. Lebanon.

SCALLOPED POTATOES WITH SAUSAGE

Boil one pound of sausage slowly in very little water for one-half hour, adding one onion and eight allspice. Let sausage cook in liquid. Prepare potatoes for scalloping (about eight medium size); slice potatoes thin and put in buttered baking dish, season well with salt and pepper, butter, add cup and half milk. Put one onion in center, remove sausages from liquor and place around edge of baking dish. Bake slowly from one to one and one-half hours, until the whole is nicely browned.

MRS. WOOLEVER,
1330 North avenue.

CARAMEL PUDDING

One cup raisins.
One-half cup white sugar.
One-half cup sweet milk.
One cup flour (heaping).
Two teaspoons baking powder.
Pinch of salt.

Mix dry ingredients and add raisins, then the milk and pour same into following mixture:

Three cups hot water.
One cup brown sugar.
Three teaspoons butter.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.

Put on stove until sugar has melted and then add while hot the batter. Place in moderate oven about 40 minutes or until batter has baked through. When through raisins will have cooked thorough into sauce. Serve with whipped cream or plain.

MISS EDITH ENGEL,
P. O. Box 163, Elrama, Pa.

MOCK OYSTERS

Take one and one-half pounds shoulder or rump veal, cut into pieces the size of a large oyster, season, dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry to a golden brown in deep hot fat. Put in baking dish, cover with milk, bake in moderate oven for one hour.

MRS. I. E. HAYNES,
2814 Connecticut avenue, Dormont.

CANDIED PARSNIPS

Wash and scrape the parsnips. Boil in salts water until tender. Cut in lengths and place in baking dish. Cover with brown sugar and dot with butter. Put in a very hot oven and brown for about 10 minutes. Serve in baking dish.

Ellenbogen Speaks On Mortgage Aid

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen was to speak at a luncheon meeting today of the Henry George Club in the Chamber of Commerce. His subject was to be "Relief for Home Owners." P. R. Williams is program chairman.

HARVEST CAKE—Two cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup butter or other shortening, 3/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed; 2 egg yolks, unbeaten; 2-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks; beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until done. Spread with Harvest Moon Frosting.

HARVEST MOON FROSTING—2 egg whites, unbeaten, 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed, dash of salt, 1/4 cup water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3/4 cup almonds, blanched, toasted and chopped.

Put egg whites, sugar, salt, and water in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater, and cook 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add vanilla, and beat until thick enough to spread. Cover top and sides of cake and

U. S. PLANS JOBS FOR THOUSANDS IN DISTRICT

By JOHN P. COWAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — Western Pennsylvania offers exceptional opportunities for a wide range of employment under the Civil Works Administration program which is about to be launched in putting to work 4,000,000 men now on federal relief rolls.

Robert F. Kelso, federal emergency relief field agent for Pennsylvania, today declared tentative plans already had been discussed for providing immediate employment for white collar men as well as mechanics and common laborers in the great industrial centers of Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Beaver Valley and throughout the state.

MOST FOR WAGES

Kelso said:

"The Civil Works Administration will confine its activities almost entirely to projects involving a minimum of materials, since expenditure of emergency funds under this method is necessarily confined to allowances in the form of work relief wages.

"At least 85 per cent of the funds expended will go into wages. There will be no extensive building or similar public works contracts and there will be no loans.

"The federal funds will be matched by states and municipalities, but if these are not able, then the work will go on with federal funds alone because it is the President's resolve that every possible employable person shall be given work.

"Gov. Pinchot has assured Pennsylvania's hearty co-operation, and he with the state federal relief administrator, the state engineer and the mayors of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and other cities will attend the national conference here on November 15, when the details will be worked out.

"These in a word will mean the co-ordination of various plans of relief work provided in various communities throughout the country during the last two years."

It is explained that the Public Works Administration will put up $400,000,000, the Federal Relief Administration $60,000,000 and state and local communities approximately $130,000,000 to supply the ammunition for the war against unemployment.

THREE-MONTH PROGRAM

The program is for a three months' period, requiring an expenditure of almost $200,000,000 a month. The President has intimated that when this runs out he will ask Congress for additional appropriations.

Local authorities will be given necessary authority under reasonable limits, according to the plan. Knowing how much unemployment there is in their respective communities, how many are receiving work relief and what projects of community benefit can be started to take people off the relief rolls, the local authorities can proceed with civil works undertakings immediately.

It was declared that the rate of pay will be at the prevailing wage rate for similar employment in the community, and a work week will consist of 30 hours.

Explaining the broad scope of the work, Kelso said:

"The President realizes how many so-called white collar men are suffering from unemployment. This class will immediately be looked after like all the others in the unemployed field.

"Engineers will be engaged to make surveys for future use. There will be inspections of water supply. Research men and women will be engaged to compile historical and other data and work will be found for unemployed educators.

"Guides will be provided for cities and in museums and public buildings and others will be employed in clerical jobs within the civil works administration and as field men, inspectors, foremen, timekeepers, etc.

"There will be work within the relief administration collecting and repairing clothing donated for the poor, driving collecting trucks and in the distribution of food and supplies. Furniture will be collected, repaired and distributed to needy families.

RENOVATING DRIVE

"A national renovating campaign will be encouraged to provide work for carpenters, painters, paperhangers, and all the various trades. Communities will be encouraged to make extensive repairs to public buildings, improve the streets and parks, renew signs.

"The usual government red tape will be slashed. State and local authorities will be allowed to determine their own projects and employ their own men. None of the work is to be let under contract.

"The prime object is to provide work for all classes of unemployed, including such a range as musicians, nurses, teachers, stenographers and other clerical and professional work as well as workers at odd jobs.

"These jobs are for the most part work that would not be done by regular government departments, or work that could not be done under the Public Works Administration.

"Projects are to be chosen for their social value, be of benefit to the community and as far as possible suited to the workers who do the job.

"Workers will be given work adjacent to their homes. In Pennsylvania it might be necessary to take some from the populous centers and send them to other communities, but none will be taken beyond state boundaries."

SAFETY ESSAY WORK LAUDED

County-wide safety education of school students was commended today by Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section, Better Traffic Committee, following the close of traffic essay contests in Clairton and McKeesport schools.

Rosenbaum pointed to the 25.9 per cent drop in traffic deaths in the county last year over 1931, of which the greatest decline centered in Pittsburgh, as an argument in favor of safety education activities.

Conducted independently of the Pittsburgh competition, the Clairton and McKeesport essay contests used the same rules and subjects.

SENTENCE TWO IN 'FRAT' FIRE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — (AP.)—Two George Washington University students, Edward J. Parlton and H. Albert Smith, today were sentenced to from two to nine years in prison by Justice Peyton Gordon, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, for having set fire to the Sigma Chi fraternity house at the university July 9.

Parlton, a pledge, is from Derby, Conn., and Smith, former president of the chapter, comes from Humphries, Mo. They were found guilty a week ago of having set fire to the fraternity house early one morning while 17 students were asleep in the upstairs rooms.

HOLIDAY MAIL CASH ALLOTTED

The Pittsburgh Postoffice has been allotted $29,332.55 to employ additional mail carriers and clerks during the Christmas holiday rush, according to advices from Washington.

This sum will permit employment of 1,500 to 1,800 extra workers.

A Washington dispatch said competent and deserving men and women on the civil service register of eligibles should be given first consideration.

The next should be applicants, in the order of their necessitous circumstances, who have the required ability, are unemployed and have dependents.

PEACE COUNCIL HEARS BISHOP, KAUFMANN

Churchmen and businessmen are as one in not knowing what the present social scene is all about, according to Edgar J. Kaufmann and Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the New York area of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

They addressed the conference on "A Planned Society," sponsored by the Council for Peace and Social Action, today and tomorrow in Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Captains of industry and finance, at least many of them, were attacked by Kaufmann for "not being ready to accept the primary duty of interpreting this industrial change in terms of its result on their employes." He asserted:

"There is amazing little understanding among businessmen of how the codes will affect the individual, and they have the attitude of being ready to do anything for the general good of the masses, provided it won't upset their applecart too much.

"And these same men are usually picked out to sit on the boards of your civic organizations. Yet, they deliberately fail to recognize the one thing religion stands for—the individual's right to exist in comfort."

Bishop McConnell said:

"I don't think the churches will go over bodily to an industrial reforming program, but they may create a condition in which this program is possible. After all, the church reflects the feelings of the community."

Prisoner Escapes By Perilous Leap

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 10.—(INS.)—Scaling and leaping from a 30-foot wall, Stanley Chlewinsky, 19, identified by several persons as a holdup man, escaped from the Montgomery County Jail today.

Police said they were unable to understand how he leaped from the prison wall to a concrete thoroughfare without injury.

Spaghetti Dinners to Have on "Busy Day"

There Are 57 Ways for You to Serve Cooked Spaghetti Quickly

By Josephine Gibson

At the end of a crowded afternoon spaghetti dinners are a splendid wholesome, "hurry-up" meal. Many foods combine with Heinz Cooked Spaghetti to produce interesting and delicious main dishes. Such a dish, with green salad and a simple dessert—ice cream, perhaps—makes a dinner not only simple but also most satisfying. Here are two delightful spaghetti dinners:

COOKED SPAGHETTI with SAUSAGES and APPLE RINGS—Brown 1 pound sausage in a frying pan and allow to cook slowly until thoroughly done. Remove from frying pan and pour off excess fat. Add 2 tablespoons butter and when hot add 3 large cooking apples, which have been cored and cut into ½ inch slices. When brown on one side, turn, sprinkle very generously with sugar and cook slowly until tender which will require only a few minutes. Heat one 21 ounce can Heinz Cooked Spaghetti, heap in center of hot platter and surround with sausage and apple rings.

CASSEROLE OF MEAT AND SPAGHETTI—Chop 1 medium onion and 1 medium green pepper finely and cook in frying pan with butter until slightly brown. Add 1 pound ground beef, mix thoroughly and cook until brown. Season with salt and pepper, add one 21 ounce can Heinz Cooked Spaghetti, and ½ cup water, and pour into casserole. Cover with buttered and crumbled Heinz Rice Flakes and brown in a moderate oven (about 20 minutes).

TOPSY-TURVY PUDDING

Batter—¼ cup fat, ¾ cup sugar, 1egg, 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons ginger, ½ cup apricot juice.

Caramel—¼ cup fat, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup almonds or walnuts, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 cup dried apricots soaked overnight in 3 cups of water.

Blend shortening with sugar and egg until fluffy. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with ½ cup apricot juice (see above). Beat 1 minute.

Caramel—Melt fat slowly in heavy skillet. Add sugar. Stir until melted. Remove from heat. Put a nut meat in hollow of each apricot. Place apricots, with round sides up, on caramel. Pour in batter. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes. While hot, turn out upside-down on plate. Serve warm—plain or with cream.

* * *

CRANBERRY BREAD—2½ cups flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup sugar, 3 shredded wheat biscuit, finely rolled, 1 cup cut cranberries, 1 egg, 2-3 cup water, 1-3 cup melted shortening.

Combine sifted flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and finely rolled biscuit crumbs; stir in cranberries. Beat egg and add water and shortening. Stir into dry mixture. Pour into a greased loaf pan. Bake for 50 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degree Fahrenheit). Makes 1 loaf.

Chinese for "Please Pass the HEINZ KETCHUP"

Little scenes like this one take place millions of times every day. The setting and costumes and language may vary, but the Ketchup is Heinz'.

For Heinz' is the largest selling ketchup in the world, and here is why:

The tomatoes in it are grown from specially bred seeds, and they're beauties, ruddy and luscious. The spices in it are selected all over the world by Heinz, first hand, to be sure of rare, exquisite taste. The ketchup is boiled down and down and down till it's thick and full-flavored. Then it is sealed while hot in the familiar handsome bottles.

Keep it on hand. Put it on the table.

We Believe in OVEN-BAKING Beans

Beans are good food any way you cook them. We have no quarrel with those who boil them. We do believe that by oven-baking our beans we improve their digestibility, their texture and their through-and-through flavor.

Heinz Beans are first thoroughly softened by long soaking in clear cold water. Then Heinz baking-ovens dry-cook every fibre of every bean. It is this oven-baking that makes Heinz beans so mealy and "munchy", so easy to digest. It is this oven-baking that enables us to really saturate each dry, soft bean with rich delightful sauce. The full good flavor is not just in the sauce around them, it is right in the beans themselves.

Oven-baking is the oldest way of cooking beans. Oven-baking made beans a national dish. Oven-baked beans are a treat we remember from childhood as we enjoy them today. When you go to your Grocer's, look for Heinz beans with the word OVEN-BAKED on the label. We believe they will delight you.

RUSSIAN TRADE POSSIBILITIES DISCUSSED

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, N. Y. University

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—In a way, by receiving her foreign minister, the United States has already "recognized" the Soviet government.

At least this should end the long period during which one of our favorite indoor sports has been lambasting the "Reds."

But the formal and official act of "recognition" remains to be completed and evidently there is to be some barraining about that. In fact, it appears that our recognition is to be given not so much because Russia "deserves" it, as because we expect to get something out of it.

So the practical question brought up by our recent maneuvers is, what commercial benefit will recognition of Russia bring to us? It is a business proposition, not a moral issue.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

This reduces to a question of our trade with Russia, and unquestionably there are possibilities there. Russia is primarily a producer and exporter of raw materials, and she has imported from us mostly finished manufactures. This sort of trade, in which we sell our finished products and buy raw materials, always seems to business men to be especially desirable.

The chief products Russia has to export, or trade for our products, are wheat, furs, barley, timber products, flax, petroleum products, butter, eggs, oil cake, manganese ore, bristles, sausage casings, etc.

Her chief imports have been machinery (especially agricultural implements), cotton, cotton cloth, wool, iron and steel manufactures, non-ferrous metals, rubber, paper, tea, and skins.

PAYMENT QUESTION

Here is a possibility of trading our machinery, cotton, steel and its products, and copper, for Russian furs, flax, and manganese. This is the practical way to look at it.

The big question is: how is Russia to pay us for the thing we may sell to her? Unfortunately it is hardly practicable to arrange direct trades by actually bartering our harvesting machinery and cotton for furs and flax. So money payments have to be arranged, and with these go questions of credit and foreign exchange.

Three possibilities arise:

1—Russia could pay us in gold. She has considerable gold, but she would not want to let it go out of the country any more than we would. So this is hardly practicable.

2—Russia could pay us in commodities in the usual way of foreign exchange, selling her products here, getting dollars for them and paying this money for our products.

SCOPE LIMITED

She is doing this now. It should be remembered that we are trading with Russia right along. Unquestionably, however, such trade could be increased somewhat, and this would be desirable.

But there are limitations.

If we get increased Russian trade at the expense of Germany, England and France these countries will either take trade away from us in other foreign markets, or have to reduce their own purchases from us.

Most of Russia's chief export products, we do not want. We have plenty of wheat, lumber and oil. This makes it difficult to arrange for a balance in our trade with her.

MAY BE ASKING CREDIT

3—Finally, Russia could possibly arrange for credit, thus postponing payment. This is possibly what is being contemplated. It seems that the chief problem involved in Russian trade is the problem of Russia's credit standing.

Would you buy a bond issued by the Soviet government?

The probability seems to be that our government, if it is to recognize Russia formally, will consider some means of [illegible] Russian credit. It would then either seek to have our bankers take an issue of Russian securities, or else have the R. F. C. or some other grouping of the letters of the alphabet take them.

This is another way to extend the credit of our government, or to increase our public debt, and thus "put money into circulation," if that's the way we want.

Whatever might be the procedure it would be difficult for American companies now carrying Russian debts and for exporters of machinery, electrical equipment, railway equipment, etc.

STEEL TONNAGE DECLINES

Shipments of the United States Steel Corporation in August decreased 2,264 tons to 572,897 tons.

Shipments in September totaled 575,161 tons and in August 668,155 tons. July was the high month for the year with shipments of 701,322 tons. March was the low month with 251,793 tons.

The corporation continued the release of figures on unfilled tonnage and has replaced them with information on actual shipments. In explaining the action Myron C. Taylor, chairman, said:

"Under the terms of the steel code, contracts and orders for steel, aside from those for definite constructive purposes and for certain specified products, may not be accepted for delivery beyond the expiration of the calendar quarter. Accordingly the tonnage of unfilled orders no longer present a fair index of prospective activity in the industry as was formerly the case."

DOLLAR BRACES IN EXCHANGE; STOCKS JOG

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The buying rush in stocks and staples slowed down to a jog today as the dollar displayed some resistance in foreign exchange dealings and the domestic gold price was boosted only 5 cents to $33.20 an ounce.

The British pound jumped to another new post-war high at $5.16¼, then lost all of its gains and some more before steadying. French francs and other leading European currencies held around their previous closing levels. Today's R. F. C. gold rate was slightly under that of London, for the first time, and was an indication to traders that Washington desired a more orderly reduction in dollar values. Grains followed a rather narrow course, cotton firmed and other commodities were mixed. United States government bonds continued heavy.

Equities did little in dull trading. Issues up around a point included American Telephone, Case, American Can, United States Smelting and Continental Can.

The United States Corporation, following announcement that it would discontinue reporting its monthly backlog figures, made public instead its shipments for October. These showed a decline of 2,264 tons to 572,897 tons from the September total of 575,161 tons. The decrease had generally been expected and created little stir in market circles.

A drop in car loadings for the week ended November 4, of 28,483 under those for the preceding week was somewhat smaller than the usual seasonal decline. This total was 20,483 over the like week of 1932.

The apparent success of the administration in lowering the price of American currency in terms of leading European exchanges was the subject of much comment in the financial district. It was pointed out, however, that other influences than the continued advance in the domestic gold rate may have influenced the spurt of sterling to its highest level since 1914.

In some quarters it was reported that there had been a heavy capital flight into the pound, not only from America but from the gold bloc countries where it is feared that a fall from the metallic base may be imminent. According to the theory that the heaviest buying of sterling really has come from abroad, the stepping up of the gold price in the United States has not been the prime factor in the buoyancy of British money.

At the same time bankers report there has been a steady flow recently of capital funds from America to London, the flight being attributed principally to fears that the inflationary wave in the United States may eventually wash the dollar to unanticipated depths. Another spur to the pound is said to have been hurried covering by merchants of their commitments abroad because of the belief that sterling might go much higher in the event that France divorced gold.

Weekly trade reviews credited the arrival of colder weather with an improvement in retail sales. Some merchants in the past week, it was found, enjoyed their best business since last August. It was expected that the Christmas buying season would surpass any in the past three years for many retailers. The comparative stability of prices was viewed as highly encouraging.

GRAIN VALUES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Despite new upturns of gold quotations and of British exchange, grain prices underwent setbacks early today.

Liverpool cables said market confidence had been shaken by demoralization in exchange rates. Opening ¼ to 1¼ down, wheat afterward declined further. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜ off and subsequently underwent additional declines.

Bears in wheat focused attention on assertions that wheat prices had lagged as compared with gold.

Moderate rallies which took place at times in wheat values appeared to be based chiefly on statements of trade leaders that from a strictly grain standpoint the indications were for better prices. Corn and oats mainly followed the action of wheat. Provisions lacked support.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

TORTURE DEATH IN ORPHANAGE CHARGED

International News Service.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 10.—Criminal prosecution against mattrons of the Windsor Children's Aid Society Home was threatened today following charges of "almost unbelievable" cruelty† to child inmates.

Deaths of two of the children are under investigatiton by Windsor authorities.

Sixteen specific charges of cruelty to the 40 orphaned children living in the home were made yesterday to Mayor David E. Croll by seven former members of the institution's staff.

Miss Madeline Strang, matron of the home nad her sister, Catherine, assistant matron, were suspended last night.

Most serious of the accusations concerned the death of a five-year-old boy. In an affidavit presented to Mayor Croll, Miss Katherine McDonald, former nursemaid at the institution said the child was beaten black and blue, and then placed in a chemical bath to remove evidences of the beating.

The child became violently ill, and although he grew worse daily, no doctor was summoned, the affidavit said. Finally, on the fifth day, a physician was called. One of the affidavits quoted one of the matrons as saying:

"We don't want him to die here. Better call a doctor."

The physician ordered the child removed to Grace Hospital, where he died.

M'CLURE TRIAL LINKS SQUIRE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—An alleged confession in which Howard M. Reese, former Chester magistrate, is quoted as admitting he split fines and destroyed his records was read today in the Delaware County liquor conspiracy trial.

Reese is one of 74 defendants who, with State Senator John J. McClure, have pleaded not guilty and are on trial before Judge George A. Welsh and a federal jury. Fifteen others have pleaded guilty or nolo contendere to charges of participating in a "protection" organization.

Harry Lieberman, Department of Justice representative, read Reese's reputed confession over the objections of defense attorneys.

In the statement Reese was quoted as saying that in six instances he had divided fines and costs with two constables, D. Harvey Sykes and William J. Falls, both of whom have pleaded guilty.

The statement said the divisions occurred during Reese's term as Alderman, 1928 to 1931, when he was given a suspended sentence by a county judge on a charge of conspiracy and malfeasance. He is now a court house employe of the Delaware County Commissioners.

BLAME LAWYER FOR KILLING

IRONTON, O., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Prosecuting Attorney John Porter is held resonsible by Coroner Harry H. Jones, for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Nan Patterson Moreland, whose body was found on a bed above a beer flat here October 26.

In a report prepared for filing in Common Pleas Court today, Jones says:

"Nan Patterson Moreland died from a gunshot wound from a gun in the hand of Prosecutor John Porter."

The report makes no recommendation that charges be filed against Porter, however.

Porter, who received a wound in the head, is confined to a hospital and physicians decline to allow him to be questioned. Porter told officers, Moreland shot him and then herself.

Porter first became acquainted with Mrs. Moreland last July when he began an investigation into the slaying of the woman's husband, who was killed in a fight.

Boy Nominated 'In Fun' Wins Town Post

Comes another unusual oddity of last Tuesday's election. Joe Battung, of 983 East Warrington avenue, a student at St. Vincent's Academy, at Beatty, near Latrobe, was elected Justice of the Peace of Unity Township over a Democratic opponent, who held the post for many years.

Fellow students "in fun" nominated Battung when the Republicans failed to file a candidate in the primary. With the vote of the academy behind him he won handily over his Democratic opponent—a post he doesn't want. Battung, it was reported, plans to forfeit the post by failing to post bond.

SPINELLI TRIP TO COST $1,134

It will cost Allegheny County approximately $1,134 to send detectives to Italy and return to Pittsburgh Big Mike Spinelli, wanted in connection with the Volpe murders.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park appeared before the county commissioners yesterday and asked that an appropriation be made to cover the expenses of the trip.

Park said the extradition would be decided within the next 10 days, the matter now being before the Minister of Justice, to whom the appeal was taken after the courts ruled Spinelli should be returned here.

The commissioners informed Park the money would be appropriated when it was definitely decided the trip would be made.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

Wage Row Closes Nash Motor Plant

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—All production departments of the Nash Motor Company plant were idle today and about 3,000 workmen were out of employment pending adjustment of a wage dispute.

Closing of the plant was precipitated by refusal of the assembly line workers to accept a piece work rate which went into effect Wednesday. Company officials said the change from an hourly wage had been made to meet workers' demands. This statement was denied by a spokesman for the workers.

Phila. Boy Scout Hero Gets Award

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—As thousands cheered, boy scout J. Gordon Smith of Germantown, was awarded the coveted certificate of heroism last night in recognition of his rescue of an 8-year-old boy who had fallen into a stream near Reading, last year.

Smith plunged into the water fully clad and brought the boy ashore.

Prospector Strikes New Gold Vein

DENVER, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A new gold strike on Carbonate Hill in the Cripple Creek region, one of Colorado's best-known gold producing areas, was reported here today by S. S. Bernard, veteran miner. He said selected samples from the mine assayed as high as $33,000 per ton.

Bernard said the strike was made at grass roots in virgin ground on the John Kirk lease of the White Rose claim. He said the vein was uncovered a half-mile from any mine workings.

OWNERS FIGHT FOR REDUCED TAX BASIS

Exceptions filed yesterday by the City of Pittsburgh to the decision of Judge Thomas M. Marshal, directing the B ard of Assessors to assess seven properties on Brookline boulevard on the basis of $100 a foot front, instead of $125 a foot, will be fought.

Attorney William J. Blakeley, who represented the protestants, said the Board of Assessors, recognizing that $125 a foot front, the amount assessed for the 1930 triennial assessment, was too high on the basis of present values, had pulled down the assessments to $105 and $110 a foot front on south side of Brookline boulevard. Blakeley said:

This is a reduction from 1930, but it is still too high and the city's action in filing exceptions, which no doubt is to be made the basis of an appeal, will be fought.

"Perhaps the matter will be decided, as far as exceptions are concerned, before the new administration takes hold. In any event the citizens of that district intend to fight the assessments.

"Many appeals have been filed from the 1933 triennial assessment, because it is felt that city assessments are not based on present-day values."

Assistant City Solicitor Oscar L. Taylor, who filed the exceptions, wants the 1930 assessments to stand, these being $125 to $130 a foot front.

He also admitted the assessments for the coming year were reduced and based more on present-day values.

Argument on the exceptions, it is expected, will be heard within a few weeks. The property owners who won their fight will get a rebate on three years' taxes, if Judge Marshall's decisions stand.

CONGRESSMAN GOES BROKE

Universal Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 10.—A pathetic appeal to retain a little of his personal property is written in the otherwise legally phrased bankruptcy petition which had been filed today by Congressman Charles A. Eaton, representative from Somerset and Morris counties.

With his liabilities recorded at $160,925 against assets of $26,499, Congressman Eaton makes the following plea:

He would like to keep a gold watch given him in 1918 as a "token of his war service;" a lot in Hillside Cemetery; his typewriter, dictaphone, books, $9 which he described as "in pocket with ordinary wearing apparel, well worn;" his saddle horse, saddle and bridle and salary as United States Representative.

Congressman Eaton's financial crash was the result of the collapse of the Richard Briggs, Inc., of Boston, in which he was heavily involved, according to the bankruptcy petition.

'Solomon Decision' Means Doom For Shoat

GLASSBORO, N. J., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A Solomon-like decision by Recorder Albert D. Miller settled the ownership of a young pig—but it means death for the shoat.

Richard Apply quarreled with his father-in-law, Max Samuel, and asked the recorder to permit him to take the animal. Miller told Apply:

"Flatten it until Christmas and then slaughter it. Then you and Samuel can divide the pork in equal shares."

KING'S DEATH LAID TO PLOT

BOMBEY, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A political intrigue involving the throne of Afghanistan was seen here today as responsible for the death at an assassin's hand of King Nadir Shah Ghazi, of Afghanistan.

A student, believed to have been repatriated from Germany, shot the monarch three times Wednesday as he was leaving the harem, but when the bullets failed to kill the ruler, a man of great vitality, the assailant dragged the wounded man away and knifed him to death.

The acting foreign secretary of the India government at New Delhi, Maj. W. K. Fraser Tytler, meanwhile, blamed a blood feud between families of the exiled former King Amanullah and his uncle, Nadir Shah, for the killing.

Rumors circulated that Amanullah intended to regain the throne with the help of a strong following in certain districts.

Amanullah, in Rome, said he was ready to return as king of Afghanistan if the people are ready to accept the program of westernization that caused his downfall in 1928.

Nadir Shah's 21-year-old son, Mohamed Zahir Shah, was on the throne in succession to his father.

FINNS HOLD 2 AS RUSS SPIES

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Chief Rickki of the secret service said today that Arvid Jacobson, former mathematics teacher of Michigan, had made a full confession of activities as a spy for Russia.

Rickki said his case was complete and that Mrs. Jacobson had undertaken an important part in the alleged espionage.

The secret service head said Russian agents were recruiting unemployed men and women in the United States and sending them as spies into Rumania, Poland, Finland, and other European countries, giving them advances of $500. He said Jacobson was thus recruited.

Mrs. and Mrs. Jacobson were arrested last month in Finland.

HOOVER HOME WITH BIG FISH

LON BEACH, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover, former President, was back today from Mexican waters with some big fish. He said:

"I had good luck—better than ever before."

In the Gulf of California he caught three marlin swordfish, the largest weighing 128 pounds, and one sailfish of 120 pounds. This was half the catch of the party, but the biggest fish went to the hook of Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture.

The party was out two weeks on the 147-foot cabin cruiser Samoa II.

Asked to say something about prohibition and public affairs, the former President laughed and said:

"No, I never talk about those things. I find it keeps me out of trouble."

Wife of Former G. O. P. Official Dies

DENVER, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Catherine S. Beasley Hodges, 51, wife of William V. Hodges, Denver attorney and formerly treasuser of the Republican aNtional Committee, died at the family home here yesterday.

W. VA. GRANTED FIVE MILLION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Public Works Administration allotted $17,838,100 for 37 non-federal projects in 18 states which officials said would provide 97,455 man-months of direct employment.

The largest allocation was one of $5,114,500 to West Virginia as a loan and grant for road work.

A loan and grant of $4,600,000 was made to Milwaukee, Wis., for a water plant.

HUSBAND SUES FOR SUPPORT

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—A suit for $500 a month separate maintenance was on file here today by Arthur J. Caldwell, 57, against his 65-year-old bride of a year.

Marriage promises of "income, travel, amusement and shelter," said Caldwell, former Lewiston (Maine) business man, vanished in thin air.

Instead, he asserted in the complaint, his bride, Mrs. Maude James Caldwell, San Francisco society matron, gave him no funds, abused him and threatened his life until he finally became frightened and left her.

The complaint, an answer to an annulment action filed by Mrs. Caldwell in June, asserts she is worth $600,000 and has a monthly income of not less than $2,500.

By JAMES J. LONG

Panthers' Edge Not Safe. Ball Carrier Overstressed.
Duke Air Game Threatens. Ancient Play Succeeds.
Tech Again Hard Pressed. Bush's Future Uncertain.

PASSES AND KICKS GIVE LAYDENS CHANCE

On the strength of its great November line, bigger and stronger ends, with Joe Skladany outstanding, a better rushing attack, and greater experience in competition with major teams, Pitt would appear to shape up as the probable winner in tomorrow's big football battle with Duquesne, by a score of something like 14 to 7. The dope would seem to indicate one touchdown for the Dukes and two for the Panthers, with the Bluffites forced to make most of their gains through the air. But the dope is not to be trusted in any present-day game in the uncertain gridiron sport, and that applies to the Duke-Pitt tussle more than to any other played here in a long time. It's one of those games that may go either way, according to the breaks, and one or two miscues might easily wipe out the Blue and Gold's edge.

Joe Skladany

Duquesne's best chance of winning appears to lie in its aerial game, and in the punting of Sil Zaninelli. Should the Dukes be able to capitalize on a Pitt misplay, as they are apt to do if they get the opportunity, and then turn in to hold the Sutherlands down in the coffin corner all afternoon, Elmer Layden's quarterbacks will be in a fine spot to put over the greatest Red and Blue victory in history. The forward passing attack of the Bluff team is one of the most dangerous weapons of 1933 football, and Pitt's secondary defense men are going to be kept very busy, even with five players being kept behind the line when the Dukes have the ball.

DUKE CHANCE BETTER IF CSORING IS LATE

On the records of the two elevens, the longer the game goes without either team's scoring, the better will be Duquesne's chance of winning. Pitt, a slow starting team this year, cannot afford to wait until the second or third period to begin to click. At pulling up from behind, the Dukes to date have looked like the better team. In their one test of that nature, against Minnesota, the Panthers failed, through their own mistakes. In close, tight games, the Bluffites have played the more alert football.

Pitt, though having a good forward passing offense of its own, may have to concentrate on shaking Sebastian or O'Dell loose at the tackles, or on using Weinstock or Weisenbaugh to pound the ball into scoring position. Except for Strutt's cutbacks, and with the Pitt line threatening stubborn resistance, the Dukes probably will be shooting for long gains overhead. They have the passers and the ballcarriers necessary to play that type of football in a way to give them a chance to beat anybody.

The Panthers, though more powerful on paper, can't afford to let down for an instant. A single mistake of the kind made against Wash.-Jeff, Navy and Minnesota, a mistake giving the Dukes possession of the ball in Pitt territory, might be just too bad for the Sutherlands. The Laydens would be apt quickly to turn it into a score, and Zaninelli's kicking thereafter might keep the Panthers from ever getting out of the hole.

PLAID HAS ANOTHER HARD FIGHT ON HAND

While not facing such a strong probability of being defeated as when they went to Lafayette, Ind., last week to play Purdue, Carnegie Tech's gridders nevertheless will have another very tough job on their hands tomorrow in meeting Michigan State College at East Lansing. Michigan State has lost only to Michigan this season, and at that scored on the Ann Arbor stars, the count being 20 to 6.

The biggest achievement by Coach Charley Bachman's men was a 27 to 3 rout of Syracuse, the only defeat suffered by the Orange this year and the first game lost away from home since Vic Hanson became coach. Michigan State was held to a scoreless tie by Kansas State last Saturday, but previously, in addition to the victory over Syracuse, defeated Marquette 6 to 0, Grinnell 14 to 0, and Illinois Wesleyan 20 to 12. The Skibos may be hard pressed to escape another reverse.

BALL CARRIER RATED LEAST IMPORTANT

Pgh. Lyceum Boxers Win Four Bouts

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Nov. 10.—Pittsburgh Lyceum amateur boxers won four of the five amateur bouts in which they took part here last night, only Walter Carr meeting defeat.

In the fastest bout of the evening, Steve Walters, of the Pittsburgh club, defeated Ray Eberle, South Heights star. The summary:

Steve Walters, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Ray Eberle, South Heights, (Sport).
Peter Krajnak, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Frank Evans, (Sport).
Steve Kosela, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Peter Krajnak, New Castle.
Don Stettler, Ambridge, defeated Lore Krehling, Ambridge.

TARTAN SQUAD ARRIVES AT EAST LANSING

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 10.—Carnegie Tech's varsity football squad, in charge of Coaches Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell, arrived here this morning to rest a day before taking on Michigan State here tomorrow.

It will be the first football meeting between the two schools, and it is considered the most important local game of the year. Both teams have been beaten, Michigan topping Michigan State early in the season in a tough battle, and Carnegie bowing last Saturday to Purdue. The conquerors of tomorrow's rivals will figure heavily in the Western Conference championship race for the current season.

There were 32 men in the Tartan party, the entire varsity strength at Carnegie.

The squad halted for an hour for breakfast in Detroit this morning, arriving here shortly after 9 o'clock. A workout in the local stadium is scheduled for this afternoon.

The rival coaches, Howard Harpster of Tech and Charley Bachman, of Michigan State, announced that no wholesale changes in their lineups were anticipated. The first string players of both squads were announced as fit and ready for the battle.

The home team will have a considerable weight advantage, both in the line and the backfield. Art Buss, sterling left tackle of the home team, at 212 pounds will be the biggest man on the field. Bernie McNutt, 195-pound captain and right halfback, will carry the bulk of the offensive burden for the Spartans.

Carnegie will depend to a great extent upon Steve Terebus, 148-pound halfback, who is a dangerous runner and passer.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Chicago	2—N. Y. Americans	2
Montreal	2—Detroit	1
Toronto	6—Boston	1

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Detroit	3—Windsor	2

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The march down the long slippery trail to the Stanley Cup playoffs is under way and from the uncertain indications of the opening night's games have come signs of another interesting National Hockey League season and perhaps a profitable one.

A crowd of 13,000 turned out at Chicago last night, lured by reports of new life and spirit in the speedy Black Hawks, and had a big surprise when the made-over New York Americans forced the Hawks to do their best to gain a 2-2 tie.

A 9,000 gathering cheered on the Toronto Maple Leafs as they tore through a Boston defense which couldn't hold its own without Eddie Shore and George Owen and gained a 6 to 1 triumph over the Bruin team which forced the Leafs to the longest series on record to win the league championship last spring.

At Montreal only 6,000, just half the capacity of the forum, were on hand when the Canadiens started things off with an exciting 2-1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

The size of the crowds wasn't the only surprise and of those which took place on the ice the showing of the Americans was perhaps the greatest. They flashed a speedy second period offensive to take a 2-0 lead as Lloyd Klein, who came up from New Haven in the Canadian-American League late last season, scored a solo goal and Lloyd Gross, the rookie from Buffalo, passed to Ronnie Martin who came from the same club last year, for another.

Boston plainly showed the effects of Shore's holdout and Owen's retirement after holding up gallantly for two periods.

KERR TO STAY AT COLGATE

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Andy Kerr, coach of Colgate's football team for five years, signed a contract to continue as head coach for another three years, Graduate Manager William A. Reid announced. This put an end to rumors that Kerr might move to other coaching fields. His name had been linked with a reported offer from Yale.

Colgate teams so far coached by Kerr have not been beaten more than once in any season since he took charge in 1929, following football work under Pop Warner at Pittsburgh, Stanford and a term as head coach at Washington and Jefferson.

Heffelfinger To Play Again Tomorrow

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—W. W. (Pudge) Heffelfinger, a power on Yale football teams in the late '80's, again has postponed his retirement from gridiron activity.

The 66-year-old local man, a great guard at Yale, has decided to play his "final" game here tomorrow with a team of former University of Minnesota gridders against one-time St. Thomas College stars in a benefit contest for disabled veterans.

A year ago he played in a high school alumni game, suffered an injury, and decided to give up the sport.

CUE TOURNEY LEADERS CLASH

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The question of who is the national pocket billiards champion will move a step closer to solution tonight when the two leaders, William Mosconi, of Philadelphia and Charles Seaback, of Astoria, N. Y., meet.

Each has six victories and one defeat, followed by George Kelly, of Philadelphia, in second place with five wins and one loss. He meets the third-place holder, Eddie Sauers, of Oakland, Cal., this afternoon.

Yesterday, Charles Summerell, of Little Rock, Ark., finished his schedule by losing to Walter D. Franklin, of Kansas City, 125 to 124 in 15 innings.

Seaback defeated Sauers 125 to 46 in 18 innings.

Fight Results

At Dallas, Tex.—Jack Van Noy defeated Johnny Risko, 10 rounds; Tuffy Deal defeated Joe Dunn, 10 rounds.

At Evansville, Moon Mullins and Jimmy Buckler drew, 10 rounds.

At Tacoma, Billy Townsend defeated Petey Mike, 10 rounds.

At Indianapolis, Henry Morenco defeated Paul Lee, 10 rounds.

At Mason City, Earl Mason defeated Mel Coleman, 8 rounds; Kid Ripley defeated Jack Mizzle, 4 rounds; Red Martin knocked out Al Faul, 2 rounds.

At Seattle, Joe Calder defeated Bud Wehrig, 8 rounds.

At New Haven—Ben Jeby defeated Al Rossi, 10 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Al Ettore defeated Popper Stopper, 8 rounds; Franklin Blair defeated Harry (Kid) Wallace, 6 rounds; Vincent Reed knocked out Dick Sterge, 2 rounds; Jack Moran knocked ... Jack Gleb, 2 rounds; Frankie Mills won by a technical knockout over Hughie Civatte, 5 rounds.

PITT ATTACK MAY CRUSH TERMINALS

By JESS CARVER

Although the point appears to have been overlooked by most every one, save the rival coaches (and you can bet the Dukes' mentors are plenty well aware of it), the Panthers figure to enjoy one whale of an advantage at two positions as they tackle the unbeaten Dukes in the Pitt Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Those positions are the ends.

It takes strong ends and tackles to stop the Warner offense. The Dukes have the tackle strength right enough, and their wingmen, Capt. Al Krankota and Baker are not to be sneezed at, but it is questionable whether they will be heavy enough to stand the terrific pounding they are certain to have to take tomorrow.

ENDS ARE LIGHT

Baker and Krankota are fine offensive wingmen and have played well enough on the defense, but they are light, and light ends always have had and probably ever will have, tough sessions against a team that generates the power off the tackles and on short end runs as does Pitt. The best end the Panthers have faced this fall, Hugh Devore, of Notre Dame, although he played a bang-up game and stopped the Panthers time after time, with little help from his tackle, was pushed around no little. It will be especially tough on the Dukes' terminals if the Pitt interference is clicking, and it is high time it did just that.

Unsung ends have made all-America heroes out of ordinary tackles, and hard-working tackles have made mediocre wings stand out, but whether the Duquesne tackles are strong enough to take the burden off their outside mates tomorrow is to be doubted. These Panthers hits hard and, like the Dukes, they'll stay in there and keep on hitting for the full 60 minutes.

There will be softer spots throughout the land tomorrow than will be occupied by Messrs. Krankota and Baker and their understudies.

SKLADANY REAL STAR

Pitt, on the other hand, has two sets of big, fast ends. The regulars, Skaldany and Rooker, both weigh better than 190 pounds. Skladany is one of the outstanding players at his position in the country. Notre Dame has tried for two years to break through Muggsy and has failed. So have plenty of other opponents, as powerful, or even more so, than the Dukes. Rooker, not as consistent or as clever as Muggsy, is faster, and is capable of rising to very, very high peaks. At his worst, he's no setup.

Today's final drills for both elevens will be held on the Stadium turf, the Dukes taking to the field first and the Panthers following. In the event it remains wet and sloppy, the squads may go through their drills on the strips of turf between the running track and the playing field itself, so as not to cut up the gridiron.

Yesterday's snow made the going slippery for the boys as they staged their next to the last drills. All they got for their afternoon's work was some experience in handling a slippery ball and in running on a treacherous turf, and unless it rains or snows to a considerable degree between now and tomorrow, they'll not need this experience much, for the Stadium gridiron has been covered all week and will be dry enough.

The starting lineups for tomorrow's classic appear to be set. Coach Sutherland still isn't quite certain as to what arrangements he'll make at center. Shotwell and Kliskey both are ready to be unleashed. The chances favor Shotwell, who has been playing whirlwind ball since getting back into the starting lineup against Notre Dame.

EXPECT HUGE TURNOUT

There is little doubt but that a crowd in excess of 50,000 will be on hand for the struggle. Pitt

PEABODY, S. HILLS OUT TO CLINCH TITLES

CITY LEAGUERS END REGULAR SCHEDULE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Champions in both sections of the City League will be determined this afternoon when the leaders in each division meet old rivals in their final contests of the regular season. The two champions will clash next Friday afternoon in a post-season contest for the City crown, probably at Peabody High School field.

Peabody, setting the pace in Section I, has a chance to sew up the laurels in that division by disposing of the weak Schenley eleven. The game, scheduled at Schenley High School field, finds Peabody a big favorite. Schenley has scored only one victory this season, defeating Fifth Avenue, which dropped five successive games.

In the other Section I contest, Westinghouse entertains Taylor Allderdice at Westingnouse. Taylor Allderdice was in the running for the title in Section I until it ran afoul South High School and was eliminated by a 6-0 score.

SOUTH HILLS IN TEST

Four teams in Section II conclude their regular schedules this afternoon with the South Hills-Langley duel at Langley Field headlining the program. South Hills needs a victory over the Bodie-coached eleven to clinch its eighth Section II championship. If South Hills displays the same form it showed against Carrick, Mazeski's boys should win their way into post-season duel. Langley, however, has been pointing for this game and will give the Tunnelites a real tussle.

South Hills will be without the services of Fullback Devlin, who is confined in the South Side Hospital with an attack of appendicitis.

The second game on the Section II program finds Oliver and Perry renewing a sectional feud at Perry. Oliver hasn't had a successful season, but past showings are forgotten once it stacks up against Perry. All athletic meetings between these two schools have been thrillers.

Two City League schools conclude their campaigns by playing non-league opponents. Fifth Avenue is the attraction at Mt. Lebanon and Carrick opposes Brentwood at Brentwood.

SCOTT IN FINALE

Followers of Scott High School, of North Braddock, contender for the class A championship of the W. P. I. A. L., get their last chance of the season, unless a post-season game is ordered, to see their favorites in action tonight when Erie Strong Vincent is met at North Braddock. Scott has concluded its class A campaign without defeat or tie game.

Tomorrow will see the majority of the championship contenders swinging into action. Greensburg will have a chance to tie New Castle for first place in the class AA fight by scoring its fourth straight victory at the expense of Monessen at Greensburg. Three other class AA duels are carded, but they have no bearing on the championship fight. Norwin plays at McKeesport, Turtle Creek at Wilkinsburg and Charleroi at Washington.

Monongahela, pressing Scott and Ambridge for the lead in class A, faces its hardest test of the season in California, a team that is powerful despite its elimination by Redstone.

GUNNERS AT RAMSAY

Ramsay High, of Mt. Pleasant, steps out of the B ranks for a day by opposing Canonsburg at Mt. Pleasant. East Huntingdon, also a B contender, meets an A team in Scottdale, while East Pittsburgh will attempt to increase its point average by disposing of Glassport, last year's co-champion in this division.

Ambridge, the defending champion in class A, winds up its season by opposing Midland. A victory over Midland will mark the second successive season Moe Rubenstein's team has escaped a defeat or tie game.

New Castle, leader in the class AA division, entertains a non-league opponent in Butler at New Castle.

The Arnold School football squad, 25 strong, left this morning for Hudosn, O., where it meets Western Reserve Academy tomorrow.

Football Conference To Be Considered

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Proponents of an organized football conference among high schools of the Northwestern corner of the state won the first step of a fight that has been carried on for years when the official board of Section 10 last night voted to consider the plan.

For the past half dozen years, newspapers of the district have sponsored a conference that would include 14 Class A schools. Attempts to seek official recognition, however, have met with failure until last night's meeting brought appointment of a committee to consider further steps.

N. Y.-Pa. League To Split Season

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 10.—(AP)—For the first time in its history the New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League will have a split season in 1934.

The proposal was offered by George M. Weiss, president of the Newark club and general manager of the New York Yankees' chain, and approved by league officials at their session here yesterday.

Perry B. Farrell, president of the league, announced that the first half of the season would open May 1 and close July 2. The second half will open July 4 and end September 9.

Plaid Faces Notre Dame System of Play Again

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach, All-America Quarterback, 1918

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 10.—The Carnegie Tech football squad arrived here this morning for its game with the strong Michigan State team tomorrow. The weather has been cold here for the last few days and there is little possibility of its warming up by game time.

Howard Harpster

This marks the fourth game this season in which our players will face the Notre Dame system of play. The Michigan State team is one of the strongest on our schedule and to date has a splendid record. The University of Michigan, one of the greatest teams in the country this year, is the only eleven which has been able to win from Coach Bachman's squad. Last week, Kansas State played our opponent of tomorrow a scoreless tie. However, this same Kansas team defeated the University of Kansas, which played Notre Dame a tie game earlier in the season. Two weeks ago, Michigan State defeated Syracuse, 27 to 3.

Our players came out of the Purdue game last week in good physical condition, and, if they can come back strong after that setback, I believe we will have a chance to at least play on even terms tomorrow.

SEES PITT A WINNER

Back in Pittsburgh, I know there is a great deal of excitement over the game between Pitt and Duquesne. Although I believe the Panther will be too strong for Coach Layden's team, I still believe the Dukes have a chance to come out on top. Duquesne will be playing the most important game in its history, and the players likely will rise to great heights in an attempt to win. Always noted as a team which could make the best of any break which comes its way, the Dukes will be more alert than ever tomorrow, and will be ready to cash in on any Pitt mistake.

I doubt very much if the Dukes will be able to score through the powerful Pitt line, but it has been through the air that the Bluff team has been most dangerous, and there is little doubt that it will fill the air with passes tomorrow.

Pitt's power attack should score at least twice against the Dukes, although, with the floating defense which the Layden machine employs, it is difficult for the offensive interferers to cleanly take out the tacklers. However, with the floating defense, while the majority of times it floats with and into the ball-carrier, it sometimes is fooled and floats away from and out of reach of the ball carrier.

HARD-FOUGHT BATTLE

Fullback Weisenbaugh's outstanding ability at running the spinners and fake reverses up through the middle of the line should keep the Duke's defense pretty well drawn in and eliminate much of the floating. If this is the case, then the off-tackle and reverse power plays will be much more effective. It ought to be a tough, hard-fought battle throughout.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Death yesterday claimed James Cunningham (Jim) Guy, of Wilkinsburg, brother of Dick Guy, business manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team and former local sports editor, at his home . . . A heart attack, following a spell of influenza, which left Brother Jim in a weakened condition proved fatal . . In the insurance business for 30 years, Jim was a former sports star at Mt. Pleasant Institute, where he played first base on the baseball team and tackle on the football team . . . He was sought by both Bucknell College and Holy Ghost College (now Duquesne University), and never lost his interest in sports . . . For years he traveled during his vacation with baseball teams sponsored by his brother, whose constant companion he remained . . . He was a member of Syria Shrine in the Masonic order and also belonged to the Odd Fellows . . . He made his home with his parents, who, along with Dick and a sister, Mrs. A. T. Dyche, survive him . . . Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 923 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, Monday.

Local scribes last night had a preview of the film, "The Prize Fighter and the Lady," which opened at Loew's Penn Theater today . . . It was the first time they didn't have to rush back to the office to dash off a piece about a fight for the first edition . . . And they agreed that a "staged" fight can be a pretty good thing to look at if it's done right . . . The wrestlers knew that a long time ago.

Navy plays Columbia tomorrow . . . The theme song, of course, will be "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" . . . The Notre Dame system will get a good tryout at New Haven tomorrow when Georgia's Bulldogs meet Yale's bulldogs . . Georgia is coached by Harry Mehre, an Irish alumnus, who now wears glasses, while the Elis, with Adam Walsh among their coaches, have installed the South Bend system of play . . . Tiny Thornhill, former Pitt star, meets his acid test as the successor to Pop Warner when his Stanford team plays Southern California at Los Angeles tomorrow . . . The Trojans won last year's game, 13-0.

Both Pitt and Duquesne are hoping for good weather for their tilt on the morrow . . . They're primed and don't want any flukes to enter into the game . . . Pittsburgh's best bet for all-America honors this fall still remains Bunny Burzio, the Carnegie Tech guard . . . Art Strutt, Duquesne halfback, may make the grade if he steps his handsome best against Pitt . . . Hartwig, the Pitt guard, who is a steady plugger and a big factor in the success of his team, also rates plenty of consideration.—HARRY KECK.

W.-J., BEARCATS IN ACTION

Wash-Jeff and St. Vincent take on out-of-state gridiron opponents today, the Presidents invading Washington, D. C., for a battle with the powerful George Washington University eleven tonight and the Bearcats meeting New River State's Golden Bears at Latrobe this afternoon.

The latter game originally was scheduled for tomorrow at Montgomery, W. Va., home of the New River team, but was shifted to Latrobe and moved forward a day at the request of the Golden Bears.

Beaten by the Dukes last week, the Presidents were determined to stage a comeback against George Washington.

St. Vincent, a scrappy and well drilled eleven, will be outweighed by the Bears, but the Cats' aerial attack is expected to give the visitors plenty of trouble. The probable starting lineup:

ST. VINCENT		NEW RIVER
Carney	L. E.	Battin
Stanko	L. G.	Craffey
Heckert	T.	Calloway
Brown	C.	Tucker
O'Brien	R. G.	Barry
Rafferty	R. T.	Wilder
O'Connor	R. E.	Gaten
Donelli	Q. B.	Carney
Furin	L. H.	Johnson
Johnson	R. H.	Davey
Flauto	F. B.	Rado

LOCAL SUNDAY GRID CARD ATTRACTIVE

By TOM BIRKS

Headed by the Pittsburgh Pirates-Brooklyn Dodgers National Professional League game at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh sport lovers will find a host of interesting football games scheduled for the first Sunday since the abolition of the Blue Law pertaining to Sunday sports.

The first Sunday game to be scheduled in Homewood is listed for the playgrounds, when the J. Scott Morgans clash with the Corpus Christi gridders.

RANGERS FACE BURNS

At McKees Rocks, the Rox Rangers meet the Burns gridders from New Kensington at Ranger Field. The Rangers have been one of the fortunate teams able to play Sunday ball all along.

There is certain to be a fine crowd out the first Sunday at Forbes Field.

The colorful Brooklyn backfield, composed of Benny Friedman, former Michigan quarterback ace; Chris Cagle, one of the greatest ball-carriers ever to play for Army, and Shipwreck Kelly, a great halfback, should be a magnet to draw the largest crowd of the season.

The Pirates have done themselves proud since leaving Pittsburgh for their tour of the East. The East failed to give the locals much consideration and their sensational defeat of Boston still has the followers of the Redskins dazed.

SURPRISED DODGERS

Then at Brooklyn, the Dodgers were overwhelming favorites, but old Mose Kelsch kicked that idea off Brooklyn Bridge by booting a field goal that tied up the battle.

The new members, who have been added to the Pirate squad will be in Sunday's game. They are Leo Raskowski, big tackle from Ohio State, who was selected on Walter Eckersall's 1927 all-America team, and Walt Holmer, a backfield man bought from Boston, who played at Northwestern during his college days.

The Dodgers arrived in Pittsburgh last night to prepare for Sunday's game. They established headquarters in a downtown hotel and are to work out today and tomorrow.

IRISH RIDERS TAKE LEAD IN HORSE SHOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Irish Free State last night rode to the front in the international military jumping competition in the National Horse Show, outpointing the crack riders and equine jumpers of four other nations in a brilliant exhibition of horsemanship.

Withe the remarkable low score of three faults, made with three officers riding abreast, the representatives from the Emerald Isle took a commanding lead with a total of rour faults for the two nights. The high score competition will end tonight when the officers ride out four in succession.

The United States Army team from Fort Riley, tied with the Irish at the end of Wednesday night's competition, dropped back to third place behind Sweden.

Calling on the pick of its jumpers, including the famous Roxana, the Canadian Army team scored an unexpected victory, winning the Westchester challenge cup in competition with two teams from the Irish Free State Army and one United States civilian-owned combination.

Roxana, which helped win the trophy for John Warwick in 1930, when a member of the Belfast sportsman's stable, set the pace for her teammates, Spats and Red Plume.

SCHOOLS QUIT AA GROUP

When the football committee of the W. P. I. A. L. holds the annual winter meeting at the Fort Pitt Hotel next Tuesday, two members of the class AA division, Charleroi and Monessen, likely will ask that they be dropped from the group.

Monessen definitely has decided to quit the double A group, while Charleroi likely will take similar action at a meeting scheduled Monday night.

LANGLEY BOOTERS WIN

The Langley High School soccer team defeated the Prospect School eleven 3 to 0 yesterday to win the title in Section III of the City League.

KERN NAMED AS POSSIBLE W. VA. COACH

The name of Bill Kern has been added to the "possibility" list as successor to Earle (Greasy) Neale as head football coach at West Virginia University.

Many of Kern's not inconsiderable list of admirers have been seeking for some time to enter the Pitt line coach and scout in the West Virginia coaching sweepstakes. Larry Boggs, a Fairmont newspaperman and a Pitt alumnus, has taken up the cudgel in Bill's behalf, but as the Mountaineer authorities so far have made no outward moves toward either firing or retaining Neale, the proposition remains strictly in the formative stage.

Kern himself has refused to comment. He is satisfied with his position at Pitt, and probably will wait until the situation at Morgantown is clarified somewhat before making any moves.

The Mountaineers yesterday announced the scheduling of six opponents for the 1934 gridiron season. West Virginia, playing an 11-game schedule this year, may card only 10 games next. The contests listed so far follow:

September 22—West Virginia Wesleyan at Morgantown; September 28, Duquesne at Pittsburgh (night); October 6, Pittsburgh at Morgantown; October 13, Washington and Lee at Charleston; October 27, Davis and Elkins at Morgantown, and November 3, Ohio University at Parkersburg.

AZTECAS WIN

MEXICO, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—The Portland club lost its first baseball series against the Aztecas by three games to two yesterday, when the locals pushed over two runs in the tenth inning for a 5-to-4 victory. Portland tied the score at 3-all in the eighth.

BRUNDAGE TO SEEK UNIFORM AMATEUR CODE

EIGHT RULES ATTACKED BY A. A. U. HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—Asserting that the "precious of amateurism" has been damaged by the loose and conflicting character of existing regulations, Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, has taken the initiative in a movement to bring about uniformity in the amateur code for all branches of American athletics.

Brundage, one-time all-around track champion who is national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, addressed his proposal to delegates to the annual meeting of the American Olympic Association, to be held in Washington, D. C., November 22. He feels that the A. O. A., whose membership includes all the major sports governing bodies, could foster much-needed standardization of "simon pure" requirements. He said:

"At present amateurs in one sport are granted privileges and allowed liberties that are denied to amateurs in others. Under the rules of some sports 'amateurs' even are allowed to compete for cash prizes.

"It is a baffling situation to the man in the street. This has resulted in many amusing and even ridiculous situations such as the law once on the statute books of Wisconsin which provided that a boxer would not lose his amateur standing by accepting cash prizes unless they exceeded $25.

"It may not be possible for all sports to have the same code in all its details but assuredly certain fundamental principles can be agreed upon by all."

PITT TO TEST DUKES' ENDS

officials urge that the folks get to their seats early, for there will be delay enough, what with the Armistice Day parade jamming the traffic and the usual mixups attendant to a big game.

For the convenience of those unable to get to the ticket agencies during the day, the Pitt Stadium ticket office will be open until 9 o'clock tonight and will reopen at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, as will the usual agencies.

SPORT COMMENT

with the Chicago Bears, says he thinks the player who carries the ball is least important in the game.

Red Grange

Grange admits he found out long ago that a man can't hope to play football successfully by himself, and that no player could get anywhere if he tried to do a solo against modern defenses, particularly the pro league variety.

And yet another grid authority observes that when 22 men are in action on the field, 80,000 to 200,000 eyes will be watching the man carrying the ball and ignoring the other 21. He notes that on a punt, the crowd watches the ball in the air, but misses the drama on the ground—the backs of the kicker's side blocking out the opposing ends and tackles and spilling them, the kicker's ends and tackles going down the field to tackle the receiver, ground the ball, or recover a possible fumble, with the opposing backs trying to block them out in their rush.

HOLY CROSS BEATEN BY FORGOTTEN PLAY

Have you ever seen the opening kick off in a major college game returned by the receiver with another kick immediately? Possibly you have not, in recent years, yet it's one of the oldest plays in the sport. So old, in fact, that it's brand new to the present-day players. That's why it has just gone over so successfully in one notable instance. Nobody was looking for it. That forgotten play, more than anything else, caused the defeat of Holy Cross at the hands of Detroit last Saturday.

After Detroit had won the toss and elected to receive, Gus Dorais sent three kickers into the backfield—Vincent Kadi, Douglass Nott and Dick Lutz—each with instructions to quick kick if the ball came to him. The ball went to Kadi. He ran about 10 yards from his own five-yard line and then quick kicked 80 yards down the field, to the consternation of Holy Cross.

The Crusaders never had seen such a play and were in no sense prepared for it. No safety man had been kept in the distance, and the ball rolled inside the Holy Cross five-yard line before the players of that team, who were swarming up the field in conventional kick off style, could reverse themselves and recall the pigskin.

The play won the ball game. The Worcester gridders were so bewildered that they were put on the run, and the Titans kept them on the run for the remainder of the afternoon. Holy Cross was knocked back on its heels by the opening maneuver and did not regain its balance until Detroit had the game stowed away.

RED CHANGE LEAVES MANAGER IN DOUBT

The change in the ownership of the Cincinnati baseball club puts another managerial job on the uncertain list. It is said that Donie Bush, who was to have continued as manager of the Reds in 1934 if Sidney Weil had remained in control, can retain the post after Larry MacPhail assumes the presidency if he cares to stay, but Cincinnati reports say Donie may have other plans.

Donie Bush

Whether Bush will remain in baseball or give his attention to his interests in a contracting business in Indianapolis, if he decides not to stay with the Reds, probably will depend on developments. The former Pirate skipper might not look with favor on any of the several minor league managerial jobs open to him, but no doubt would be glad to get the appointment in Detroit, where he played for many years, and where, if at liberty, he might be considered for the position left open by the withdrawal of Bucky Harris, now manager of the Red Sox.

JONES EXPECTS CLOSE FIGHT WITH CARDS

By HOWARD JONES

Member, All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Tomorrow will bring to Pacific Coast fans three important football games the results of which will have an important bearing upon the final standing of the Pacific Coast Conference teams.

Howard Jones

After a two-week lapse, the University of Southern California will return to the grid wars in an effort to retain the high position in the football world which it has gained in the past couple of years. Stanford University comes to Los Angeles to take issue with the Trojans. While Southern California has been successful in this annual encounter for the last five years, every game, with the possible exception of one, has been hard fought.

This year Stanford has not met with a great deal of early season success, neither has it suffered any humiliation. The only game it has lost was the one with the Washington Huskies, two weeks ago, when Smith, Washington end, kicked two field goals. Early in the season the Cardinals were held to a tie by Northwestern University in Chicago.

My own impression is that Stanford will be a formidable foe for the Trojans tomorrow. They have some fine backs in Maentz, Hielman, Grayson and Sims, and a good supply of reserves in this department. The Stanford line is more of an unknown quantity, but Corbus, guard, and Moscrip, end, stand out as excellent players, and Bates, center, has been a consistent performer.

STEVENS PRAISED

For the Trojans, Rosenberg, guard, Palmer, end, Griffith, fullback, and Warburton, quarterback, have been heralded as outstanding players. Without minimizing their worth in the least, there have been some other Trojans who have played some fine football. Bob Mc[illegible] and Cal Clemens, halfbacks, were rather handy boys to have around in that thrilling game with the California Bears, two weeks ago.

Another player who has not been given a lot of publicity is Larry Stevens, guard. He was the boy who caught Stewart, Bear halfback, when he broke away from the field on the opening kick-off. This is his third year of splendid football for Southern California.

Southern California, on the basis of its record and veteran material, should be given an edge in this game, but records and reputations do not win football games, and in a game of tense rivalry, which this will be, anything might happen.

CALIFORNIA FAVORED

Washington and California meet in their annual contest at Berkeley. This game is another fray which will be hard fought, but I believe California has the stronger team, and should win.

Bazzone Cancels Bout With Duarry

The Joey Bazzone-Eduardo Duarry boxing show at the Moose Temple Monday night is off and Matchmaker Bus Vogel is casting about for a new attraction.

Bazzone has an ulcerated tooth and has been forced to break training and will not be in condition to box. Unable to engage a suitable substitute, the club also has dropped the Duarry end of the match, and the bout may be rebooked for a later date.

An attempt is being made to sign the Alabama Kid and Anson Green for next Monday.

An amateur boxing show will be held in the North Side Arena next Wednesday night for a member of the New Deal Iron and Steel Workers' Association who recently lost a leg in an accident and has a family to support. Eight bouts are carded as follow:

"AMERICAN" MARCHES AHEAD!

★ A[illegible]ICAN OIL COMPANY ★

The success of this cigar is NO ACCIDENT!

It is no accident that more men are smoking Bayuk "Phillies" than any other cigar in America.

It is no accident that experienced smokers—able to pay double or triple the price—prefer Bayuk "Phillies" to any other cigar.

No finer Domestic and Havana tobaccos are grown than used in Bayuk "Phillies". No finer Sumatra is imported than used for the Bayuk "Phillies" wrapper.

In January—the price of Bayuk "Phillies" was reduced from 10c to 5c—and Bayuk promptly remitted $140,000 to dealers on the cigars they had purchased to retail for 10c.

Since that time, this same identical Bayuk "Phillies"—in quality, in size, in shape—has been available to smokers for 5c.

The result is history. The amazing value of this fine cigar—at 5c—soon caused it to become—as it is today—the fastest-selling and largest-selling cigar on the market.

Bayuk pledges that the quality of Bayuk "Phillies" WILL NOT BE CHANGED.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

SNOW AIDS HUNT FOR BLACK B'AR

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—(AP.)—There's "b'ar in them thar hills" of Pennsylvania—more than in any other state in the Union the Game Commission says—and sunrise today found big game hunters on the trail for them.

The Pennsylvania black bear, peculiar to the state, was the quarry of most of the hunters who took up the chase on the season's opening day.

Snow reported in the north central counties, bruin's favorite haunts, facilitated tracking and indications were that before the season closes at the end of the month, the kill will equal that of last year when it exceeded 250. This was more than the total kill of the rest of the continent, the commission reports.

The above ad appeared last Friday and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph. On Monday it was sold for cash through an inquiry from this newspaper. The advertiser stated that he could have sold it several times. Included among the inquiries was one from a banker in Coraopolis and one from a prominent real estate man in Dormont. They were, too late, however, as the car had already been sold to another Sun-Telegraph reader.

This indicates that there are several other persons looking for a Packard or perhaps some other good make of auto.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Tony O'Brien sat with Nollie on some pine logs.

He had showed her the interior of his primitive little shack here by the lakeside.

He smoked a pipe now as they sat in the little clearing that was so gay with birds' song and flowers and bright mosses.

It had rained overnight, and the sun brought out enchanting odors of sage and sandal wood and bog myrtle.

All the loveliness of nature was right here. A fitting setting for romance. Nollie drank deep of the beauty of it.

But the one glorious fact that Tony was beside her was enough . . . even had their meeting been in an ugly wilderness.

"Tell me about yourself," said Nollie Day. "I want to hear everything you've done since . . . our last meeting."

"And I want to talk about YOU, you elusive little colleen."

"There's nothing complex about me in the least. I'm the most humdrum person."

"You're nothing of the sort. You remind me of the fairy stories my old Irish nurse used to weave . . . spalpeens and pixies dancing in the moonlight."

Nollie laughed merrily. "Why don't you say a hobgoblin while you're at it?"

"Fishing for compliments again. Well, I refuse to bite. But I've got a bone to pick with you, I assure you."

THE EXCEPTION

She laughed again. "The way you mix your metaphors, anyone would know you are Irish."

"And proud of it, too. Don't you know that we Irish are grand lovers?"

"And bad husbands. I've heard tell." The moment she said that, the blood flew to her forehead.

What would he think? How bold she must have sounded.

But Tony O'Brien considered this gravely.

"I'm sure I should be the exception that would prove the rule. But, anyhow, I don't agree with you one particle."

"That sounds Irish again. You're a wonderful race. I've a little dash of the blarney stone myself, begorra!"

She was gay like that. She looked up at him with the eyes that he had once likened to "bluebells under water."

He gave her look back shinily. There was a radiance about his whole person.

"Don't tell me you'd be deceiving me, if that's what you mean about kissing the blarney stone?"

"I? I'm as honest as the day. I've nothing to hide in my young life. Maybe if I were more subtle, I'd be more interesting?"

He caught the challenge. "The way you've acted—rushing off abroad like that with never a word to me—you're enough of an enigma already."

For a moment Nollie was silenced.

He went on, aggrievedly: "You never answered my letter."

"Well, don't blame me for that, when it only reached me in New York a few days back."

He said, incredulously: "What?"

"That's true. I received it at the Hotel Luxor about a week ago. And your office said you were on your vacation."

DOG INTERRUPTS

She didn't add that she hadn't called him up herself that day. That the inquiry had been made by the real Mrs. Judson.

"It must have followed you around to all those Riviera high spots?"

Nollie was silent.

"Anyhow, when at last you did get my letter, you could at least have answered it."

"Perhaps it wasn't addressed to me at all? Perhaps it wasn't my property?"

Tony looked at her in a puzzled way. "I certainly put the name of Mrs. Virginia Judson on the envelope."

Now he would guess . . . now would the dream end?

And just as she was about to speak, to tell him all, up bounded Fury, the Alsatian.

"Say, what a peach of a dog! Is he yours?" Tony caressed him.

"Down Fury! Down!" commanded Nollie, glad of the interruption.

The big dog took to Tony right away. Tony made much of him.

"Attaboy! Fine chap!" He rubbed the great head.

Fury put his two fore paws on the young man's knees and tried to lick his face.

"Whoa there! That's going too far . . ."

"Down, Fury!" cried Nollie.

"He treats me a lot kindlier than his mistress does, anyhow," said the young man.

LIKE A FLOWER

"And am I not being perfectly charming to you now? What's ailing you?"

"Merely a kind of standoffishness . . . a sort of 'so far and no further' . . . if you get my meaning?"

"Indeed I don't. You'll have to be much more explicit, Mr. O'Brien."

"That stiff address! Mr. O'Brien indeed! The last time I met you it was 'Tony' and 'Gloria.'"

"Oh, that was silly!" But Nollie blushed adorably.

He told her so. He told her that she was even lovelier than she'd been in her grand gown in the theater.

Her heart rose at those words. So he liked her just as well—and more—in her little sports dress that had only cost a few dollars.

"D'you know, I was afraid you were just a sort of hothouse plant?" he returned frankly.

"Meaning I wouldn't stand up to the light of day?" smiled Nollie.

"You're like a flower out here. You fit right in. You're not like a city girl at all." He stared at her admiringly.

"I love the country. I love this place. It makes me want to sing—to shout—" Nollie drew a deep breath. Her eyes were shining.

"And d'you know why I, too, feel that way? It's because you are here beside me," said Tony.

She drew another breath. Oh, plunge right in. He'd forgive her her deception . . .

"Would it make any difference," she said haltingly, and bending forward and plucking a wood anemone as she spoke, "suppose I WEREN'T Mrs. Jinny Judson?"

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling, of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee, is jealous and warns Nollie. Mrs. Judson returns and gives Nollie a letter Tony had written her abroad. They learn that Tony is on vacation. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. He still thinks she is Mrs. Judson.

Now Go On

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

In one respect, fate is kind to woman. The sisters don't have to worry about getting bald headed, it simply doesn't happen to them. If a woman were to be afflicted with a hairless pate and there were no wigs or transformations obtainable she would retire to a dark cellar and remain there to the end of her days. To cavort about, be pleased with herself after the fashion of skittish old-fashioned boys would be impossible. One wonders how the poor male creatures endure their shining domes with fortitude. Hair specialists say the reason women escape this sad fate is that they take better care of their hair. Certainly they give more attention to combs and brushes, wash them oftener. Something in that, maybe.

Women of the stage and screen to whom youthful appearance is money in the bank realize the benefits of the daily bath; they make of tubbing a beauty rite. Relaxation in warm water coaxes snapping nerves to quiet down. There comes over the body and mind a sense of ease and luxury. No wonder a lot of gals yodel as they scrub. Bacteria lurks on even the cleanest skin, ready to burrow into an abrasion and set up business, produce boils, abscesses and pimples. By keeping the entire body surface clean and toned, the complexion has less work to do, is more likely to keep fresh looking. Bath powders and perfumed salts make the bath more festive and dusting powders are a joy.

BRITISH GEN. BURGOYNE SURRENDERS TO AMERICAN GEN. GATES (Oct. 7, 1777)

British strategy moved three armies in a concentric drive against the revolting Americans. Gen. Burgoyne, from Canada via Lake Champlain-Hudson River southward; Col. St. Leger from Canada through Mohawk Valley eastward, and Gen. Howe northward up the Hudson. The latter moved, however, toward Philadelphia instead.

Meanwhile, the American Gen. Gates met Burgoyne at Saratoga, N. Y., and after two important battles (Sept. 19, Oct. 7) forced him to surrender with about 6,000 troops.

This victory was instrumental in the success of Benjamin Franklin's conclusion of a military alliance with France against the British. (World History)

GERMANICUS' TRIUMPH WITH THUSNELDA AND SON AS CAPTIVES

Arminius, the German chieftain, could not long enjoy his victory over Varus, 9 A. D. The Roman Emperor Tiberius (14-37) sent his nephew Germanicus with a large army against the Germans. Arminius was defeated (15-16 A. D.), his wife and son taken prisoners.

Above: Tiberius is seen reviewing in Rome the triumphal procession of Germanicus, who was feted as a hero, only to be murdered later, together with his wife and two sons, probably upon order of Tiberius, who also was assassinated.

The results of Germanicus' victories over the German tribes were soon lost and no other Roman army invaded the interior of their territory. Arminius himself fell the victim of his own people in a feud. (World History)

DALTON'S ATOMIC THEORY (Pub. 1807)

Elements—final products of ordinary chemical decomposition—consist of minute particles; atoms. Atoms of same element have same properties and weight; those of different elements differ. Atoms form molecules, the smallest particles, exhibiting the properties of a substance. Above: 2 hydrogen atoms form the hydrogen molecule; 2 oxygen atoms give the oxygen molecule; both molecules are elementary comprising atoms only of the same element. Two hydrogen atoms with one oxygen atom produce the water molecule, which is a compound molecule, composed of atoms of different elements.

MOLAR VOLUME OF GASES AND VAPORS (Chemistry)

Molar volume is 22.4 liter, the volume of a cube with 11.1 inch side-length; the weight of one molar volume of gas or vapor in grams at 0°C and 760 mm. mercury column pressure equals the number expressing the molecular weight.

The molecular weight of a substance is the relative weight of its molecule compared with the weight of the oxygen molecule, chosen for convenience as 32. The atomic weight of an element is the relative weight of its atom compared with that of the oxygen atom fixed at 16 (2 oxygen atoms = 1 oxygen molecule).

DIAGRAM OF AN AUTOMOBILE WITH FOUR-CYLINDER ENGINE

Above: Main parts of the automobile chassis and body. Find the different parts individually discussed (Pict. Ed., Sept. 11 to Nov. 8, Section B) and see how they work together. The developed horsepower of an automobile engine can be estimated by the following formula: H. P. = DxDxN/2.5 where D is the diameter of the cylinder bore and N the number of cylinders. 1 H. P. = 550 foot pound work done per second. (Transportation)

HAY MOWER (General Science)

Above: The hay mower, a machine to cut grass. The cutting is done by the cutter bar protruding sideward from the truck close above the ground; it is driven by the tractive power, transmitted from the lugged wheels by gears and a clutch (for disengaging). The cutting bar, shown in section (insert), consists mainly of the zig-zag shaped knife-plate sliding back and forth on the similar shaped ledger-plate, shearing the grass caught between the guard points, resembling in operation the well known hair clipper. That Was a Tough Winter

Wolves in the Adirondacks are sure beacons of a tough winter. Our Adirondack office wired us yesterday that the wolves were running as loose as maple sap in the spring.

This just about checks up with our Appalachian man who telegraphs that the mountain lions are parking within 20 feet of the fire plug. Animals know when the winter is going to be very outdoors.

We ain't seen a real wolf since the blizzard of '88. We were thumbing covered wagons in the Rockies when the wind started to blow from all angles of the Eskimo alphabet. It snowed so hard the mountain owls muscled in on the hen roosts.

When you get lost in the snow you wander in big circles like reform administrations. After it snowed 17 linked days we realized we were in for a storm.

On the eighteenth day of the big circle, which was 30 miles from stem to stern, we were picked up and chased by a mean looking wolf with traffic light eyes. He was only a half-miler and we passed him on the third lap.

But then the rest of the pack started to bear down in relays. Each one was 10 miles apart. They were quite sporting about it.

If they didn't make clean pick-ups they went back and did it right. We slowed up over the great divide but, fortunately, the wolf running the second lap lost his baton.

Finally, on the thirty-eighth day we heard a steady beating in back of us and there was the duke of all the wolves. He was the biggest of the pack and every tooth was shining like a fraternity pin. We knew we were up against the anchor man.

We gained three minutes on him when they waved him into the pits. But he came out going strong and it got right down to cases where we were elbowing on the turns. When it comes time to throw somebody to the wolves it is nice to have a guest in the rumble seat.

There we were running side by side for miles. Nobody could understand why the wolf didn't get in the first bite. We had a gun. But no permit. After perspiring around the great circle for 12 laps we suddenly realized why the wolf kept going. He liked his meals hot.

And, just when the ink looked blackest on the new carpet, the blizzard stopped, the sun came out and there was Kit Carson with a magnificent loving cup. It was a great home-coming. They took the canvas off the covered wagons and put up striped awnings. That was our closest call except the time the long-necked Pullman porter stuck his head inside the curtains and hollered, "Altoona."

The City Housecleaning

Mayor-elect McNair Will Be Expected to Use Discrimination in Making Payroll Changes.

Mayor-elect W. N. McNair talks of getting rid of drones and incompetents on the city payroll at the earliest opportunity.

It is to be expected that he will make many changes in the municipal employes. In addition to those whom he considers "deadwood" he probably will discharge officeholders who were given their jobs by the Republican organization for political reasons only; their places naturally will go to his own supporters.

There is anxiety among the more than 5,000 city employes lest Mr. McNair make a clean sweep and discharge all of them that he can, outside of the civil service, whether they were active in politics or not.

This would be an unwise procedure. The new administration will need for some time the help of old employes.

In commercial life, when the management of a concern changes, the new managers do not proceed forthwith to discharge all the old help. They retain experienced employes.

The management of the city is a complicated business, and business principles should be applied. For that reason it seems scarcely likely that Mr. McNair will get rid of city employes on the wholesale scale that is feared.

He has talked of overhauling the police force from top to bottom. We think he should take into consideration the strong probability that the conduct of the police to which he objects was due more to instructions from higher authority than to their own initiative. The majority of the rank and file, in our opinion, are honest men who will be glad of an opportunity to do their duty without regard to political considerations.

Mr. McNair would do well to indicate at once what his policy will be as to changes in the payroll. If he has no intention of removing faithful, efficient city employes who have not been active in politics, he should relieve them and their families of their anxiety.

A New Housing Project

Comfortable Dwellings to Rent at a Low Figure Are One of the City's Most Urgent Needs.

Citizens sensitive to the city's needs will hail with satisfaction the announcement that plans have been formulated for the construction of 162 dwelling houses in an attractive neighborhood of the North Side and have received the tentative approval of the City Planning Commission. Financial aid is to be sought in Washington.

Because of the prolonged stagnation in building activities Pittsburgh is on the verge of a housing shortage. There is special need for comfortable small houses for people in modest circumstances. Many such people are living in dwellings that are unfit for human habitation, and living amid conditions of almost unbelievable congestion.

To encourage slum clearance the National Recovery Administration is prepared to advance money for house-building by limited dividend corporations. Gov. Pinchot should include in his program for the special session of the Legislature enabling legislation which will permit Pennsylvanians to take advantage of this opportunity.

Pittsburgh is afflicted with a number of slums, and they should be eradicated. But, of course, many dwellings to rent at a low figure must be erected to take care of the people now living in the slums.

Not only is the erection of new houses to take care of slum dwellers desirable as a measure for combatting misery, disease and crime; it is also inviting as a means for promoting economic recovery. For building operations not only furnish employment to numerous workmen, but necessitate the purchase of large quantities of varied materials.

Tax Relief Now Due

But Too High an Impost Must Not Be Placed on Liquor Lest It Encourage Bootlegging.

The warning of the state and local tax committee of the Investment Bankers' Association of America against unduly high liquor taxes is timely and important.

Calling attention to the pyramiding of liquor taxes by the federal government, state, local and county governments, the committee warned:

"When our federal taxation committee threw its support to beer because of the tax relief it promised we knew we would soon have beer. However, there is a very real danger that state and local imposts may negative the results sought by making bootlegging still profitable. Therefore, this committee joins its fellow committee in urging that all beer and liquor taxes be enacted with the idea of eradicating racketeering first."

If scientific methods are used in levying liquor taxes, additional huge revenues from this source will greatly relieve the onerous tax burdens now resting on industry.

In the process of economic recovery, such tax relief offers much promise.

When Congress meets and authorizes the new liquor taxes, it should also thoroughly overhaul existing tax schedules.

It should substitute scientific and well considered taxes for the existing hodge podge.

In the elimination of punitive features from the tax schedules, the government should inaugurate a general manufacturers' sales tax, such as has succeeded so admirably in Canada.

Confidence that sane tax reform was coming would go far to hearten the businessman and the employer of labor at this juncture.

Now for Sunday Movies!

The Modification of the Blue Law Should Be Extended To Permit Theater Entertainment.

Three years ago the Sun-Telegraph took a postcard poll of registered voters in Allegheny County to ascertain their views on modification of the Blue Law to permit Sunday sports, concerts, plays and movies.

Of the 64,228 voters who participated in the poll 48,975 called for complete repeal of the Blue Law, 10,164 voted for its retention, and 5,089 asked modification to permit non-commercial sports and amusements.

The accuracy of this straw vote as an index of public sentiment was confirmed by the vote Tuesday authorizing Sunday ball games.

In the ratio of considerably more than three to one the voters in our postcard poll called for movies as well as concerts and ball games, and the Legislature should grant that demand.

There are multitudes of citizens, particularly women, who do not care for ball games, but enjoy motion pictures. They, too, are entitled to innocent entertainment.

The public schools first!

In all schemes for reorganization of local governments and for economies in the public service EDUCATION must rank foremost as the nation's primary need.

When the public schools have been adequately provided for then other needs should be met — for the public schools are the foundation of citizenship.

Nothing has been more detrimental than the practice of false economy, which has deprived many thousands of children of their right to be taught.

Schools closed by this false economy must be reopened for their full terms. More schoolhouses must be provided.

In this critical time education is more necessary than ever before. In the words of Jessie Gray, president of the National Education Association, writing in the Hearst Sunday papers:

"We need MORE education, not less; BETTER education, not worse; and higher ideals and clearer vision for the oncoming generation, upon whom we depend to finish what this generation has begun."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Thoughts while strolling: Whatever became of the Seven Sutherland Sisters? How Julia Hoyt has thinned! If these taxi drivers keep it up they can have the island. I'm tired of climbing shade trees. Russian restaurants have gone out. The Theater Guild has the tackiest premieres.

Anthony Drexel and Chas. B. Dillingham bear a resemblance. Queenie Smith in a perky red coat. Kelcey Allen's beaming complacency. Boys taunting a motor-mangled park squirrel. Horrible! The flood of glittering open-fronted eating places. All packed. Wanted—a new set of gestures for Ethel Merman.

One word description of Blossom Seeley—swirly. Nobody can look so pompous in a dress suit as Charles M. Schwab. A shock to see Charlie Chaplin with almost white hair. The Henry Miller theater is about the only one left with "personality." Carpentier, the orchid man, looks wilted.

Edwin Balmer, Chicago boy, who made good in the city. Strange how most of us never think we grow old. Yet Merrick's Conrad in Quest of his Youth felt antiquated at 37. Few pass out so gamely as Mike Donlin. He had been living in agony and on courage for 10 years.

One of my favorite people—Buff Cobb Brody. They say Alexander Woollcott has developed into a smash on the radio. Sam H. Harris now has the two biggest theatrical hits. Some producers say critics are killing the theater. Tosh! The matter with the theater is the matter with the world—greed!

Among Fannie Hurst's pets—which include two dogs, two monkeys and a rabbit—is a beautiful snow-white cat. She saw it in a window one day when feeling rather sorry for herself. An exquisite feline, it became a favorite in the household. One day in a preoccupied moment at her desk, Miss Hurst felt a ripping slash across her cheek and saw a whirl of white fur on the floor. The cat had been caught up in some seizure. Once a purr of affection, it was from that time slinking, suspicious, dangerous. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde! The veterinarian suggested ether. But Miss Hurst is slowly by kindness winning it back from the unreal world into which it so suddenly plunged.

Seasonal visitors to Paris will regret the passing of Lou Hauser, whose orbit for the past 25 years has been in the cafes and bars of the Place Vendome. He was an architect, member of a distinguished family when he went to Paris for the first time to visit, 25 years ago. The city captivated him as it has few Americans. He became so thoroughly French he talked English with a slight accent. Most of his expatriate years he spent as a cicerone for his countrymen. He knew the infamies of rue de Lappe as well as finest treasures in the Louvre and few could show them so graciously or entertainingly.

Rigid English quarantine against dogs from outside is seldom broken—for it means killing of the dog and a $100 fine if caught. But many British who acquire dogs in America and become attached to them have taken the chance. And who can blame them? It is told a famous English actress once took a small dog in by ingenious duplicity. It was a thumb-sized Pom, and she sewed a pocket in her fur coat. Her fear was the animal by some noise would give her away. But as the gangplank was lowering she had an inspiration. She gave Fifi an aspirin and Fifi slept throughout custom inspection!

There are whisperings in the Tenderloin of "poison rings" worn by underworld big shots who live hard and dangerously. They are bought, after proper recommendations, from a shady character in Baxter street — seal rings for which are charged prices ranging from $50 to $250. They cost the dealer about $6, but the seal part is hinged and covers a cavity containing the swiftest and deadliest of poisons—cyanide of potassium. A one-way ticket to eternity for desperate characters, engaged in risky enterprises, suddenly caught in a jam. Nothing new about poison rings, of course. The Borgias and other magnificos of long ago had them. But they are a novelty in the Tenderloin.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Nuisance Value

Here's an amusing bit from a friend's letter.

"My cat sits here and looks at me with bored eyes because I don't pay any attention to her. Pretty soon she'll come over and bite me for the same reason. She's just like some people . . . TRIES TO GIVE HERSELF NUISANCE VALUE WHEN SHE FEELS IGNORED."

Nuisance value . . . that's what you used frequently, when you were five. Remember? Company visiting. Grown folk sitting around, discussing their own affairs . . . paying no attention to little you. You wanted to be paid attention to . . . you wanted AWFULLY to be paid attention to. You fidgeted. Made small noises. Ventured sociable remarks. But not an eye or ear was turned your way. Rage and rebellion rose within your small soul. Such ignominy was not to be borne! You'd MAKE them pay attention to you. So you YELLED! And instantly you had the stage.

"What is it . . . what IS it, darling?" they cried.

* * *

SOBBINGLY, you explained that you had a dreadful pain. You had! But it wasn't where they thought. It was in your young egotism. Now, having cornered their attention, that was blissfully assuaged.

THAT was Nuisance Value . . . as acquired by little persons of five. But many persons prolong Nuisance Value far beyond five. There's Ena Weeks, for example. Ena Weeks was one of those pretty, pouty, petty packages that strong men sometimes marry in absent-minded moments. Years ago, Joe Weeks realized that he'd made a terrible mistake. He stuck it out manfully . . . tried to act the part of the devoted husband . . . but Ena saw through it. Tears, tantrums and sulks failed to revive his interest, but Ena found a way out. She went in for Sick Headaches — Minor Operations — Nervous Prostrations. Life became just one Sick Spell after another for Ena. Joe might want to forget her, but how could he? ENA HAD HIM HOG-TIED WITH HER NUISANCE VALUE.

* * *

The typical Office Pest . . . that's another example. Usually, it's some disappointed older woman or disgruntled man who has wanted to be Somebody, but never arrived. So they satisfy their rankling souls by making everyone else miserable . . . meddling, investigating, tattling . . . ACHIEVE NUISANCE VALUE.

Writers, and other public servants, are particularly plagued by such creatures. Some envious Richard Roe or Mary Doe in Brownsville or Greenfield, who wanted to be Big Pumpkins but didn't make the grade, and who gets mad every time he or she sees someone else's name in print. So they write sneering anonymous notes and dare you to print 'em. Playing for publicity by working up a Nuisance Value.

* * *

Ever since the war our whole country has been overrun by similar pests. People who have never been able to create Important Business of their own so they achieve power and place by meddling in other people's business. Reforms are their meat! As long as they can Reform or Investigate something, raise some sort of a rumpus, they're happy. For thereby they get attention. Human mosquitoes! Nuisance Value—they have it, and how!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Men Remarry for a Change

Why some women succeed in annexing one millionaire after another, while other women no less attractive manage to fall for one matrimonial dud after another is really no great mystery.

* * *

No matter how often a woman may fall in love or remarry, she usually runs true to form, and picks the same type. But when a man remarries, he does it for a CHANGE.

This is because every normal woman is a one-man woman; and, every time she steps to the altar, she takes practically the same collection of charms, virtues, faults, weaknesses and habits along. But, to a man, every woman in his life is just "a relief" from the woman before—and what he's looking for is not a duplicate, but a contrast. Something DIFFERENT!

* * *

If a woman's taste runs to solid business men, she is very likely to acquire one good-provider after another. And she has scarcely taken off her mourning—or let the ink dry on her final decree—before another solid business man is slipping a diamond bracelet over her wrist, and begging her to let him be her meal-ticket for life. And you'll never catch her exchanging a steady, dependable merchant for a wild-haired poet.

* * *

But, if a woman's fancy runs to decorative men and she has a secret weakness for gallants and lightweights, she is doomed forever to be "mothering" some attractive playboy or acting as a pulmotor for some charming weakling or a prop for the ego of some gay Don Juan. Though she may fall in love a dozen times, never by any chance will she replace a romantic and fascinating trifler with a staid, substantial provider. Butterflies are her portion in the Garden of Love.

* * *

A man, on the other hand, usually starts out by falling in love with one kind of woman—and then wishes he'd married the other kind. (No matter WHAT kind of woman a man marries, there are always moments when he wishes he'd married the other kind.)

* * *

If his first wild infatuation is for a pretty dumbbell or a light-headed "It-girl," his second is almost sure to be for a cool-headed, keen-witted, efficient young business woman. From one who hangs around his neck, he turns to one who leads him around by the nose.

Or if he is married to a brilliant intellectual, there are always moments when he yearns to "get out of school" and relax in the dimpled arms of a Cutie with a line of baby-talk. Or if Number One is a Bird of Paradise with a high-powered temperament, Number Two is pretty sure to be a quiet little brown wren, who is content to play audience, background and applause.

* * *

The truth is that a woman may part with a man for many reasons, even when she loves him. But when a man voluntarily parts from a woman, it is, nine times out of ten, because he is FED UP — and wants a change of diet!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

The Secret Wanderer

Sometimes we sit here, hand in hand
To watch the young moon sink
Beyond the level, silent land,
Beyond the river's brink.

We long have known this sheltered place,
The towering pine near by
Is like a friend, the valley's face
Smiles up into the sky.

Yet, sometimes, when I speak you turn
On me a startled gaze,
So that I see your soul return,
From strange and distant ways.

How unbelievable a thing;
We sit here, hand in hand,
And yet your thoughts have taken wing
Into an alien land!

How unbelievable; but true;
Each soul alone must go,
Far inns hang lanterns out for you
That I can never know!

Text for Today

Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.—Ephesians, vi:11.

Russian Credit

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL,
Financial Authority

MR. LITVINOFF, a pleasant and shrewd gentleman, with both eyes wide open, addressing his Berlin audience with becoming reluctance, cannot conceal his elation at the cordial invitation of our President to come and "talk it over."

There follows a barrage of enthusiastic comment in the press, embellished with profuse tabulations showing the immense RUSSIAN PIE about to be brought to the American table, with the transparent indication that we can name the size of our slice.

Don't kid yourself.

Mr. Litvinoff, by what he no doubt views as an incredible stroke of fortune, is approaching by invitation, the world's greatest market for Russian goods.

A market equal to the combined markets of the remainder of this round, distracted sphere.

And don't let anyone tell you that he doesn't know it.

Also—no one knows better than Mr. Litvinoff, that he is approaching a vast industrial empire whose factories are running at half speed because the controlling group of our bankers have hoarded our potential credit and piled up our gold, idle and useless, in a staggering inert mass.

The same bankers who so recently, without difficulty, discovered in our financial mechanism sufficient elasticity to furnish every short or long term credit need, of every jerkwater country in the eastern hemisphere, but who suddenly are curiously unable to devise ways and means to satisfy the desperate credit needs of the million or more solvent operators of AMERICAN diversified commerce and industry, whose SOS calls have flooded the NRA offices.

Credit which would go instantly into circulation and bring us out of this industrial deadlock like a suddenly unleashed coiled spring.

AGAIN don't kid yourself. Russia is not starving for American goods. They would like to take us for another ride behind the pleasant sleigh bells of their Communistic reindeers, and there is already talk of a 500 million loan.

For the love of Patricia, let's grow up. There isn't any Santa Claus in the Western Hemisphere.

Russia has some products which we can use—we have some they want—no reason why a trade should not be arranged—BUT—nations, just as individuals, can only EXCHANGE their goods and services.

This should be clearly understood at once and for all time, before some of our "international bankers" arrange to "distribute" to the American public a block of Russian "recovery debentures" or some such patriotic hooey.

THERE is no such thing as one way trading.

In the final analysis we must buy from Russia just as much as we sell to Russia.

Every schoolboy ought to know this, but a great many international bankers ignore this fundamental proposition, and either consciously or ignorantly flood the country with foreign obligations which patently can never be paid.

Russia now owes us around 800 millions—300 millions national, and 500 millions private debt. It is largely a permanent investment—if one likes Russian investments.

IT would be a rather simple matter for our Department of Commerce, for instance, in connection with the Amtorg or any Russian central bureau, to handle all Russian trades, all the American orders for Russian goods—all Russian orders for American goods.

Under this simple arrangement the American purchasers of Russian furs or pulpwood would pay Russia's bills here for American machinery.

On the other side, a similar transaction—no question of the international exchange of money.

No rake-off to international money manipulators who not only butt into every exchange of goods and services they can wedge into, but juggle and confuse what is otherwise a simple transaction by a smoke screen of financial manipulation, out of which they collect a stiff tax both ways.

In the final analysis we have either effected an equal exchange of goods, or one nation owes the other a debt which cannot be paid.

Why not, before it is too late, substitute common sense for the regrets which are certain to follow ignoring these fundamentals.

Russia claims to have some $400,000,000 in gold, silver, platinum and odds and ends of precious metals in her state bank reserve.

Every sane, competent man in America knows that Russia CANNOT AND WILL NOT PAY ANY OF THESE METALS TO US, regardless of her promises.

She needs this metal—all of it and more, to support her internal medium of exchange.

If we, individually or collectively, extend to Russia credits not SPECIFICALLY based upon our pending purchases—we deserve the loss that is inevitable.

Roosevelt Plans to 'Wipe Out' Racketeering

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IN the warfare which the Roosevelt administration is waging against crime the next battle will be to wipe out racketeering by rounding up and punishing with due severity every racketeer the government can catch.

Under federal leadership, supplied by the Department of Justice, the crime of kidnaping has finally yielded to "treatment."

"It is gratifying to note," says Attorney General Cummings, "that every kidnaping case handled by the Division of Investigation since the Lindbergh law became effective has been solved."

This division is the agency of which John Edgar Hoover is the able and indefatigable director. Of the 14 kidnaping cases investigated by Mr. Hoover's division the federal government, with the co-operation of the several states and the support of their local authorities, is now able to report that convictions in these cases resulted in one death sentence, nine life sentences and other terms of imprisonment totaling nearly 375 years.

In cases involving threats to kidnap, in which Mr. Hoover's division of investigation has been called upon for assistance, 20 persons are under arrest and awaiting trial, eight have been convicted and sentences totaling 76 years have been imposed.

* * *

Are Aided By Adroit Lawyers

MANY rackets in the business world, Mr. Cummings says, "are skilfully organized on a basis of business efficiency, with adroit lawyers under retainers, and social aid and other contacts, including office-holders.

The assistance rendered by the office-holder to racketeers frequently involves an attempt to influence those charged with administering justice.

In case after case that has been brought to the attention of the Department of Justice, the racketeer, after being caught, has escaped conviction or punishment through the assistance either of an unscrupulous lawyer or of a weak or unscrupulous official surrendering to the pressure of political spoilsmen.

As a first step toward wiping out the crime of commercial racketeering by rounding up and punishing the racketeer, the Federal Government will doubtless enlist the aid of the State and local authorities in exposing the operations of "shyster" lawyers and crooked politicians, who, by protecting racketeers, are guilty of aiding and abetting the crime of racketeering.

Should President Roosevelt order the Department of Justice to publish to the country the list of lawyers and politicians that have been guilty of aiding commercial racketeers, it would breathe the breath of life into many dormant bar associations. It would have also a devasting effect upon the corrupt political gangs that are operating in so many cities and towns of this country today.

The fact, however, that the Department of Justice is organizing the plan of campaign against racketeers is welcome assurance that the crime of racketeering in this country is soon to get the same treatment that has been given to the crime of kidnaping by organized government under intelligent and forceful Federal leadership.
